

Another "Hickory"

(New York Times.)
People outside of Oklahoma have been wondering just what the Governor of that State is about. Why did he post troops at the Oklahoma end of the toll bridge to prevent persons crossing the Red River from Texas to pay for the privilege if they wanted to? Why did he upset the medical profession by permitting a chiropractor to treat a patient in the State University Hospital? Why did he propose to close the State's oil wells by martial law unless a price of $1 a barrel was fixed for crude?

A Watch-Tower dispatch on another page today explains "Alfalfa Bill's" sudden activities. He remembers that a hundred years ago the idol of this country was a precedent smasher named Andrew Jackson. Each century wants an Old Hickory. Governor Murry proposes to be the Jackson of the Twentieth. In a time when the people are murmuring against hard times, and communism comes forward with its lure, a true but constitutional proletarian must needs arise. The Governor of Oklahoma gazing in the mirror sees that tribune of 1932. He will offer a platform. He will fight for it on the convention floor. He will accept the nomination—or will take that for Vice President—if it should be offered.

Prescott Boosted By Ramblin' Bill

War Vet Finds Climate Ideal For Building Health, Hospitable People.
Editor of The Star:
I have just had the pleasure of meeting the mayor of Prescott, Arizona, Mr. Bert Tilton, and several officials of the county and city, and while I have realized all along that Prescott is a wonderful city, I did not know that there are so many fine people here.
The mayor is a fine character of the pioneer stock and after having a long heart to heart talk with him I have come to the conclusion that it is indeed a privilege to live in Northern Arizona and especially in the city of Prescott.
Prescott is known far and wide as possessing the best year-round climate in America and attracts numbers of people each year who value both climate and scenery and rubbing elbows with real 100 percent American citizens. Prescott is also known as "The Mile High City" being a little over 5,280 feet altitude. It is frequently referred to as "The Friendly City" and this slogan is always lived up to by the good people of Prescott.
It has been my experience upon frequent occasions when I visited a resort town to feel that I was being "gouged" by the business people whenever I bought something, and rooms that were worth about three dollars per week would cost about that much each day. But it's different here in Prescott. You can rent a very comfortable cottage of several rooms, furnished, and with lights and water for from ten to twenty-five dollars per month, and other things are in proportion. At no time will one feel that he is being done, and he will always feel at home.
Go into any business place and the clerks or even the boss himself is always glad to talk to you regardless of whether you desire to make a purchase or not.
To anyone desiring to spend a summer vacation far removed from the din and turmoil of the busy city and where the blankets at night can be used to a good advantage and the heat during the daytime is negligible, and where the air is pure and invigorating, I have no hesitancy in recommending Prescott, Arizona, the Friendly City.
Prescott is located on one of the most picturesque and scenic routes in the United States and is only a few hours drive from the Grand Canyon of Arizona on highway 89. It is on the Santa Fe railroad, Phoenix and Kansas City line and there is good train service in and out daily.
Prescott has two daily newspapers, The Evening Courier and Journal Miner, a Yavapai chamber of commerce that is active and served the entire county of one hundred miles square. William P. Stuart, a graduate of Chapel Hill University and a native of North Carolina is owner and editor of The Evening Courier and his editorials are quoted throughout the entire southwest. Mr. Stuart is quite a factor in the city and has contributed much towards making Prescott what it is today.
Prescott now has a population of almost 20,000 and when the people in the eastern sections of the United States learn what a wonderful city it really is the population will increase.
Over ten years ago the United States government took the cue and located their hospital No. 50 here, which is now officially known as United States Veterans hospital No. 50, and is one of the largest government hospitals in the United States where veterans of all wars are treated for tuberculosis and other ailments caused from their war time service.
Yavapai county of which Prescott is the county seat, is rich in minerals several large mines being located within its confines. Stock raising is also one of the chief industries, and Prescott is known far and wide as being the home of the annual rodeo, which is held on July 4th each year.
Prescott only has four police officers and a small force of county officers. There has never been a crime wave in this city. The people are law abiding and petty thievery is almost an unknown quantity.
While the people in other cities of Arizona and other places are sweating in the heat of 110 to 115 and sometime higher, Prescott residents are sleeping under blankets every night and comfortably wearing their coats during the days.
Prescott is also in the heart of the best hunting area in the state and not so very far from the great Kalbar forest where deer abound.
It is the ideal place for one to spend his vacation or to bring his entire family, and to anyone in the east suffering with lung trouble of any kind, this is the place to get well, and the cost is not near as

Asserts Coolidge May Run In 1932

Ex-White House Physician Declares "I Do Not Choose to Run" Was Misinterpreted.
St. Paul.—Calvin Coolidge will be a candidate for President in 1932 if the people express decisively a desire to draft him to meet the economic situation, according to Colonel James F. Coupal, former White House physician, who is quoted in a copyright article in The St. Paul Dispatch.
Dr. Coupal asserted that President Coolidge never intended to remove himself unconditionally from the Presidential field when he issued his famous "I do not choose to run" statement in 1927 and that he "was hurt and disappointed" when its meaning was misinterpreted, "but having been misunderstood, he felt possibly that there was a stronger man and refused to correct the misunderstanding."
"President Coolidge would have loved to be the third-term President of the United States," Dr. Coupal said. "He was not disgusted with public office, as some have intimated."
In his "I do not choose" statement Mr. Coolidge simply wished, in compliance with his own extreme sense of justice, to cast aside any advantage that his presence in the White House might give him and permit the people to choose another man if they preferred, Colonel Coupal said.
"I want to emphasize the fact that the desire to have him run must be unquestionable and that there must be no strings attached to it. He would not consider it if there were to be political obligations to be paid to any one, or unless he be given a free hand with the means he believes can be brought into play to end the depression and place the nation on a sound footing."
"President Coolidge has the most highly developed sense of justice and sense of his responsibilities and the keenest ability to sift the truth from the false and the chaff of propaganda from the grain of constructive action that I have ever seen in another man. He also is the most inherently honest man I have ever known."
"Mr. Coolidge will run for President in 1932," said Colonel Coupal, "if the people of this country evince an unmistakable and unquestionable desire to draft him to pull the country out of this period of depression, and if he can have the Presidency without any political or other obligations attached to it."
