

Stock Exhibits For Fair Should Be Groomed Early, Says Dorton

Two Months Necessary to Put Dairy Cattle in Best of Condition.

Because comparative judging brings to light the strong as well as the weak points in each animal, fairs such as the Cleveland County Fair, to begin the last of September, afford an excellent place for breeders of dairy cattle to acquire definite knowledge as to the worth of their stock. Dr. J. S. Dorton, Fair Secretary, stated this morning.

Dr. Dorton also cited the advertising value of a good fair exhibit, declaring that many sales of breeding stock are direct results of exhibitions.

The Secretary stressed the necessity for beginning preparation for showing at least two months in advance of the actual exhibition. He declared that breeders of this section should start preparation now for the autumn classic.

Two months of time is needed to fit and properly train cattle that are in fair condition at the beginning. Each animal to be shown should be taught to lead well and stand squarely on its feet with its head up. Animals that are not well trained and properly fitted usually receive low placing although they may be otherwise good individuals.

Proper fitting is not difficult if the animals receive good feed and exercise. A good grain mixture that can be used for this purpose is composed of 300 pounds corn meal, 300 pounds crushed oats, 250 pounds wheat bran and 150 pounds linseed meal. If the animals are thin in the fall at the beginning of the fitting period it will be advisable to feed a small amount of a ready mixed molasses feed in addition to the above grain mixture. The amount of grain to feed will be determined by the condition of the animal. When it enters the show ring it should carry enough flesh to give it a good thrifty slick appearance, but not any surplus fat.

It is desirable to feed a mixed hay, if the cattle are to be shipped, since legume hays often cause scours when fed exclusively to show cattle that are being moved from place to place. For showing at a local fair this precaution is not necessary. Since it is not possible to secure silage for the herd while it is at the fair it is desirable to replace this feed with beet pulp. The change from silage to beet pulp should be made on the farm two or three weeks before the cattle are to be shown.

If the hair is long the animal should be clipped all over six weeks before the show. This will give the hair time to grow out and present a smooth even appearance. When the hair is not long it is advisable to clip only the head, ears and neck back to the shoulder vein, the tail setting and the belly. After clipping, the animals should be blanketed to aid in improving the quality of the hide and add gloss to the hair. Burlap bags sowed together make a satisfactory blanket. Each animal should be brushed and rubbed thoroughly every day. This stimulates the circulation and gives a glossy appearance to the hair.

Hundred Thousand Visit State Museum

Number of Visitors on the Increase. Fine exhibits Added.

Raleigh, July 23.—More than 100,000 people have visited the State museum, a division of the State department of agriculture at Raleigh since January 1. Attendance through May had reached 91,000, according to the report of Curator H. H. Brimley, who pointed out that this was an increase of 16 per cent over the corresponding period in 1931.

The museum is open the year round, Sundays and Christmas day excepted. Although the other State departments close at 4:30 during the summer months, the museum is always open until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, including Saturdays, when other departments take half holiday.

Among the new accessions to the museum is a 160-pound meteorite, which has been polished and is on display but which will have to undergo further treatment, due to its type, which yields to weather and moisture conditions. There has also been added to the museum a full grown seal, which was taken near Ocracoke. This northern visitor is the third of its kind recorded in North Carolina in the past fifty years.

He, therefore, will be in his pulpit at both hours, and the large chorus choir will have appropriate and uplifting songs at both services, to which the public is most cordially invited.

Tragic End of Romance Of Poor Little Princess

A Bride of Only Two Months, Princess Anna Obolensky Troubetzkoy, of the Exiled Russian Nobility, Plunged to Death from the Eiffel Tower in Paris. Her "Marriage of Convenience" Blamed.

DIAGRAM OF SUICIDE LEAP. PRINCESS ANNA TROUBETZKOY.

Married to Prince Serge Gregory Troubetzkoy a little over two months ago in New York by a Justice Keller, of the City Court, Princess Anna Obolensky Troubetzkoy brought her short career as a bride to a sudden close when she plunged to her death from the Eiffel Tower in Paris. The Princess was the daughter of Prince and Princess Alexis Obolensky, of the old Russian nobility, now resident in New York. Her marriage to Prince Serge may have been one of the arranged alliances beloved by European nobility and it is significant that the Troubetzkoy and Obolensky families have intermarried for four generations. The tragic death of the Princess amazed Paris and shocked her friends, who were looking forward to her second marriage to the Prince by Russian orthodox ceremony at the Prince's magnificent estate at Clamart, near Paris.
