Morality.
We cannot kindle when we will
The fire which in the heart resides;
The spirit bloweth and is still,
In mystery our souls abide.
But tasks in hours of insight will'd
Can be through hours of gloom fulfilled.

With aching hands and bleeding feet
We dig and heap, lay stone on stone;
We bear the burden and the heat
Of the long day and wish 'twere done.
Not till the hours of light return,
All we have built do we discern.
—Matthew Arnold.

Mental Illnesses On The Increase Today

—Complexities of Modern Life Partly to Blame

Medical Profession Becoming Alarmed at Steady Growth in "Mind" Cases, Says Dr. Copeland, Discussing Care and Treatment of the Mentally Sick.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NO greater affliction can come to man than loss of reason. When mental control is lost, direction of the body is at a loss.

There is much alarm in the ranks of the medical profession today over the steady growth and complexity of mental diseases. The problem of the mentally defective is always a serious one.

The American Medical Association, at its recent meeting, took action to bring about a more scientific handling of these problems. To further scientific investigation it was thought desirable to appoint a special committee. This will concern itself solely with psychiatric services in the criminal courts and prisons. It will cooperate with hospitals and other organizations in the care and treatment of the mentally ill. And at the same time an effort will be made to promote greater progress in the treatment of mental defectives.

Worry drains away a large store of nervous energy. Many sorts of mental conditions or attitudes bring about real disease. By simply correcting one's attitude of depression, irritability, cynicism, and dissatisfaction with life in general one can bring physical well-being. Then, of necessity, the mental life will be transformed.

Very often there is no real health breakdown until there is a mental breakdown. Our understanding of the mind is very meager, but we must exert some control over our thinking. Happy is the man who is capable of directing his thinking wisely. The surest guarantee is a strong, normal body.

SEWS WITHOUT AID OF GLASSES AT 85

Beaufort, S. C.—Miss Emily Walker declares bright red, blue and yellow dresses protect children against being run over by automobiles.

Miss Emily is 85 and reputed to be the oldest living descendant of the 10 original families of Beaufort. Despite her advanced age, she sews and reads without glasses. She frequently makes dresses for her little nieces and always chooses bright colored materials. "Aren't they pretty?" she asked, exhibiting two new creations. "Pretty good for 85, eh? I made them out of bright materials so the children would have a better chance not to get run over by automobiles."

Now that Thanksgiving is over some people think there is no reason to be thankful, any more.
