NEWSPAPER WORK NOT PROFITABLE

Stay Out If Aims Is To Make Money Says Veteran Journalist.

New York—Young men and women who go into newspaper work "merely for the sake of making money," had better turn their attention elsewhere, Dr. J. W. Cunliffe advised in his last annual report as retiring director of the Pulitzer School of Journalism, made public yesterday at Columbia University.

Calling attention to Joseph Pulitzer's ideals of public service, Dr. Cunliffe said: "A newspaper must do something more than 'sell' news and exploit news to obtain advertising. It must do more than serve the monetary interests or the social or political ambitions of any man or any group of men. This older, and, as we thought, better tradition of public service is the tradition Joseph Pulitzer stood for and it is the tradition of the School of Journalism."

The view that a newspaper should be considered as merely a business enterprise recently has been gaining widespread acceptance, Dr. Cunliffe observed, even among newspaper men. "But," he added, "the public outburst of protest, indignation and regret at the extinction of The World proved that his view is far from gaining universal approval."

Turning to a discussion of conditions in the New York newspaper field during the last year, Dr. Cunliffe said that the trade depression particularly was acute in the professional of journalism reaching its climax in the stoppage of the Pulitzer paper in February 27.

"The employment situation was adversely affected to a degree hitherto unknown," the report continued, "and the members of the graduating class had to offer their services to a market which was not merely overstocked but actually drowned out. In face of the facts we thought ourselves fortunate in placing before graduation about one third of the class on various newspapers, including the New York Herald Tribune (2), The Sun, The Times (2), Bergen County Record, Brooklyn Eagle, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Hornell Tribune and Mount

Vernon Argus (3). Dr. Cunliffe, who assumed his duties last week as Director Emeritus, asked in his report if he might be allowed to "indulge in a mood of reminiscence."

"It is fifty years since, a boy just out of high school, I entered my father's newspaper offices as a reporter, and since that day the reporter's pencil, the typewriter and the printing press have been the tools of my craft. For twenty years I have been on the staff of Columbia University and for all but a few months of that time I have been connected with the School of Journalism.

"For the first few months of its organization I was its only professor and its only student, and I have watched its growth ever since with the keenest interest. In carrying out the plans for which Joseph Pulitzer furnished not only the material means but the spiritual inspiration, Dr. Talcott Williams and I had in view the foundation of a society of learners and teachers united in a common aim, the practice of an honorable profession."

Truth Better Than Fiction This Time

High Point.—Polly Snyder's prowess as a fisherman wasn't so great, but then Snyder wasn't in jail either.

Several days ago he exhibited a string of "250" fish saying he with two other men had caught them in the city lake. County Game Warden A. M. Benbow of Oak Ridge figured it up and found this was considerably over the limit. So Snyder and his friends were brought up in court.

There Snyder remembered there "really weren't 250 fish and there were six in the party anyway."

Warden Benbow figured again and decided the law was satisfied.

Costly Undies And Suits For Scarface

Al Capone Wears $10 Undies And $135 Suits. Fashion-Plate Gangster.

Federal Building, Chicago.—What the well dressed gangster wears, including a $135 custom made suit and $275 diamond belt buckle, was brought out in full detail at Al Capone's trial on income tax evasion charges.

Also, the prosperous gangster is expected to do his Christmas shopping early, extensively and without stint, the testimony of a dozen Chicago department store clerks indicated. Capone, for instance, was said by the clerks to have selected such gifts for friends as $40 silverware sets, $150 overcoats and $20 beaded bags by the score.

Capone, biggest gangster of them all, was said by the clerks to ordinarily wear about $700 worth of fine raiment. His customary dress according to the testimony, included a $27.50 shirt with $1 monogram; $4.95 tie; $2 collar; $135 suit; $150 overcoat; $275 belt buckle; $10 suit of silk underwear; $20 hat; $20 shoes and $2 socks.

Bought By Half Dozens. Because he usually was busy with pressing affairs, which the prosecutors charge were gambling, liquor and vice, Capone bought his fine quality suits by the half dozens and his expensive shirts in even larger numbers, the clerks said. And when the testimony was completed for the day, it was revealed that Capone started out in life at a rather lowly position—tending bar in a saloon at Coney Island, New York.

Low Cotton Price Will Cut Acreage Better Than Term

Charleston, S. C.—Philip D. Weld, president of the New York Cotton Exchange, said that the low price of cotton will serve to reduce acreage much more effectively than any governmental regulation.

Weld, who is on a business trip here, said "the danger in legislation seeking to prohibit planting is that it will stimulate planting in foreign producing countries in greater volume. American farmers will be left holding the bag" and those in other countries will benefit at our expense."

Restless, could not sleep

"THERE were days when I felt like I could not get my work done. I would get so nervous and 'trembly' I would have to lie down. I was very restless, and could not sleep at night. My mother advised me to take Cardui, and I certainly am glad she did. It is the first thing that seemed to give me any strength. I felt better after the first bottle. I kept it up and am now feeling fine."—Mrs. T. R. Gibson, Fort Payne, Ala.
