Georgia Methodists Will Fight Liquor

Bishops Demand Action if Gains of Prohibition Are to be Maintained.

Atlanta—North Georgia Methodists, in conference here, have been urged to use every influence at their command to lower "the black flag of rebellion" of the liquor interests "and their political puppets."

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, Ala., and Bishop John M. Moore, presiding officers of the conference, both have demanded drastic action if the gains of prohibition are to be retained.

Others attending the convention, lay members and ministers, have renewed pledges of support to the movement, and say they will return to their charges "filled with a new zeal."

At The Theatres

"The Spider," considered the most novel wrinkle in mystery plays, is the new picture at the Carolina theatre today and Thursday. As a stage play, "The Spider" ran a year on Broadway and another twelve months on the road. In the picture, Edmund Lowe is the important man, playing Chattrand the Magician. "The Spider" is Lowe's thirteenth starring picture, and in all probability he scintillates more brilliantly than ever as the master in charge of spiritualistic seances which punctuate the cleverly contrived plot of the play. Shivers, gasps, chills and chuckles unfold mysteriously from the beginning of the mystery until the end. Lois Moran is the girl and El Brendel is the comedian in the picture.

Theatregoers who are considering seeing "Guilty Hands" at the Webb theatre today or Thursday will do well to consider the excellent cast in the picture: Lionel Barrymore, Kay Francis, Madge Evans, Polly Moran and four or five other favorites who do minor roles in the mystery. Barrymore's superb performance as the veteran criminal attorney in "A Free Soul" won him a tailor made role as attorney in "Guilty Hands." The picture has a climax so unusual that all Hollywood was barred from the scenes during the filming of the picture. Most of the scenes in the last half of the mystery were made at night when curious visitors would not be nosing in.

Select Dates For Veterans Reunion

Annual Occasion Will Be Held June 21-24, 1932; Huge Crowd Expected.

Richmond, Va.—Selection of June 21, 22, 23 and 24 as the dates for the Confederate reunion to be held in Richmond in 1932, was announced Saturday by Lieut.-Col. Robert T. Barton, general chairman of the reunion committee.

Appropriate orders for the reunion will be sent out by the commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans and the commander-in-chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, Col. Barton announced. The Confederate Memorial Association will meet along with the Veterans and Sons.

The dates selected by the reunion committee conform as closely as possible to the 70th anniversary of the Seven Days' battles around Richmond, which were fought in the last week in June, 1862. The battlefields park area will be formally dedicated as one of the features of the reunion.

Richmond was the unanimous choice of the last reunion for the next great gathering of the veterans and their descendants. It is believed that the former capital of the Confederacy will play host to from 25,000 to 30,000 visitors.

Northerners To Attend.
With the dedication of the battlefields park area as a feature of the reunion, many northern delegations are expected to attend the ceremonies. Eventually the positions of the Federals will be appropriately marked by the states which furnished the troops.

The plans for the 1932 reunion are being carefully made with the view to making it the outstanding event of recent years. While reunions of the veterans will be held annually for a number of years to come, the ranks of the Confederate survivors are thinning rapidly and the pilgrimage to the old capital will be the last of these gatherings for hundreds of the aged men.

Both the state and the city will make appropriations to help defray the expenses of the reunion and business interests as well as individuals will add to the fund.

W. L. Cooper will harvest 800 bushels of certified Korean lespedeza seed from 30 acres of land this fall.
