Dover Death Took Away Fine Leader

Charlotte Observer.

In the death of Mr. John R. Dover the textile industry of piedmont North Carolina loses one of its pioneer leaders, one who rose from the humble position of farm lad to command of great textile interests, as one of the State's most successful of cotton mill executives. Mr. Dover not only held high position in the textile world, but he was a citizen active in all community welfare works and his death will prove a loss, not only to the industrial field, but to church and social circles as well.

Confidentially, Austria—A farmer confessed to police that he killed four of his seven children because they were eating too much.

Carolina Elevens Play At Home This Week

Clashes Start Thursday And Continue Through Saturday. To See McEver.

North Carolina's Big Five will play on their home grids this week.

And the football menu, when South Carolina is included, begins Thursday and runs through Saturday.

At Columbia.

Thursday at Columbia Clemson and South Carolina clash in their historic State Fair game. Bill Laval's eleven with Clary and other outstanding stars is rated to have the edge on the Clemson Tigers, but in that clash it is a matter of spirit. To South Carolina people it is the event ranking next in honor to Christmas—and they go to the Clemson-Columbia game one way or another, just so they go. That means a number of Clemson and S. C. backers from this section will be there.

Deacons And Devils.

Friday, in this State, Duke and Wake Forest meet in the Duke stadium. Last year the Deacons surprised everyone by holding Duke to a tie. Pat Miller would like to do it again, and the Wallace Wade eleven, smarting over the Davidson deadlock, should be plenty angered. It should be a rip-snorting contest, with Duke as the favorite, but Miller may have the lead out of his big line and the numbness out of the fingers of his backs. If so, you can't tell.

Friday night State college plays Catholic university in Raleigh. Clipper Smith should have his boys out of their doldrums this week.

Saturday's Games.

Saturday North Carolina, still gasping over the sheer brilliance of the great Georgia backs, will get to see another All-American back, Gene McEver in action. He will play in the Kenan stadium with the vaunted Tennessee eleven, Carolina is doped to take it on the chin, but it will be a battle.

On the same afternoon the Davidson Wildcats meet Erskine at Davidson, a close-by game. Earlier in the season Davidson looked up on the Erskine clash as a let-up contest. Since that time Erskine tied Furman. Remember what Furman did to Wake Forest and it's easy to see Davidson will have to play football.

Can See Four Games.

The rabid fan can, if he so desires, see all the football warring this week he could hope for. If he does not care to ramble around, he might drive to Columbia Thursday for the S. C. classic there. Then to Durham Friday for the Wake-Duke game, and on to Raleigh Friday night for State's game with Catholic U., and then to Chapel Hill Saturday to see Carolina and Tennessee, or to Davidson for the Erskine game.

Highs Training For Clash With Gastonia Friday

Two Victories Add Spirit to Eleven. Boys Hope For Surprise Showing.

The Shelby high football eleven, elevated over two consecutive victories, is this week preparing for the toughest foe remaining on the schedule—Gastonia at Gastonia Friday.

Two wins in a row haven't made the boys cocky or over-confident, but they removed what feeling of inferiority complex there was and caused the boys to feel that, by putting up a real fight, they can make the Gastonia clash far more interesting than anticipated early in the season.

Line-up Uncertain.

The line-up of the black jerseys Friday is uncertain. Several youngsters given a chance with the regulars in the Kings Mtn. game came through with credit. Clyde Williams in the backfield gave promise, with added experience, of being one of the best ball toters Shelby has had since Zeno Wall and Milky Gold folded up their uniforms and moved on. In the line, the stumpy Billy Thompson, who was started at guard, made up with fight for his lack of weight and reach. Several others who had been in the sub-classification revealed enough ability, which if maintained, may win them regular berths.

If "Fats" Williams' injured ankle comes around and Capt. Max Putnam is again shifted to the backfield to back up the line, Gastonia fans may see a pair of tacklers which will make them think they are seeing the Wake Forest tackles in action. Williams and Roy Newton, the big boy who wears the No. 1 jersey, bumps the scales around 200 pounds each and resembles Webb and Williams, giant tacklers of the Demon Deacon eleven.

Can Smash 'Em.

The major strength of the Shelby eleven, however, centers about Max Putnam, the husky tackle. Close observers of football have known for some time that the lanky youngster can be a great football player when he really tries. As a tackle, he has been breaking through the line and playing in the opposing team's backfield for two years. Heretofore after breaking through, because of his size he has found it difficult to make the tackles. But Friday against Kings Mtn. he backed up the line for half the game and at no time did the piskin get any farther down the field. He was making ferocious tackles at both ends, in the center of the line and everywhere else. If he can put up a similar exhibition at Gastonia and can imbue his team-mates with the same spirit, well, Gastonia will not have any pleasant afternoon in making touchdowns.

Backfield Punch.

On the offense just now Clyde Williams seems to be the best bet. It is likely, however, that R. K. Wilson, regular quarter, may be so recovered from injuries that he can play Friday. Connor's speed and his side-stepping can be relied upon, and the two Huffmans and Williams have shown that they can fill the gap while Barrett is off the eleven. Ray Huffman, the younger of the two brothers, should in a year or two be a real back. He's good now. "Bear" the husky of the backfield, has all the physical assets of a great back. He can kick the ball like nobody's business and can toss it a country mile in a passing attack. His main asset this year has been in blocking and running interference. When he wants to—and he says he'll be in the mood Friday—he can take out most any player and enable the back behind him to keep going. His own ball-carrying ability should be better than he exhibited against Kings Mountain. He has the weight, the drive and the toughness to tear the average high school line to ribbons. He seems to have the idea, though, his coaches say, that he should run into a line standing up. If he could be persuaded to double up in a ball and dig into a line as does Barrett and Clyde Williams, it should be just a matter of time until he bruised the ball from goal post to goal post.

Which is to say that Coach Morris has whipped his squad into real playing condition, and it is far from a slouchy football eleven. If it will really put out.

Next week Shelby plays Rutherfordton here.

Gonzales Like Smiths

Buenos Aires—What the Cohens and Smiths are to the New York telephone directory, is the name of Gonzales to the Buenos Aires telephone list. The Gonzaleses take five pages. Next comes the Ferrandez family with a half-page less.

"Babe" Carr Kayos Opponent; Gets On Big Kinston Bout

"Babe" Carr, Shelby lightweight is now making a name for himself in fistie circles in Eastern Carolina. Last Friday night he fought in the main bout of a boxing program at Rocky Mount, knocking out Jack Moran in the third round. Terry Roberts, of McAdenville, was on in the semi-finals.

So decisive was the Carr victory that the young slugger will fight this week in the main 12-round bout at Kinston, facing Don King.
