The Seafaring Moon

It is the moon forbids me to forget.
It is the stubborn, the seafaring moon.
A windy hull with standing canvas set.
Chanteymen keep her silver nerves in tune.
Cloud-shadows scrawl her decks with violet.
Stars catch among her rigging.
Very soon
She'll dip and vanish. I shall feel her yet.
Trampling the servile tides that fawn and creen.
Wanting her freedom as I want my own.
You gray gulls storming from the river-mouth.
On the whirled mist, go with her!
You alone
Can follow after crying your wild cries.
She is Greek, I think, a ship with painted eyes.
When last I saw her they were looking south.

At The Theatres

Ramon Novarro is doing a decidedly different role this time in his new picture, "Son of India," at the Webb today and Tuesday. Novarro's acting in "Son of India" seems to combine all the perfection and interestingness of "The Pagan" and "The Call of the Flesh," although his new role is unlike anything he has done in pictures. Dorothy MacKail comes in "The Reckless Hour" at the Webb, Wednesday.

The Carolina is running an excellent love story with Lew Ayres and Jean Harlow today and Tuesday. The title is "Iron Man," a story of power, strength and utter sincerity. Charlotte, Aug. 9.—Federal agents assisted by City detectives swooped down on the Mecklenburg hotel, a well known local hostelry, today and arrested A. W. Hartley, the manager Mrs. Calla Moore switchboard operator, and 11 Negro bell boys on prohibition law violation charges.

All the defendants were given hearings before a U. S. Commissioner and bonds were set for action on the charges by a federal grand jury here in October.

The hotel manager was released on a $1,000 bond after the commissioner found probable cause on a charge of maintenance of a common nuisance.

Mrs. Moore, the switchboard operator, was charged jointly with two Negro bell boys with possession and sale of liquor and conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. All three pleaded not guilty, but the commissioner found probable cause and released Mrs. Moore under a $500 bond.

The two bell boys named in the same charges also were bound over under bonds of $500 each, while bond for the remaining nine bell boys was fixed at $300 each.
