DECEMBER EVENING.

Up from the frozen street the music drifts; The song of a sunny southern island life From a barrel-organ in the bitter dark To stony walls whose yellow windows mark The evening fires by which we sit and listen, Dreaming of hazy coasts and sapphire seas And stars that fly like birds into the trees. The organ-man moves on. The night is cold; The air is sharp with frost, the windows glisten. The wind is rising and the year is old. -Frances Frost.

Women Lie To Save Injured Feelings

New York—Women by nature are "little white liars," in the opinion of Dr. J. S. Maller, of the institute of school experimentation at Columbia University Teachers college. But, he said, they do it "to be tactful and to save hurting feelings." Men are apt to be brutally blunt. His conclusions were based on answers submitted by 517 men and women graduate students to questions.

Gaffney Bootleg King, Spencer, Is Held In Oklahoma

Grady Spencer, Wanted at Gaffney, S. C., Being Held by Oklahoma Authorities.

Gaffney, S. C., Jan. 6.—A man identified as Gray Spencer has been arrested and is being held at Pryor, Okla., according to a telegram received here by Sheriff Zeb V. Wheelchel from Oklahoma officers.

Spencer, under a four-year sentence to the Cherokee county chain gang and bonds totalling $9,000 disappeared several weeks ago. A reward of $50 had been offered by his bondsmen. Sheriff Wheelchel said. In addition to the offenses for which he was sentenced, Spencer is facing a murder charge and a liquor case in state court and a prohibition violation in federal court.

Spencer received the four-year sentence at special term of court here last May when he plead guilty to four liquor charges, one assault and battery case and one charge of pointing a pistol. His attorneys gave notice of appeal and he was released under bonds totalling 5,500. He was already under $3,000 bond in the murder case which resulted from a double killing at William Cole's store Aug. 27, 1930. Walter Cole and Lester Lane were the victims. William Cole and Jim Cromer convicted of murder with recommendation to mercy, are now serving life sentences. Spencer was found guilty of manslaughter but the conviction was set aside and a new trial ordered by the presiding judge. A new liquor case caused his bond to be increased by $500.

Sheriff Wheelchel has asked for extradition papers before going to Oklahoma to get Spencer.

Gardner Had Tough Period For Regime But Is A Fighter

Going in Office Eight Years Late He Found All the Breaks Against Him.

(Statesville Daily.) The newspapers are mentioning that this is Governor Gardner's last year—meanin' that a year hence the governor will be packing his baggage for return to the old home town. And the governor, we may well believe, would that the time was right now. Not that he would run away from the job or shirk a hard task. He isn't that kind. But the fates have dealt rather harshly with the popular son of Cleveland in his governing. Probably the most popular man in the state within the decade, he came to his governing eight years later than he had first timed, and it was his bad fortune that the depression arrived with him. He didn't bring it, of course. The evil influence would have been the same for anybody. So the friendly governor, who would do well by everybody if it was humanly possible, has had a hard time. And whenever things go wrong, popularly begins to wane. The going wrong is no fault of Gardner but he has to bear a part of the odium for that which he can't help.
