

Mr. Gettys Sick At His Polkville Home

P. E. Gettys, subscription agent for The Star is sick at his home in the Polkville section and will be unable to continue his work. It will be recalled that he was robbed of $75 in cash last week when his horse was entered at night. This was money paid on subscriptions to The Star, but subscribers will be given due credit on their labels when Mr. Gettys is able to furnish a list of those who have paid.

Dr. McClarty Speaks Before Kiwanis Club

Dr. E. K. McClarty, new pastor of Central Methodist church spoke to the Kiwanis club members last night in their weekly luncheon. "Since Kiwanians claim to be builders, they should not stop building now, but work harder to construct men of character and usefulness," said he. Civic clubs prove their usefulness by developing the latent talent in men, which make them better workers in church and civic matters, said he.

Fifty people had savings accounts at local banks, it was revealed this week when Christmas saving checks were mailed out. The Christmas savings club was started early this year when small amounts were put aside for Christmas needs this winter.

Maxwell Derides Hoover 'Economy'

idea is utterly fallacious," asserted Mr. Maxwell. "The money can be more wisely spent by the people who toil to produce it, and leaving it with them to be more judiciously spent for their necessities will more quickly and surely produce a normal prosperity than will oppressive schemes of taxation to take it from them to maintain inflated costs of government and to work out fanciful schemes for conjuring back an inflation that is gone.

"I'm not speaking as a partisan," the tax expert asserts, "and I say with equal frankness that Democratic leadership in congress owes the obligation of presenting a well-considered plan of thorough readjustment of existing costs of government, that are grossly extravagant when related to existing economic conditions, or they owe the obligation of presenting an adequate scheme of taxation to sustain existing costs. Even the federal government, as big and powerful as it is, has its limitations as shown by the fact that bonds sold by Mr. Mellon 90 days ago at par are selling of the market today at 88.

"The supreme obligations upon government today are to maintain stability and credit to meet the normal functions in serving the people, and to readjust the costs of their operation so that this can be done without oppressive taxation that in times like these may become destructive of the welfare of the people they serve.

"The importance of this issue ought not to be obscured or smoke-screened. If there is anybody running for office in North Carolina who is advocating a shortened ballot or destroying local self-government it has escaped my knowledge. I have never advocated a snort ballot and do not believe it represents the best conception of Democratic government in a state, but if I were to believe in it as an abstract theory of government, I would say that this is not time for abstract theories.

"The supreme problem now," said Mr. Maxwell, "is for government to readjust the cost of its operations to meet the profound change that has come about in the lives of its people, so that government may again become fostering and protective, instead of destructive in the absorption of the earnings of its people."
