Entered as second class matter January 1, 1903, at the post-office at Shelby, North Carolina, under the Act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

We wish to call your attention to the fact that it is and has been our custom to charge five cents per line for resolutions of respect, cards of thanks and obituary notices, after one death notice has been published. This will be strictly adhered to.

TWINKLES

Perhaps, after all, we should not cuss Congress as much as we do. A session of Congress costs each individual only seven cents. How much cussing, or how much service, are we entitled to for that amount?

Judging by the numerous Hollywood weddings of recent weeks, we have the idea alimony money and finances must be running short with some of the ex-wives and ex-husbands. But maybe the cinema center has decided to go on an economy scale and has heard that rumor that two can live as cheaply as one.

CANNONS LOOK AHEAD

IT IS SIGNIFICANT to note, observes the Springfield Republican, that "the world's largest towel factory is reported from the South as having laid in a five-year's supply of cotton, believing that higher prices will rule." The men behind North Carolina's big towel plant at Kannapolis may be pointing the sensible way to others. There would be a better sale of cotton and at a better price if some of the buying interests were not scared of their own judgment. How many months will it be before they will wish they had purchased now? And if they would only do so, think how the market would be helped.

BREEDING DISCONTENT

"IF THERE IS NO change in the selfishness of those who control the wealth of the land," Bishop Chandler of Atlanta warns, "there will be revolution in this country by those who are pressed for want of food." And it is that thought, says The Lenoir News-Topic, "which has the wealth of the country scared to death. One-tenth of the population cannot hope to own four-fifths of the wealth of the nation without breeding discontent."

There is thought for you. How much of the present depression is based upon the cause and twofold result outlined above?

WILL COME IN DUE TIME

A NEWS ITEM in our favorite tri-weekly informs that there is very little political talk going on now in Cleveland county. Little or nothing being said of prospective county races, and no interest whatsoever in the 1932 contests for governor and senator. That interest will develop in due time. Cleveland never failed to get up a stir before primary day, but there are other important things to think about until spring. Facing this section, and all other sections have a similar problem, only worse in some places, is the task of taking care of the unfortunate through the winter. It is the type of work in which politics should play no part. Let's do that in the way it should be done, and then there will be time a plenty for the political activity.

THE ONLY PROCEDURE

REPRESENTATIVE GARNER of Texas, who will be the speaker of the House if Congress is organized by the Democrats, says that a legislative program will be advanced by his party designed to relieve the nation's worries. The plan, he adds, will be presented regardless of which party organized the House. Just what that program may be we cannot say, but certainly, Representative Garner is following the only course in saying that the Democrats will offer and cooperate in some relief plan regardless of which party controls the legislative session. The people, harassed and perplexed, will tire very soon of putting partisan politics ahead of helpful legislation during conditions such as now exist, and, too, they've reached the point where they will not be bashful about expressing the disgust. Get the relief program rolling, do what good can be done and then battle it out for the credit.

NOT BEING HEARD HERE

THE RECENT CRITICISM of the new State highway system by R. T. Fountain, candidate for governor, is reported to have received some support from politicians and former officials here and there in the State. This was to have been expected. Any number of them, foremen, board members, supervisors, purchasing agents, etc., lost jobs under the reorganization plan. That an economy was effected by the change is becoming better known each day now as citizens pays their greatly reduced 1931 taxes. Yet men who lost jobs or had their political organizations somewhat disarranged by the change are expected to whine. After all, however, it is the tax-payer who foots the bill and if the roads as they are satisfy him—there being no argument about his satisfaction over reduced taxes—then everything should be in good order.

In this connection, howbeit, it should be said that very little if any criticism is being heard in this section of the new system and maintenance of highways. We do not say that there has been no criticism; few things get by without criticism, but none has been heard publicly. The roads may, as Mr. Fountain predicted, get almost impassable for school buses and mail carriages this winter. Yet word coming in from rural areas in this section is commendatory instead of critical. Some sections report the best road maintenance they have had in years. And this came about under two handicaps. Due to the long drought it has been difficult to keep roadbeds in the best of condition. This was and is no fault of the system. Reasonable people realize that. And the other handicap is that the change in systems was made on short notice with little time to perfect working organizations. It takes time to get such a huge system of operation upon a smooth basis, but the criticism will likely spur highway forces on in their effort to keep the roads in the best of condition.

STILL PRODUCING THEM

OLD GOLD AND BLACK, the Wake Forest college publication, takes note of the fact that Cleveland county is still sending out leaders. Says the paper:

In addition to Cleveland County's producing such celebrities as Governor Max Gardner, Thomas Dixon, Jr. and Sr., Judge Yates Webb, and Hon. Clyde R. Hoey, she has furnished two more of immediate interest to us. The present directors of B. Y. P. U.'s in Wake Forest and Meredith, A. V. Washburn and Mary Elizabeth Elam respectively, were born and reared within a few miles of each other in this western county lying at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Miss Elam's home is in the world-famous town of King's Mountain, while Mr. Washburn spent the early part of his life in and around Shelby.

Not to mention the fact that about half of the Wake fresh football eleven came from the same section.

TEN TIMELY COMMANDMENTS

"WE ARE IN THE MIDST of the worst crisis," declared A. L. Brooks, prominent Greensboro attorney, at Gastonia recently, "economically, industrially and financially, "that this nation has ever known." His comment upon conditions and possible remedies contained much profound and sensible thought.

Mr. Brooks, considered a potential candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator in 1932 and one who has given careful study to the existing economic situation, asserted that "thoughtful, red-blooded American citizens are getting damned tired of seeing the natural resources of this country exploited, and the earnings of labor, farm and factory withheld from circulation among the very people who created it. Is mankind to be crucified upon a cross of gold?"

"He went on to suggest a remedy and in his remedy he struck the keynote of his address, viz: prosperity must begin on the farm and with the farmer.

"I have emphasized the situation of the farmer because I am persuaded," he said, "that we cannot hope to see restored prosperity to all our people until the problem of agriculture has been solved aright.

"If the great business minds of this country would lend their attention to helping work out the farmer's problems, limiting their observations to helpful criticism and giving constructive advice and friendly co-operation much good would be accomplished. The farmer does not need more soft credit, but hard cash—a decent price for the fruits of his labor and fields."

Mr. Brooks declared that the only way to resume normal wholesale conditions in this country is to start with the individual.

"If you could call back to earth that old grandfather who took his bride to the little farm, built a home, accumulated a competency, raised a family, supported the public school, worshipped in the nearby church, and died honored and respected, he would likely philosophize as follows:

- "1. When adversity comes, take it standing up.
- "2. Go to work and stop thinking about what might have been.
- "3. Stop trying to get something for nothing. It can't be done.
- "4. Get out of your cars and off the highway for a season, and onto the plantation and into the workshop.
- "5. Live out of your gardens and fields instead of out of tin cans and other people's fields.
- "6. Deny yourselves luxuries as long as you have to deny your creditors.
- "7. Pay your debts and preserve your credit.
- "8. It is a good thing to have money, and the things money will buy, but it is well to check up sometimes and see if you haven't lost something that money can't buy.
- "9. Love your neighbor as yourself and your country more than yourself.
- "10. Always remember that spiritual values do not depreciate."

If every one of these commandments could be carried out to the fullest, the country's troubles would soon vanish into thin air.
