How Wealthy Women Help Gigolos Get Rich During Florida Season

Penniless Young Men, Hitch Hike To Florida, Often Leave At End Of Season In Own Cars.

By Helen Van Hoy Smith, In Atlanta Journal.

Just a gigolo! But if you have tears, make no preparations to shed them now, for gigolos in Palm Beach, Miami Beach and other southern resorts are in the plutocratic class.

In spite of the alleged depression and alleged unemployment conditions existing over the United States, the business of being a gigolo is increasing in popularity and in financial returns. After interviewing several persons prominent in business and social life in Palm Beach and Miami Beach, some interesting facts concerning gigolos were unearthed.

In the first place, there seems to be different stages of gigolism. There are some-time gigolos, all-time gigolos and the occasional gigolo.

And here is a story the truth of which is vouched for by unimpeachable sources: There was a young man in New York who had lost his job. He didn't want to have to sell apples. His room rent was due, and his tailor was beginning to inclose personal notes with the "Please Reimburse" statements.

So George decided that he would hock his heavy overcoat and hitch hike to Florida and pick up a job. Just any job, even if it were in a soda fountain. George had a good education, and was gallant and good looking.

When he arrived in Palm Beach he found that all of the jobs had been taken, and then, one night in a sandwich establishment, he met a chauffeur who remarked that the lady he drove for was a night club hound, but had no escort to take her about. He said that she was on the lookout for a young chap who was a gentleman who would take her out to dances.

This gave George an idea. An interview was arranged. Money changed hands. George served himself with a new tuxedo, garnished it with a carnation and in a short time found himself in a good-paying business.

The lady had no designs on George. She just wanted a dependable escort. She was a widow, and utterly respectable. She liked to go out about two evenings a week. On the other evenings she discreetly let some other friends know about George.

He received $10 and up each evening in addition to having all of the expenses paid. He is not, however, thinking of being "just a gigolo" for keeps. He didn't get to look at a young girl all season. His employers saw to it that he didn't meet any damsels much under 50.

But he saved money, and after a season or two he hopes to be independently wealthy.

Another young man came to Miami Beach with the avowed intention of spending the season at the expense of others, and has succeeded handsomely. He is good looking and got his fare to Florida by posing for a tooth paste ad. He has a gently flattering "line" which he uses artistically. He dances like a streak, and, under his expert guidance, his partners, no matter how hefty, seem to float on and on and on, like a wind-blown feather.

This young man has no idea of getting out of so lucrative a business. He receives tips on races, on the markets, and is well on the way to independent wealth. He has the reputation of never spending a nickel of his own money, but maneuvers affairs so that his wealthy feminine patrons consider it a compliment to be allowed to foot the bills. Or, rather, to hand him the money so as not to embarrass him. If some man doesn't murder this young man soon, he'll be one of our growing list of bloated bondholders.

Gigolos are not always young men. Many are in their thirties and forties. They are nimble of foot and of wit, not hampered by any too much pride, and are willing to live and let live at some woman's expense. No one knows much about their pasts. Some of them have lovely alliances with bootleggers and even with jewel thieves.

It seems that the entire matter of gigolos hinges on the economic principle of demand and supply that rules the world. It appears that there are never enough dancing men to supply the demand. And the demand is growing constantly, with the emancipation of woman, and all that. No longer does the grandma of 40 or so have to sit on the shelf and swing her feet. Many a married woman has to pay for an escort to take her about at night, while her husband nods over the newspaper or reads detective stories. Husbands, especially after they have borne the yoke for ten years or more, are much more addicted to bedroom slippers the radio than to the lady. But Thou has rebelled, and hence the gigolo.

In Florida resorts the desire to go hence at night is almost uncontrollable. There is something in the atmosphere that seems to light strange fires in the hearts of matrons who had thought that romance was only something you read about. The night club orchestra, too are responsible for more than they realize. Many a woman with fifteen arches has rising spirits; and under the thrill of the music's throbs, all unmindful of her 189 pounds, wants to put a rose between her teeth, snap of her fingers, and go tangling about to the teasing tempo of old Madrid. A Palm Beach orchestra has the power to bring back vividly memories of things that never were. Under the magic of the melody, poignant pictures of old Spain haunt people who have never been there.

But what use have music and the call of the fleshpots in general if money will buy anything, why be man-less? Most of the gigolo-ing in Florida is harmless enough. The dear ladies, past their youth, want to have their fling. They want to be sure they aren't missing anything.

And then there's the story about the lonely elderly man who had been taking a flapper about with him to palaces of the dance. And there was the lonely dowager who had been paying a man some twenty years her junior to act as cavalier. The four met, and real romances developed. All are now living happily ever afterward. The older couple set the younger ones up in business. Mist like a fairy tale, isn't it? Only it happens to be true.

And then there's the true story of the English lord. Let us call him Lord Whosit. He is said to be a renaissance man, the black sheep of a proud old British family. He is now an old man, and of late had been employed to sweep-out the bathhouse of a casino near Miami Beach. He lived there the year round; a fine figure of a man, well over six feet, straight as an arrow, and possessing a handsome set of whiskers which he wore parted in the middle. Tourists, only knowing that he had a title, which by the way is genuine enough, flocked about him. For years he has been invited to parties and affairs of all sorts. People do love to see their names in the paper, coupled with that of a title. Lord Whosit wore excellent clothes, and they were all given to him by various admirers, both masculine and feminine. Just the other day he married a woman of wealth, who will be flattered when she is referred to as Lady Whosit. But the casino manager mourns the loss of a good sweeper. It isn't a casino frequented by the wealthy, and he got Lord Whosit for $12 a week. His society friends probably didn't dream that he pushed the broom about the bath house in off hours.

Now that the season is over many of the gigolos have departed for other climes. Many of the women who employ them in resorts would scorn to do such in the home town. Not every one in Florida is from New York. Cities all over the nation are represented. Many of these women who hire gigolos are most estimable; prominent in church and club work at home and living exemplary lives. They are certainly entitled to pick a scarlet hibiscus blossom in Florida if they wish to.

And very few have a romantic attachment for the man who escorts them to night clubs. It is all purely business. Here and there, of course, some woman will develop a fondness for the temporary boy friend, but these cases are the exception rather than the rule. Most of the lone women are widows or at least detached for the time. In some cases, however a husband tired from playing golf all day, will pay the way of a young man to see that his wife has a good time.

Those of the gigolos who haven't departed are remaining in Florida to recuperate from the strenuous season. They sun themselves on the beach and keep as far away from dance music as possible.

Many are consulting real estate men, and are buying up mortgages at a discount. Some have bought new automobiles to drive up north in. Some are preparing to work at other resorts.

Let it be said that few of the better-known society women employ the gigolo. But there are large numbers of wealthy women, unknown, unhonored and unsung in the social directories, who flock to Florida, and who want pseudo romance well enough to pay for it.

A few ugly cases have become known and some sinister phases of blackmail schemes have been worked by gigolos, but mostly it's all just for the moment, and nobody's hurt.

NATURE'S DEPOSIT Nitrate Of Soda Away Down In Chile

Chile holds one of the economic wonders of the world, because it has the ability to supply natural fertilizers for millions of acres of farm land for decades to come. While man is struggling with his conservation problems, huge mountains of the pure Chilean nitrate lies untouched yet, and are there waiting to compete with the best artificial products that man has yet devised.

It waits as a large medium of exchange of trade between the United States and Chile which would naturally lend to further development of South American trade which we are now in danger of losing.

Nature's Gold and Silver, Copper and other mineral products have not been replaced by synthetic processes. Gold is still Gold; Silver is still Silver. CHILEAN NITRATE, nature's own natural fertilizers, are not likely to yield in quality to synthetic compounds.

True comparative tests prove the truth of this and the best is the cheapest in the long run. Right now is the time to invest your dollar and watch it bring back five. Fresh stock at all ports and I am ready to answer your call for both Champion Brand and Old Style. Forty eight hour service. It's all Chilean, and I am your Broker and Dealer, so call me at my expense.
