VLGOVIND'S BOAT SONG
Waters glisten and sunbeams quiver,
The wind blows fresh and free,
Take my boat to your breast, O
River!
Carry me out to Sea!

This land is laden with fruit and grain,
With never a place left free for flowers,
A fruitful mother; but I am fain For brides in their early bridal hours.

Take my boat to your breast, O
River!
Carry me out to Sea!

The Sea, beloved by a thousand ships,
Is Maiden ever, and fresh and free, Ah, for the touch of her cool green lips,
Carry me out to Sea!

Take my boat to your breast, dear
River,
And carry it out to Sea!
—Laurence Hope.

Smart Juniors Dressed in Cotton

SOFT fabrics are usually considered more becoming for those difficult ages from ten to fourteen.
The soft textures and interesting new weaves of the fall cottons make them especially adaptable to frocks which, while they conform to the tailored simplicity of the junior mode, must at the same time borrow a bit of sophistication from the grown-up mode.

Colorings, too, are important for the girls of these ages, and in warm tones of rust, rich deep browns, blues, moss greens, or warm red tones, the velveteen and tweed cottons will be popular both for practicality and becomingness.
One of the new wool-like cottons, in basket weave, makes the frock at the left, which is designed to be especially becoming for these "between ages." It is in a warm rust tone, with a fleck of white, and has bandings of white pique to give interest to the neckline and abbreviated sleeves.

The velveteen Sunday frock is important for junior misses at boarding school, or at home. In the two-piece model shown at the right an interesting scalloped treatment gives a double-breasted "jacket" effect to the jumper top.
White buttons are used, and white ric-rac makes an unusual collar and cuff set.

READ — LOOK FOR MISSING LETTERS

Our New Dresses for Fall 1931 comprise the loveliest creations fashion authorities could produce. Their beauty, of course, is enhanced by the gorgeous fabrics from which they are so gracefully molded. Individual treatments and flattering style details make them more alluring than ever this year. Their elegance will impress you the very minute you "lay eyes" on the collection now on our racks. Values, too, are simply astounding, for it seems next to impossible to believe the dresses we are showing could so much as be manufactured for the low prices we are offering. And we've never had a more complete showing since we have been in the business.

HERE'S HOW

Look for missing letters only. Take a sheet of paper and set down the missing letters and opposite each letter write the corresponding numeral—a equals 1, b equals 2, c equals 3, and so on. Then take the numerals and put them into one number, writing from left to right.

EXAMPLE:

McNeely's Is A Goo Place To By Your Fall Wadrobe.
The first missing letter is "d"; the corresponding numeral is 4. The second missing letter is "u"; the corresponding numeral is 21. The third missing letter is "r"; the corresponding numeral is 18.
The number is 42118.

The correct number to be made from the missing letters in the paragraph above is written in red on the regular price tag of some New Fall Dress, and if your number corresponds, then you win the dress. In case the dress is not your size, we will exchange it for an other of equal value.
