The Bells Of Saint John.
"They (the people of Saint John) hear the bells of the past"
Yes, 'tis true we hear them.
Bells of fair renown
Hear them ringing as of old
In our sea-port town.
Where the tides meet on the lips,
And the ships go down.

Old bells, iron bells,
Bells from other seas
Clanging o'er the harbor bar
Drifting up the breeze,
Lifting on the flooding tide
Reeling to and fro,
Old bells herald bells
Of long ago.

Clear bells, brave bells
Lusty bells and true
Bells of Champlain and DeMontois
Bells that Cartier knew;
Broming bells of conquest,
Pealing to the fray
When the walls of old LaTour
Fell to Charissus.

Trade bells, strong bells
Bells of clipper days,
Bells besprayed by all the sea
Sounded in our ways;
Notes from stormy Hebrides
Tones from far Cathay,
Dulcet airs from Java's Isles,
Echoes from Bombay.
"Eight Bells" has sounded long.
A new waltz is set,
But 'tis well for us to listen
And hear the ringing yet,
Lest we lose their notes of courage,
And too soon forget.

— H. A. Cody.
