

Second Baptists In Home Coming

lether of the famous Bostic family of missionaries to China. He was a faithful Christian man, spending a great deal of his time visiting in the homes of the people, and helping to build the foundation to the work which now stands as a memorial to him.

The other deacon, Brother J. L. McCurry, also had a great part in getting the new church off to a good start. He conducted prayer meetings, and occasionally supplied the pulpit in the absence of the pastor. It is a significant fact that all of these men only served the church for a period of about two years, Brethren Bostic and Roberts being called away by death, and Brother McCurry moving to another community.

Another man who had a great deal to do with the organization of the church was Mr. W. A. Hayes. He had served faithfully the position of Sunday school superintendent at the Baptist chapel, and used his influence toward the organization of the new church. He was claimed by death only a week before the church was finally organized. His daughter, who is now Mrs. Connie Lee Mabry of Shelby, was the first person to be baptized into the fellowship of the new church.

Through the early struggles of the church Mr. John R. Dover, who was then owner of the Ella mill, became greatly interested in the work. He served the office of Sunday school superintendent for over six years, and the work prospered greatly in his hands. It was through his generosity that the lot where the church now stands was donated to the congregation. The influence of this Christian layman and business man is still being felt in the life of the church.

The first sermon to the newly organized church was preached by Rev. Paysour. Rev. John W. Suttle, who was then pastor at Marshall, was given a unanimous call as pastor, and entered upon his duties on January 1, 1909. For six years Brother Suttle shared the sacrifice and joys of this struggling band of people, and largely through his fine leadership the foundations were laid wisely and well. The membership grew and prospered during his pastorate, and many were those who found the Lord, and were buried with Him by baptism. During the early part of Brother Suttle's ministry, in the spring of 1909, the first building was erected on the present site. This building was a frame structure with stucco finish on outside. It consisted of a large auditorium, with two class rooms at the rear. It was dedicated on July 4, 1909.

Brother Suttle resigned in the latter part of 1914, and Rev. W. E. Lowe was called and entered upon his duties January 1, 1915. He served the church for two years, leading in a wise and constructive way. His forceful, scriptural sermons were a great benefit to the church.

Rev. R. C. Campbell succeeded Brother Lowe and served the church for nearly three years, leaving in the latter part of 1919 to enter the seminary. His fine leadership and strong Christian personality won for him a large and lasting place in the hearts of the people. It was with regret that the church accepted his resignation, but it has been with pride that it has watched him steadily climb to the large place which he now occupies in denominational life and service.

On January 1, 1920, Rev. W. A. Elam came to the church as pastor. With the beginning of his pastorate the church went from half-time to full-time preaching. Under his leadership the church grew in numbers and strength until it was found necessary during the year 1921 to enlarge the house of worship. Eight large class rooms were added to the building, and the outside walls were brick veneered. Brother Elam's pastorate was noted for the strong, spiritual development of the membership. The church gained much under the kind, unassuming, but courageous leadership of this godly preacher. After nearly four years he left for another field of labor.

Rev. Rush Padgett entered upon his duties as pastor on November 1, 1923, and many notable achievements marked his pastorate. Until this time the church had been receiving aid from the Baptist state mission board, but now they began to walk alone. Early in his ministry the church began to feel the need of a properly equipped Sunday school building, and in the early part of 1928 there was built an addition to the rear of the auditorium which cares for a departmental school and will provide for 600 scholars. Several other improvements were made at this time, including the installation of a steam heating plant. Under Brother Padgett's business-like and consecrated leadership the church emerged from a state mission station to become one of the strong, self-supporting, and leading congregations in the city. After six and one-half years, Brother Padgett resigned in the early part of 1930, leaving for another field on April 1.

On June 22, 1930, Rev. L. L. Jessup, the present preacher, took charge of the work.

The church seems to have been especially blessed in the past by having wise and efficient leadership, not only among its pastors, but among members as well. Many of its deacons have been strong, Christian characters who have stood loyally by the work. One of its former deacons, Mr. J. N. Barnette, is now one of the outstanding leaders in Sunday school work in the Southern Baptist convention. His brother, Mr. J. D. Barnette, another prominent Sunday school worker, served the church in many ways. The oldest deacon from the point of service now serving the church is Mr. G. V. Hawkins, who has been closely identified with the church for the past twenty years.

Ministerial students who have gone out from the church are Brethren Lowell Barnette, H. H. Allen, Floyd Singleton, and Marlow Stroup.

During all of the twenty-two years of its existence there has been no outstanding friction, or division in the church. It has stood faithfully for the Baptist faith, and has willingly supported all the causes sponsored by the convention. It has grown from a membership of only 14 to nearly 600. Its influence has been greatly felt upon the social and industrial life of the city, being strategically located in the heart of a large industrial and residential section of the city of Shelby.

It is hoped that the past history of this church may so inspire and encourage future generations, that no dark periods may develop, but that it shall be an ever increasing blessing to the community, and to the Kingdom of Christ.

Lengthening Of Life Is Vain If Your Brain Doesn't Last

the span of human life is increasing here. In India the normal age is 20. Here it is 50. In the 17th century the average age was only 20 in this country.

"The advance noted has come chiefly through community teaching, principally lessons in the care of infants and small children, so that they grow up with strong bodies and minds. Later on the medical profession will be able to concentrate upon teaching the individual man and woman how to care for themselves."

Dr. Mayo declared there was great need for more widespread knowledge about the science of medicine. "The public," he said, "is more ignorant about medicine than another science."

Before the congress Dr. Mayo commented on the paper of Dr. George W. Crile, of Cleveland, in which he discussed the hospitalization standardization movement and its relation to the practice of medicine. Dr. Mayo criticized hospitals for encouraging poor people to take costly accommodations and said this was a matter for the surgeons who know the needs of the patients to correct.

"It is a funny thing," he concluded, "that it is the wives of those who lost money in the stock market who are getting sick this year. I suppose that is because of the deprivation of food."

Use Of Campaign Money By Bailey Found To Be O. K.

over North Carolina a tremendous reaction against the suggestion carried in the morning papers.

C. P. Shuping of Greensboro, who managed Bailey's campaign, admitted under questioning he had paid campaign bills of between "five and six thousand dollars" after the primary.

The total of Bailey's campaign expenditures as reported to the secretary of state was just a few hundred dollars under the $10,000 maximum permitted by the North Carolina statute. Shuping asserted that when the report was filed, the only bills he knew to be outstanding were the telephone and telegraph bills for the final day of the campaign.

The later bills, he said, came from campaign workers and were largely for gasoline for automobiles used to get voters to the polls.

James H. Pou of Raleigh, Bailey's father-in-law, told of spending approximately $2,500 in the campaign. Bailey's report of contributions listed him as having given $750.

Pou contended, however, that the $750 was all that was spent through Bailey's headquarters. He began to explain his contention that the remainder under the statute was not required to be reported and Nye interrupted: "Of course," said Nye, "a candidate in any state is not expected to report monies expended in his behalf, but over which he has no control and, perhaps, no knowledge."

Cameron Morrison of Charlotte, former governor, was revealed as a heavy contributor to Bailey's war chest and to that of Hamilton C. Jones of Charlotte, who lost the nomination as representative to congress from the ninth district to A. L. Bulwinkle of Gastonia.

In addition to the $2,000 he gave to Bailey headquarters, which was reported, Morrison told of giving $1,000 to Herbert Guiley, Raleigh detective and Bailey field worker.

Bailey Ignorant of Fund.

The $1,000, Guiley later testified, was spent in Vance, Person, and neighboring counties "to get out the vote" for Bailey. He said Bailey headquarters had no knowledge of it.

Morrison said the total he put into the campaign funds of various candidates was $7,300. He added that he might have spent a "few other dollars" that he did not recall.

Three thousand of this, he related, went to the Mecklenburg county campaign headquarters of Hamilton C. Jones with the understanding it was also to be used to further Bailey's campaign. Mrs. Morrison gave $1,000 to Jones.

The total to Bailey was $3,000. Other sums ranged from small amounts to $500 and went to county workers in Scotland, Richmond, and Pender counties.

"He said he gave $300" to C. M. Johnson of Pender county, "to elect his sheriff."

Morrison Waxen Emphatic.

Question about a loan he made to Frank Hancock of Oxford, who was nominated by the Democrats as representative to congress from the fifth district, stirred Morrison.

"That was a bona fide loan," he said, "pounding the witness table, and I can lick any man who says it wasn't."

He gave the amount as "three or four thousand dollars" and added that he had notes for it all.

At the outset of the hearing Nye said the committee had reports large sums of money were spent during the campaign and that many illegal votes were cast. He did not disclose the source of the reports, but said they did not come from any senatorial candidate "now running or defeated."

Every witness who was asked about the financial side of the campaign came in for a question as to whether he knew of any "outside money" being brought into the state to aid Bailey.

All of the witnesses asserted they had not. Guiley, in particular was questioned about the "outside money." He named the $1,000 received from Morrison, $500 given by Carl Williamson, Raleigh wholesale grocer, and a few odd sums received from Shuping as the total amount he distributed.

"Did you handle any money in behalf of congressional candidates?" Nye queried Guiley.

"No, sir, I did not," the detective replied.

In closing Nye asked Guiley a sweeping question about the outside money.

Everything Accounted For.

"Did you," he questioned, "distribute any large sum of money in behalf of any candidate which you have not already accounted for?"

"None, whatever," Guiley answered.
