Misadventure.

The road flowed outward like a darkened thread,
Beneath Orion's sword belt, hanging low;
A sudden impact, a motor dead,
With twenty miles, or thirty, yet to go.
I had not known the mystery of pines
About a cabin where thin light escapes,
Or sullen beauty where a puddle shines
With fragile water weeds in lovely shapes.
By day the tree frogs muffle their refrain,
And light reveals a multitude of scars,
But beauty claims a sudden, wide domain
Beneath the glamour of the winter stars.
A trivial misadventure—and I find
A new, mysterious kingdom of the mind.
—Mary Brent Whiteside.

Mrs. Nichols Aids In Editing A Cook Book

A very attractive and valuable cook book compiled by the Woman's club of Bessemer City and a few Shelby friends, has just come off the press. This worthy achievement was supervised by the club president Mrs. T. E. Hoy, formerly of Shelby.
The recipes are of original talent, and planned by some of the leading food specialists of the county, among whom are Mrs. R. C. Kennedy, former home economics teacher of Bessemer City, and her later successor, Miss Ruth Rhine. Miss Rhine also submitted a number of menus for lunch boxes and special occasions, two fields in which she has so successfully demonstrated her unusual talent for during the past three years in our high school community and county. Many others have given some very tasty recipes toward the success of this very unusual book.

Birth Control Is Condemned By Pope

Scathingly Condemns Contraception Calls Abortion Murder In Treatise On Marriage.
Vatican City.—Age-old Roman Catholic doctrines of marriage and divorce were reaffirmed and emphasized in an encyclical today by Pope Pius XI. Among practices of frustration which he scathingly condemned was birth control.
Referring to birth control, which bishops of the Anglican church endorsed under certain circumstances at the Lambeth conference in London last summer, the pontiff condemned all such practices as "against the law of God and of nature."
The encyclical unequivocally calls abortion murder. The practice of sterilization of the physically fit is proclaimed to be against the law of God. The unfit, the pontiff says, should be dissuaded from marriage but he maintains that the body of every man is sacred and that public magistrates can be given no power to harm the body's integrity except where a grave crime has been committed.
The pontiff in explaining the purpose of the encyclical says that it is necessary "first of all that men's minds be illustrated with the true doctrine of Christ regarding it (matrimony), and secondly, that Christian spouses, the weakness of their wills strengthened by the internal grace of God, shape all their ways of thinking and of acting in conformity with that pure law of Christ so as to obtain true peace and happiness for themselves and for their families."
Deny Great Sanctity.
The encyclical calls attention that "a great number of men . . . either entirely ignore or shamelessly deny the great sanctity of Christian wedlock, or even, relying upon the false principles of a new and utterly perverse morality, too often trample it under foot."
"And since these most pernicious errors and depraved morals have begun to spread even amongst the faithful and are gradually gaining ground, in our office as—Christ's vicar upon earth and supreme shepherd and teacher we consider it our duty to keep the flock committed to our care from poisonous . . . pastures and preserve it from harm."

Did you know that Perry Sellers is running a shoe shop at the Bus Station? Well he is and a mighty handy place too.

Cutting Morrison For McNinch Work

Cam-(oufrage) Morrison.

Cam Morrison, being the wrongest man in the state to succeed the late Senator Overman, started off his senatorial career naturally enough on the wrong foot by voting for the confirmation of the unspeakable McNinch. The new senator's vote for this vicious defeatist was not accompanied by a defense of the Presidential appointee's Democracy, which had been challenged, nor even a mild exposition of his fitness or ability. His speech in explanation of his vote was an oblique eulogy of the Duke Power company, whose only connection with Elder McNinch, it seems, was through the senator, he being a big stockholder.
Just what Cam meant by his nebulous fulmination is anybody's guess. Just what Cam is apt to do or say next is anybody's guess. Only the second guessers can call the turn on Cam. His altogether unintelligible defense of McNinch leaves us still wondering what his definition of a Democrat is. Regardless of what we think his conception of a Democrat is or should be, we know beyond peradventure that a post on the power commission was the senator's own idea in rewarding treachery. If a $12,000 job is the market price for treason, what is the senator's quotation on fidelity?

What this blustering, blundering, blatherskite says is unimportant for he can be relied upon to say anything and everything so long as he thinks his words will carry a little favor here or gather a few votes there. What he does and what he did on the confirmation of McNinch is the important thing—especially to this all time candidate. By his vote for the "Buzard of Democracy" he insulted every loyal Democrat in the state, alienated his former supporters by the thousands and drove the last nails in his political coffin in 1932. It couldn't be otherwise in a party that punishes treason and rewards fidelity. What more shocking example of bad faith is needed to rate this man than his indefensible stand in this matter? After Max Gardner came out as being unequivocally and vehemently opposed to the confirmation of McNinch as a Democrat, it is reasonable to suppose that he would then have appointed Morrison to the senate had he known his views to be so diametrically opposed to his own and the views of every prominent Democrat in the state?
Oh well! They said last year that Simmons was unbeatable. Now, some of the timid, who have an awful respect for the money bags of Cam, say he can't be beaten. We say he will be beaten! We make this prophecy based on our belief in the down right decency of North Carolinians who will resent the candidacy of a man whose only equipment for office is ambition and the

If this doughy demagogue possesses an iota of element of statesmanship, he has not yet revealed it. An examination of his administration as governor shows one wild joy ride lasting four long years, for which the tax payers of the state are now paying—and paying through the nose! Had another Cam Morrison succeeded as governor the one and only Cam, the auctioneer's red flag would today be stiff in the breeze over Capitol Hill. It required all the ingenious heroics of the able Scot, who succeeded him, to convert the financial chaos of the state exchequer, as left by Morrison, into a condition of sanity and soundness. To examine the state's finances as left by Morrison and then to appreciate its condition as left by McLean is to almost prove a miracle! Morrison's mad administration almost drowned us in an ocean of red ink. McLean rescued us broken, but breathing!
Alas, the mantle of the revered and courtly Overman has fallen upon a dunghill. Let us Pray!
If Morrison was right in his denunciation of Simmons in 1928 then he was wrong in his support of McNinch in 1930. Of course, he may still be right. But if he is, then Judas Iscariot was the Nazarene's best friend and Benedict Arnold won the Revolutionary war. But then, Morrison may be well fitted to represent the sovereignty of a great state in the U. S. senate. If he is, then we arise to place in nomination for President of the Law and Order league that other great patriot, Signor Al Capone!—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.
If we ever get along to the point where we "want to forget it all," we believe we'll turn it over to the Wickersham Commission.—Detroit News.

GEE McGEE—

What Others Are Saying.
When the banks of Cuba began to burst a few days ago, the big banker up east rushed $35,000,000.00 over there by airplane, but when the banks of the south began to bust in 19 and 21, that some crowd rushed note collectors down this way with padlock instructions. And believe me, Judy, they got theirs.

Headline: "Over 250,000 persons in the soup line last Sunday in Detroit alone." Another headline: "Millions of bushels of wheat will possibly rot on the western farms because of the low price and few buyers." Still another headline: "Nearly all foreign countries have enacted a tariff measure that prohibits the import of American wheat: this is being done in retaliation of the recent Hoover flexible tariff act."

Cotton Letter.
New York, Jan. 13.—Liverpool came in 3 points lower to 5 points higher than due, thus forcing the nearby months to a new low for the week. Information reached Wall St. at 2:55 p. m., that Sallim Pasha of the Punjab was plotting up his path to the pig pen and intended to plant the said path to cotton, so this and 4 dead boll weevils in Alabama who voted against Heflin, put March contracts down to 10.01 in sympathy with Standard oil. At a recent "wear cotton" gathering, 97 per cent of the women present had on clothing made of 33 per cent rayon and silk. We advise carbolic acid.

The Book Publishers Research Institute of New York has asked syndicate and semi-syndicate writers to "hatch" a new word for the dictionary, the said word to refer to the bird who goes into your library alone or with somebody and borrows a book and never returns it. I offer the following words: Book-skunk, Bookgrafter, Booknabber, or Keeppook. And possibly Booksnitch. Some folks borrow books with the intention of fetching them back, but they are awfully careless with their intentions.

Farmer Smith says it will take him 6 months to get over Christmas and 5 years to get over 10-cent cotton, and possibly the balance of his life recovering from his wife's kinkles weekly visits. He even insinuated that he didn't think hard of the men who shot themselves for financial reasons, and further insisted that "down yonder" could not possibly be any worse than "up here." I think Mr. Smith had been eating spinach.
