TWINKLES

Almost 200 Shelby school children were neither absent nor tardy a single day during the school year just closed, and over 200 made the honor roll for the entire year. That is a record worthy of commendation.

Bishop Cannon appears to follow the creed of turn the other cheek and then do some smacking yourself. After facing a series of charges and criticisms he has filed suit against some of his critics. There's no way, it seems, to keep the good bishop out of the newspaper headlines—and comment.

The reunion, or home coming feature proposed for the county fair this fall should be supported by every organization and citizen in Cleveland county. Do your part now by inviting relatives and friends who live elsewhere. Get the invitations to them and keep the reminders going. Everyone will enjoy the fair week event that much more.

Former President Calvin Coolidge, it is reported, is getting tired of writing a daily newspaper column and may, as a result, give up writing altogether. That's what New England thrift will do for you. Many of us newspaper folks became tired years ago but we do not happen to be so fixed as to be able to kick the works overboard and quit.

HOT WEATHER TIPS

MANY PEOPLE ARE NOT fond of the summer season because they claim they are not as healthy as during the cooler seasons. Whose fault is it?

Here are some tips passed out by the health department: Eat less, with plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables and less meat and fried foods on the menu.

Wear clothing light in both texture and color.

Sleep regularly.

Exercise but avoid strenuous exertion.

Don't try to acquire a coat of tan in one day.

On the point of food, the service recommended ice cream highly and advised plenty of milk and fruit juices, with six to eight glasses of cool water daily. A special warning was issued for picknicking city dwellers against tempting looking springs in which deadly germs might lurk.

THE LAMB'S MARY STILL LIVING

MARY HAD A LITTLE LAMB and everywhere that Mary went—

Who has not heard the story in rhyme of the little school girl of the Welsh countryside who had a little lamb that followed her to school? A big percentage of those acquainted with the antics of Mary and her little lamb have had the idea, no doubt, that both were fictitious. They were not. The little lamb has long since trotted on to where good little lambs, and mischievous little lambs, go, but the Mary of the lamb story still lives.

She is Mrs. Mary Hughes and she recently celebrated her 90th birthday at her home, Ty Issa farm, Llangollen, North Wales. She is old, blind and rheumatic now, but she is still a heroine to children because a poetess, Miss Sara Duell, chanced to be at Mary's school 80 years ago when the little lamb followed her there.

GIVE THEM LONGER SENTENCES

ANOTHER PROBLEM FOR county officials.

On July 1 the State takes over all highways, county and otherwise, and will likewise work all convicts. But notice comes from Raleigh of one exception: convicts who have terms less than two months will not be worked by the State forces. What is to be done with the numerous convicts in this county and elsewhere who are sent up for 30 days? Our guess is that a goodly percentage of the convicts on the local chain gang are serving 30-day sentences. Each week the county court sends out other 30-day men. Hereafter, with the State refusing to work them, it seems as if the suggested policy will be for the counties to place the short-term convicts in the county jail and feed them. Such a procedure will be costly to the county and to the taxpayers. The average criminal will relish lying up in jail and being fed regularly; to him it will be a treat instead of punishment.

If we were asked what to do about it—which we'll not likely be—our tip would be to inform the county court to pass no sentences less than 60 days. Fine them up to that point, and if the fine isn't considered enough punishment, make it 60 days, forgetting that there are terms of shorter duration.

MAKING IT STYLISH

IT IS STYLE THAT COUNTS—or, rather, clicks, to use a modern street term, with the ladies.

There isn't any doubt but what the displays of cotton gowns and cotton goods put on by merchants of the two Carolinas last week did much to stimulate new interest in the wearing of cotton. From Myrtle Beach, the South Carolina playground, however, comes an innocent little item that should do much to add even more interest to the wear-more-cotton movement. At a recent ball at Myrtle Beach it was noticed by an observer that a charming young lady gowned in a handsome cotton gown had more dance partners than any other girl on the floor. "She looked," the observer said, "like a million dollars" in the cotton gown she made herself.

There's a real boost for old King Cotton a'tottering on his throne. Make cotton stylish, fashionable, and there will be no great trouble in getting cotton worn. Added proof as to the attractiveness of cotton gowns was shown in the group of handsomely gowned women at the cotton ball held at the Hotel Charles, here, last week. Those competing for the prizes offered by local merchants and manufacturers could not have looked better in silks and satins.

Cotton will stage a real comeback when fashion says so—and not before. Society should turn up its nose and switch a cold shoulder on those not gowned in cotton. Society's dictates as to what is the thing to wear will be followed, as usual, in all walks of life—and the trick will be turned. How simple, yes!

AN OPPORTUNITY HERE

A CANNING FACTORY for Cleveland county has been a goal The Star has for years hoped the county would attain. Nearby counties are taking to the idea and will, we venture to predict, meet with success. The cannery and curb market are enterprises that should go hand in hand.

In this modern business world there are few fields in which competition is not strong. Any business man would welcome the opportunity to have at his beck a market with millions behind it each year and a market that is not full of competition. Such are the prospects of a canning factory in this immediate section.

North Carolina people spend millions of dollars each year for canned goods that are canned in other States. We have hundreds of farmers looking for new sources of income. Put the two together—and there you are!

Ask any man, or woman, and he will tell you that he would be glad to pay the same price, or more, for fruits, jams, preserves, and vegetables canned as mother put them up than what he pays for similar canned products shipped in here from other States.

As the curb market is built up, why not a cooperative cannery to take care of the surplus. Once they realize that there is a market for a surplus the farmers and farm wives of Cleveland county will see to it that there is a surplus.

A good move for somebody to make.

A NEW SCENIC ROUTE

COL. WADE HARRIS, Charlotte Observer editor, should list a new strip of highway for his next motor trip in the mountains. We refer to Route No. 28 between Highway 20 at Bat Cave and Highway 10 at Old Fort.

Col. Harris has been one of the best boosters for scenic sections of North Carolina's mountain country in reviewing in his paper the wonderful sights to be seen along the beautiful highways which were once only mountain trails.

The 20-mile stretch between Bat Cave and Old Fort will attract the eye of the motorist more perhaps because of the fact it is a new road insofar as motor travel is concerned and is not marred by billboards and other eye-sores of heavily travelled routes. Along the winding mountain road, which is now being worked and top-soiled by the State, the motorist sees virginal mountains and forests, mountain homes tucked among the green forests on the steep grades and almost hidden in cool retreats of the coves nearby rushing mountain streams. Just after crossing the peak of the mountain, not far from one of the highest peaks in this section, the motorist comes upon Camp Elliott, the Y. M. C. A. summer encampment, and a beautiful six-acre mountain lake. It is here that scores of youths gather each summer for their vacations under Y. M. C. A. supervision and in a spot almost isolated from the hurry and rush of the outside world. It is one of the most scenic retreats in the North Carolina mountains, just one of the many that tourists and vacationists will wander upon this summer as they seek new spots of interest. This strip of highway, along which nature is in its primeval state and where filling stations and hot-dog stands would be a curiosity, is only a short motor drive from the Shelby section.

Don't Walk the Floor Everytime Baby Cries

There's Usually a Basic Cause for the Infant's Disturbed Slumber—Find It and Correct It, Advises Authority, and Don't Coddle and Spoil Him

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE of the favorite stunts of the cartoonist is to picture the wailing child, keeping his parents busy at night. He shows the mother or father pacing the floor and madly praying for the crying to stop.

Such pictures speak the truth, even though they are considerably exaggerated. At any rate they teach a lesson which may be applied today.

A child should not be taken out of the crib merely because it cries. If the baby sleeps lightly, awakens often, there is a reason for it. The thing to do is to find the cause and correct it.

When the baby is uncomfortable at night, it may be because of over-excitement during the day. It may have played too vigorously or too roughly, late in the day. Over-excitement should be avoided at all times. Regardless of the age of the child, overstimulation is a bad thing. It is certainly advisable that after four o'clock all play be quiet and restful, rather than exciting.

Frequently, the child will be disturbed at night because he is wet and cold, or too warm. Something may be annoying him, as a misplaced pin or wrinkled bed clothing.

Make a careful examination before leaving the child for the night. Make sure it is not lying in a cramped position.

If the child is restless, it may be because the diaper is too tight. Make the necessary adjustments, but do not take the child from the crib. Don't provide material for the proverbial cartoon illustrating the parent as he walks the floor.

The child's bedroom, just as the adult's room, should have plenty of fresh air. The room should be quiet. No light should shine on the baby's eyes. The child should be well covered and protected from draughts.

When the baby is restless every night and not sleeping well, a cool bath or a warm one, depending upon the weather, will promote sleep. During the summer months, a tub bath just before bedtime will give great relief.

As a rule, most young mothers are over-anxious. They hate to leave the child alone. Please remember that if the baby has been properly fed and diapered, if the bed is properly adjusted, the windows and lights taken care of, the child may be and should be left alone.

Permit the child to go to sleep by itself. Never go back merely because it cries. Once you do so, the child will expect it of you and will cry again.

Dr. Copeland

Your Child's Dysentery

Need not be at all dangerous if treated upon first symptoms. Mothers for more than a generation have put an end to stomach and bowel disturbances of their children by keeping handy a bottle of Anti-Ferment. It settles the stomach, soothes the pains, prevents violent paroxysms, tends to regulate the bowels and in the end may avoid Colitis and more serious troubles. It is harmless and non-narcotic but a relief for Dysentery, and Diarrhea and digestive disorders due to upset stomach and bowels. It may be obtained in separate formulae, for adults 75c or for children 60c at all drug stores. Keep it ready for emergencies. adv.

Consider your Adam's Apple!!* Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Place your finger on your Adam's Apple. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords.

What is the effect of modern Ultra Violet Rays upon tobacco? Dr. E. E. Free, one of America's well-known scientists, who was retained by us to study Lucky Strike's manufacturing process, addressing the Illuminating Engineering Society, said:

"The essential effect of the Ultra Violet is the production of better tobacco and of cigarettes regarded by virtually all smokers who have tested them as milder and with a lesser tendency to cause throat irritation."

Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette that employs Ultra Violet Rays in connection with its exclusive "TOASTING" Process—the only cigarette that brings you the benefits of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process which expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos.
