

Foreign Speakers At Centennial Of Building And Loan

Home Ownership And Systematic Savings For Working Man To Be Discussed.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—A solution of Europe's post war economic tangle by way of homeownership and systematic savings for the working man across the Atlantic will be presented for American consideration at the international congress of Building Societies and Building and Loan associations here next week. Leading home financiers from the Old World will address the congress, which will hold joint sessions with the centennial convention of the United States Building and Loan league, August 11-14. A British government representative will accompany his countrymen and address the gathering.

According to Miss Ann E. Rae, Niagara Falls, N. Y., honorary chairman of the League's International Congress committee, the foreign financiers attending will include 150 from Great Britain, several from Germany and Poland, a delegate from South Africa, and one or two from Austria and New Zealand. Sir Enoch Hill, president and general manager of the world's largest building society, the British equivalent of building and loan associations here, will head the delegation from Great Britain. He represents the $331,000,000 Halifax Building Society of Halifax, England.

The British government representative is John Fox, assistant registrar of Friendly Societies in the United Kingdom, who has charge of government supervision of the co-operative home financing organizations there.

Building and loan association in this country have promoted a higher living standard for the past hundred years by their financial assistance for home-owners and their safe investment medium for the small saver, Miss Rae points out.

The United States Building and Loan league will tender an official reception banquet to the foreign delegates Monday evening, August 10. Sir Enoch Hill will be the British speaker, and Americans who will address the banquet include the Hon. Guy Campbell, Congressman from Pennsylvania, Miss Rae and the Hon. Charles O'Connor Hennessy, N. Y. C., past president of the league.
