

Paris To Get Herrick Bust

Made from wood taken out of the White House, this bust of Myron T. Herrick, late Ambassador to France, is to be presented to the city of Paris. The bust was turned over to a committee of U. S. Mayors during a banquet at New York, on the eve of their departure for France. Above left to right, are: Mayor G. L. Baker, of Portland, Ore.; Parmley Herrick, son of the late Ambassador, and Jules Henry, diplomatic representative of M. Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States.

Knows His Shots

Joseph "Joey" Thebault (above) may be only five years old, but he certainly is the golfing wonder of his home town, Patehuck, R. I. Despite his tender years, "Joey" knows all the shots in the game. He started swinging a club when two years old and his best score to date over the course where his father is pro is 65. The golfing prodigy will be entered in the Rhode Island junior championship this summer.

Student Makes Stirring Plea For Future Of Boiling Springs College

The following oration by Carl Latham, member of the senior class of Boiling Springs junior college, made during the commencement program there last week attracted much attention:

Last year about this time the friends of this institution were doubtful as to whether or not Boiling Springs would live. At that time I chose as the subject of my speech "Shall Boiling Springs Live or Die." But today all the doubts have vanished. Instead of doubt there is faith; instead of sorrow there is joy and instead of defeat we see victory. Therefore, I have chosen as my subject today a more pleasant topic, "Boiling Springs College Shall Never Die."

Boiling Springs college will never die because—she was conceived through the Divine Spirit. She is nurtured by the earnest prayers of a great people and she is under-girded by the eternal word of God. These facts have made dynamic the purpose of her friends and have implanted a consuming passion in their hearts for the perpetuation of this school. So long as there is virtue in prayer and power in communion with God; and so long as His word constitutes the ground of our hope—just so long shall she live.

Boiling Springs college will never die because of the natural resources at her command. This school is located in one of the most favored sections of the whole south. No other Baptist school is backed by better blood, better soil, more beautiful scenery and a more substantial citizenship. We are situated close to the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains, where the soil is rich and the air is pure; where the fertile valleys and the rolling hills are kissed by the temperate winds in summer and mellowed by the soft snows of winter. We are situated in the county of Cleveland that gave the world the Dixons, the Webbs, the Gardeners, and a number of others who have occupied high places in church and state.

Boiling Springs college shall never die because we have a great people. They are great from the standpoint of blood. Less than one percent of the people who live in the territory of Boiling Springs college are foreign born. They represent the best blood of three nationalities and it is a significant fact that most of the original settlers who took up homesteads along these streams in Western Piedmont North Carolina are still here in the person of their posterity. There are more land owners in this county than any other county in the state. We have over 36,000 land owners. Yes, our people are a great people from the standpoint of blood.

They are also great from the standpoint of religion. This section has never been contaminated with foreign religions. It is free from the baneful influences of city life. There are less religious cults here than in almost any region of the United States. There are ten or fifteen big brick country churches within a 15 miles radius of Boiling Springs and most of these churches have standard Sunday schools and B. Y. P. U's. They have services from two to four times per month. They are also on the principal highways and within easy access to the people. Some of the ablest and most consecrated preachers of the state are pastors of these churches and every one of them to the man is loyal to Boiling Springs college. These men of God are leading over 120 Baptist churches in challenging programs of kingdom building and in these churches are over 40,000 Baptist; the great majority of whom believe in Christian education and are loyal to Boiling Springs college.

Ladies and gentlemen such a great people as this, who trust in a great God and who are molded and transformed by a great religion will build a great junior college. No Boiling Springs shall never die.

She shall never die because she has justified her right to live "By their fruits you shall know them." The men who have gone out from this institution have filled important positions in colleges and universities and many of them have gone to bear the torch of truth to the regions beyond the sea. Many of them are pastors in great educational and industrial centers. Many hundreds today who are helping to lift this old world closer to God got their first vision right here in this school. Hundreds of girls have gone out to sweeten homes, nurse the suffering and give their all to the highest service of humanity. It was here within these sacred walls that they first saw the light that illuminated the way and heard the voice that called them on.

My friends, I owe more to this school than to any other earthly agency except my own home. The most eventful, precious and fruitful years of my life up to the present are the past six years that I have spent at Boiling Springs. You took me when I was an awkward, poorly prepared, and ignorant country lad and during these six years you have been kind, thoughtful, and patient toward me. It pains my heart at the thought of leaving you at this commencement. Permit me to say that wherever I shall go or whatever my lot may be in years to come, if I ever amount to anything for my God and for my country it will be due to the contact that I have had with this noble institution and when I say this, I speak the sentiments of hundreds of others who have had like privilege.

Boiling Springs college has justified her right to live also because of her record in 1930-1931. During one brief year more than $10,000 has been raised by devoted friends to maintain this school. Also during the past three years over $50,000 has been raised by the Kings Mountain and Sandy Run associations. This amount was raised in spite of one of the worst depressing financial situations in the history of our country. Does this not, my friends, justify her standing erect and unblushingly facing the future with greater confidence and taking her place among the other fourteen leading junior colleges of our great state?

The year of 1930-1931 is remarkable in the history of this college for another reason. For the past two years Coach Rackley, with his "Bull Dogs" has snatched the state championship in football. Under his superb leadership and fine training in the science of football, our team has been wearing the belt of victory for two successive years. This record is unsurpassed by any other junior college of the same enrollment and opportunities in North Carolina.

But even a greater victory in some respects, has been won this year by our college. We were not only superior in brawn and muscle but we proved to be more efficient than the other junior colleges in debate. This spring our college entered the state triangular debate. All four of our teams consisting of four boys and four girls won every debate in which they engaged and thus captured another major championship. It was a victorious hour in this chapel when on April the fourteenth the final debate of the series was held and the final victory was won by our girls. The old college bell which had for twenty-five years called us to classes and to our academic duties, rang out the good news of victory in music which stirred our hearts with even greater devotion for the college which we love so well.

This is a great record for a college only three years old—a record unsurpassed and unequalled by any other. But, ladies and gentlemen, our records in athletics, in debate, and in greater endowments, as great as they are, will not guarantee our college against failure for secure her against the blight of infidelity and spiritual death. We would not underestimate these two major championships in one year nor would we minimize the value of great endowments in money and property. But my friends, the only thing that will secure the foundation and safeguard the future and give permanence to our college is a great Christian ideal. An ideal which is found only in Christ and which is realized only when He is enthroned in class rooms, on the campus, and in the hearts of students and faculty. This is the ideal worthy of any denominational Christian college for "In Him was life and the life is the light of men." Such an ideal will serve as the "pillar" of cloud by day and of fire by night" to lead us safely through every red sea of difficulty and out of every wilderness of despair and finally into the promised land of real educational achievements. (Boiling Springs shall not die but shall become imbued with this ideal until such an atmosphere shall be created that the sons and daughters of this institution shall go out into the world to serve, to comfort, and to lead the world to the feet of Him who died for us.)

$1,000 Given To Marion Hospital

Magion, May 22.—A gift of $1,000 has been offered to the Marion General hospital by an anonymous donor to be used in paying off its indebtedness, provided that the trustees raise enough money to pay off the balance of the $2,100 owed and puts into effect some scheme for reopening the institution.

J. Q. Gilkey announced the fact to the Kiwanis club, with the result that much discussion of the matter was carried on by the members. L. J. P. Cutlar stated that the trustees of the hospital are to meet in the near future and go over the plans suggested for the reopening of the hospital and the continuance of its operation. Until then, nothing definite will be known about its future.
