HEART

Remember the pure machine. That brief and dogged thing, your heart. When fear is windy at your bones, Or when your lips are wet on lips, Remember it. Asking no leave to throb And throbbing, still unconcerned With purposes beyond its stroke Remember what it is that drives You to your grief and joy, And how it thunders, desolate, as waves. And stars, remote as south wind through your heart. —MacKnight Black

Plan Additional Veterans' Bonds

Plans are now being shaped for issuance of a part of the second $2,000,000 in bonds for loans to veterans of the World war authorized by the 1929 general assembly, subject to the approval of the voters of the state which was given at the 1930 election.
 The 1931 general assembly was quite chary about bonds, limiting its authorization to $400,000 for a new State prison and the Gardner administration has proceeded on the same policy. In fact, nothing has been said about the veterans' loan bonds and there have been intimations from time to time that nothing would be done about the issue, at least for the present.

Closed Banks Open Up In North Carolina

(Special to The Star.) Raleigh, June 16.—While 11 North Carolina state banks have been closed by the chief state bank examiner and his successor, the commissioner of banking, since the first of the year, 28 of those previously closed have reopened for business. Gurney P. Hood, commissioner of banking, said today: More than half of those reopened in the five months were banks that were forced to close when the big Central Bank and Trust Co. of Asheville, closed its doors early last winter, carrying with it many smaller banks in the western part of the state. All of the reopened banks again started business before Mr. Hood assumed his new post two weeks ago when the general assembly, of which he was a member, adjourned. Two of them were allowed to open by Word H. Wood, acting commissioner of banks, and the other 24 by John Mitchell, chief state bank examiner for the N. C. corporation commission.

Commissioner Hood states that it is much harder for a bank to open since the ratification May 13 of "an act defining the conditions under which banks which have been taken possession of by the commissioner of banks may reopen for the transaction of business," and none have been reopened since it was enacted. The stringent requirements for reopening Commissioner Hood explained, included restoration of impaired capital, assurance of safety of new money deposited, and that there is public necessity for the reopening of a closed bank.
 The acreage to soybeans in Harnett county has been increased by ten times this season, reports county agent J. O. Anthony.
