Sunlight and Growing Child

Like a Flower, Children Thrive and Blossom Under Rays of Sun, Says Authority.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D., U. S. Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A BUNDANT sunlight is of tremendous importance in the development of an infant. Like a flower, the child thrives and blossoms in its presence and withers in its absence.

Dr. Copeland is absolutely necessary for the proper growth of a baby. Though food may be plentiful, without sunlight the body cannot properly utilize the food. It is a well known fact that absence of sunlight or its substitute, cod liver oil, produces a condition in children known as rickets. This disease is characterized by poor development of the bones of the body, by flabby muscles of the body and marked undernourishment. Years before the actual value of sunlight was understood, it was customary to feed cod liver oil to all children. Today, with our knowledge of the ultra-violet ray and the place of the vitamins, very little cod liver oil is necessary.

Sun Baths Indoors
It is important to remember that sunlight is only beneficial when the rays actually reach the skin. Window glass and clothing keep out the beneficial rays. When tanning of the skin occurs, one can be assured that the beneficial rays of the sun have reached the body.

Sun baths may be given to an infant as early as the third or fourth week. The child should not be exposed too suddenly. The first treatment may be for three minutes to the front of the body and three minutes to the back. The length of exposure may be gradually increased until the baby has a coat of tan. Then for a half hour, or more he may frolic in the sun without any clothes. I am often asked as to whether or not the sunlight is injurious to the eyes. As long as the rays do not strike the eyes directly there is no injury. When the child is very young, as in the first month of life, it is well to keep the face turned away from the sun while giving a sun bath. Also, please remember that a sun bath may be given indoors. The child is placed in a crib near the open window. The crib is so placed that the sun rays fall upon the child.

Ohio Death Chair to Get Its First Woman Victim

For the First Time in State History, Ohio Justice Imposed the Supreme Penalty on a Woman When It Sentenced Mrs. Maude Lowther.

When Mrs. Maude Lowther, 23-year-old West Virginia mountain girl of Indian ancestry, met and fell in love with Tribby Smith, trucking contractor, of Ashland, Ohio, one of those triangles was formed that nearly always have the same inevitable end. For Smith, already married and dissatisfied with his wife, planted seeds of murder in the heart of his new love, which had a climax in the shooting to death of Mrs. Clara Smith, his wife, by the half-savage mountain girl. Now Smith is awaiting execution and Mrs. Lowther has been sentenced to death in the electric chair, the first woman on whom the State of Ohio has ever imposed the supreme penalty.

Detailed Population Figures Given North Carolina; Shown 55 Per Cent Males Gainfully Work

Seventeen Percent of Women Gainfully Employed. Largest Number Employed in Mills.

Statistics for the 1930 population of North Carolina classified as urban and rural, and by sex, color, age, marital condition, illiteracy, etc., have been issued by the bureau of the census in a bulletin (Population—second series) entitled, "Composition and Characteristics of the Population." This is a pamphlet of 74 pages, 9 by 11 1-2 inches, consisting mainly of statistical tables. The urban population of North Carolina in 1930 was 809,847, representing an increase of 319,477, or 65.2 percent, since 1920. The urban population formed 25.5 per cent of the total population (3,170,276), as compared with 19.2 per cent in 1920. Urban population, as defined by the census bureau, is in general that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, the remainder being classified as rural.

Rural Population.
The rural population of North Carolina in 1930 was 2,360,429, comprising 1,579,220 persons living on farms, and 781,209 not living on farms, representing as a whole an increase of 291,676, or 14.1 percent, as compared with the rural population in 1929 (2,068,753). The rural farm population, taken alone, increased 97,274, or 6.5 percent, between 1920 and 1930, while the rural-non-farm population increased 194,402, or 34.2 per cent. Of the entire population of North Carolina, 70.5 per cent are white, and practically all of the white population are native, there being only three-tenths of one per cent foreign born. Likewise, of the native white population, nearly all are of native parentage, there being only six-tenths of one per cent of foreign or mixed parentage. Persons born in England formed 13.7 per cent of the 8,788 persons comprising the foreign-born white population of North Carolina. More than one-half of the foreign-born white population have been naturalized.

Increase of 24 Per Cent.
The population of North Carolina as a whole increased 611,153, or 23 1/2 per cent, between 1920 and 1930, and of this increase 70.4 per cent were in the age groups under 35 years. The number of children under 1 year of age showed an increase of 3.8 per cent, while the entire group under 5 years increased 9.0 per cent. The proportion of the population 7 to 13 years of age attending school increased from 87.0 per cent in 1921 to 93.0 per cent in 1930, and of those 14 and 15 years of age, the proportion increased from 77.4 per cent in 1920 to 79.1 per cent in 1930. The percentage of illiteracy in the population 10 years of age and over decreased from 13.1 to 10.0.

Half Males Employed.
There were 1,141,129 gainful workers in the state in 1930, of whom 867,807 were males, representing 55.1 per cent of the male population, and 273,322 were females, representing 17.1 per cent of the female population. Including both farm owners and farm laborers, agriculture employed 499,923, or more than one-third of all the gainful workers of the state. Of the 227,561 farm laborers, 133,637, or 58.7 per cent, were unpaid family workers. The various manufacturing and mechanical industries employed 286,245 persons, the largest numbers being in cotton mills, in the building industry, and in cigar and tobacco factories. There were 53,968 persons engaged in transportation, 99,193 in trade, including banking and insurance; 13,483 in public service (not elsewhere classified); 55,702 in professional service; and 101,436 in domestic and personal service.

In the bulletin which has just been issued there are a number of features not contained in the 1920 census reports, including a presentation of the number of gainful workers in each of about 90 industry groups, by counties; detailed age data for counties; a classification of the population of each town by color, sex, age, etc., and an extensive presentation of statistics for the rural-farm population and the rural-non-farm population. A copy of this bulletin for North Carolina may be obtained by writing to the bureau of the census, Washington, D. C.
