Wedding Of Interest In Greenville Saturday.

A wedding of interest to friends here took place in Greenville, S. C., on Saturday afternoon at 6 o'clock when Miss Frances Hendrick became the bride of Mr. R. S. Agnew in a simple ceremony at the Buncombe Street Methodist church with Rev. Mr. Turnipseed officiating. Mrs. E. M. Meares, of Greenville, furnished the wedding music, using the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as a processional and Mendelssohn's wedding march as a recessional. "O Promise Me" was softly played during the ceremony. The young couple was accompanied to Greenville by Miss Veta Hendrick, sister of the bride. Miss Attie Mae Eskridge, Miss Elsie Hardin and Mr. Oscar Morgan, who were the only witnesses Mr. A. W. Agnew, of Greenville, brother of the groom, and Mrs. Agnew were the only attendants. of brown and white and wore a shoulder corsage of pink roses and lilies of the valley.

Immediately after the wedding the wedding party and witnesses returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Agnew where a three-course buffet supper was served. Citizens Here Wonder If Road Hoodoo Remains to take advantage of political "pull." Such was the situation that Governor Gardner could hardly inject himself into the picture and other political leaders were held back in a similar manner. Many citizens complained that as a result of this political handicap Cleveland in the road program was treated little better than a "red headed stepchild." Every move on the part of citizens of any section to secure needed highway routing in the county was usually branded as a move for favoritism.

Then came the reorganization of the highway system with the state taking over all county highways. It was hoped here then that under the new program and system the county might receive additional roads of the improved type. But once again, as numerous citizens contend, Cleveland, tied down by political handicaps, was shunted to the edge. In the creation of the five major divisions of the new system, this county was placed in Division E with headquarters at Asheville. Cleveland is on the extreme eastern rim of the division, just out of the D division beginning at Gaston and just in the E division.

The next move was to sub-divide the five divisions into districts. Division E was divided into five districts. Cleveland was placed in District 25 and is now on the extreme rim of the district as well as of the division. If division and district lines are observed in the new highway order, local citizens fear that the unfavorable location of the county will prove a handicap.

What Was Meant?

Division headquarters at Asheville are a considerable distance from Shelby. The possible handicap of this location first drew comment here following the Kiwanis meeting last week in which County Manager A. E. Clime stated that he had been informed by the assistant division engineer at the Asheville headquarters that "they knew very little about Cleveland in the Asheville office." This statement since it became generally known here has not been gleefully received. Cleveland people are inclined to believe that the old hoodoo is holding forth. Under the 10-district plan, before the highway system was reorganized, this county could seldom gain the ear and attention of the district commissioner. When highway 18 was surfaced with tar and gravel, giving the county its first surfaced road other than the county-seat to county-seat Highway 20 route, the lower section of the county was not pleased by the routing made by the commission engineers. It is still a "sore" topic of conversation today. A mass meeting with the highway commissioners in attendance was held at the court house. Citizens and their attorneys attempted to show how a certain routing would be more beneficial by passing through a more densely populated section. When the hearing was over with the commission engineers refusing to revise their routing plan, the commissioners immediately endorsed the route which many citizens of lower Cleveland opposed. The road was built along that route.

Today the county has two modern roads, the paved Highway 20 and the surfaced Highway 18, together with a strip of surfaced road east from Shelby to Gaston county, forming a double link to Lincolnton by Cherryville.

There is an overwhelming sentiment for a paved highway from Shelby to Marion by way of Polkville and Golden Valley. Whether

County Court Has Two Busy Sessions

Negro of Unusual Name Sentenced. Revolting Matter Disposed Of.

In county court this morning Judge Maurice R. Weathers handed out a 60-day sentence to a negro who bears the most peculiar name in the county. His name is James Several-Thousand-Dollars-Until-I-Die Morris and he was given a sentence for an assault on a colored woman. He is a native of the Charleston section and declares the name above was the one given him at birth. He has been in the court before.

The county court had busy sessions both Saturday and Monday, but today's session ended before noon and was not as long as the usual Monday docket of week-end cases.

Evidence and details in one of the cases heard Saturday were the most revolting ever heard in a public trial here. A negro man, beyond middle age, and a white woman of the Lawndale section were charged with illicit relations. The technical guilt of the defendants was not proven in a convincing matter but revolting conditions were revealed about the woman's home in the alleged association of the woman and her young daughter with men, both black and white, according to testimony of neighbors and officers. The negro was ordered out of the state and the woman was ordered to enter a sanatorium. The court room was cleared of women, young boys and girls and all negroes before the evidence was heard.

A second hearing of the case centering around the finding of a bottle of whiskey in the court house last week, said to belong to a white trusty, was taken up Saturday. The trusty, T. F. Green, who was working as caretaker on the court square, stated on the stand that the pint had been given to him by Louis Webb at the City cafe. Webb took the stand and denied the statement, declaring that he had seen Green turn over a dollar to Jim Morrison after the former had received the whiskey. Green declared that he did not know Morrison, and when the latter came in the court room, the former trusty stated that he might have seen him before and in the cafe at the time he received the whiskey but Morrison, he declared, had nothing to do with it.

Webb was placed under a $100 bond while the matter is being given further investigation by officers, and Green, his freedom as a trusty revoked, was returned to jail. No additional warrants were issued.

The docket today consisted for the most part of minor cases developing over the week-end in the city and the county.

This Fish Story Lost Its Proof

Grady Lovelace, well known Shelby undertaker, needs 35 pounds of fish to prove his fishing story to his wife. He had them last night, so he says, but he does not have them today—and there's where the story comes in.

Lovelace and his partner, Roscoe Lutz, returned late yesterday from a fishing trip to the Atlantic Coast at Carolina Beach. They went to the Lutz and Jackson undertaking parlors to divide their catch, 75 pounds of fish. So elated was Grady Lovelace over his 35 pounds that he telephoned his wife about the big catch and the 35 pounds he had caught and was bringing home. She was a bit skeptical of the story, not thinking that her husband was such a successful Walton. Still enthused about it, he informed her to be out in front of the house that he would be by in a few minutes with the fish as proof. He then placed the fish in a box and put the box on his car and started home.

When he arrived there was his wife with friends to see the proof of the story. So far so good. But when he walked around the car to pick up the fish they were gone. Somewhere en route they had jolted off. A thorough search along the streets traversed has failed to locate the fish. And now Mr. Lovelace is wondering if some one wouldn't do a fisherman a good turn. He'd like to have the fish back if for nothing more than to prove his story. Else he may not be permitted to go fishing again.

The handicap of being on the extreme edge of the district and division will hold back the possible building of this route is not known, but the spirit of in the county now, judging by comment, is to demand what is believed to be justice, let politics be hanged.

Raleigh June 22.—Oleomargarine, colored to resemble butter, cannot now be sold legally in North Carolina, and in hotels, dining rooms or cafe where oleomargarine is sold must appear in gothic letter an inch long the sign "Oleomargarine served here." Manufacturers of oleomargarine must pay an annual tax of $1,000 and the wholesaler must pay $100 annually, the commissioner of agriculture issuing licenses to eating places on satisfactory applications for license. Commissioner Graham has ruled that the tax for this year will be seven-twelfths of the annual rate, the license running for seven months, from June 1 to December 31. Violators of any provisions of the law are subject to a fine of from $100 to $500 or imprisonment of not more than three months, or both, in the discretion of the court.
