

Business Firms Waging War Against Proposed Taxes For Helping Budget

Organizations Concentrate In Protests To Sweating Members Congress.

Washington, Mar. 4.—Organized pressure and propaganda from thousands of dollars in big business have been down upon the sweating small group of mere $10,000-a-year congressmen who are struggling with a tax program to raise $1,240,000,000 in new taxes necessary to balance the budget.

From every congressional district comes a swarm of protesting telegrams, protests carefully organized and planned by the huge industries likely to be touched by the new imposts which must be made to meet the great, grim deficit in the treasury.

Acting Chairman Charles Cripps of the House ways and means committee, who has urged all members to "gird themselves with stamina and backbone" to meet the emergency regardless of pressure and propaganda, has produced direct evidence in the house that the protests are not spontaneous from their districts but carefully planned and organized. Consumers will pay the taxes, but they are unusually silent.

Young Irishman Searched Years For Missing Wife

Broken-Hearted Man Hunted 27 Years In Every State For Her.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Death Tuesday had snuffed out the fires lighting Andy Brogan's 27-year search for his wife but his Evangeline-like legend, scrawled on the back of a poster advertising a burlesque dancer, saved him from a grave in potter's field.

The story goes that Andy, as a young Irish immigrant settled in Chattanooga, Tenn., rising to affluence as a saloonkeeper.

The blue bloods of the south, the legend goes, came to his saloons, one in Knoxville and one in Chattanooga. Prohibition came to Tennessee in 1905. Black-haired young Andy sold his saloons and took his pretty wife and $45,000 north to seek fortune anew.

They settled for awhile in Colorado Springs. Andy left his wife there and the $45,000 for her to keep for him while he started hunting a new home and business.

He found both but lost his wife and $45,000. He wired for her to come. There was no answer. He wired again. No answer. Andy went to Colorado Springs to find the pretty southern girl. She was gone.

Ever since then, according to the legend, Andy has been wandering through the United States and Canada peering at faces of women. He worked at times, then with a little money he went on.

The story of Brogan's long hunt was told principally by John F. Kelly, of Cleveland, who as a troupier of the old days knew Andy in Chattanooga and who took care of him as a broken old man.

Kelly gave Andy jobs several times when the wanderer drifted into Cleveland. Here Andy used to work at Kelly's factory but he always hit the road again except the last time when he was felled by tuberculosis.

Andy died Sunday, wrinkled, gray, and bent, at 75. Kelly and his friends today were "chipping in," as the burlesque poster asked, "to save him from potter's field."

Saga of Modern 'Valjean' To Have Happy Ending

Sixteen Years a Fugitive From Justice, Lamont Signor, Recently Recaptured, Won Pardon Through Intercession of Citizens Where He Started New Life.

For the first time in sixteen years, since he escaped from a prison farm at London, Ohio, where he was serving time for burglary, Lamont Signor knows the meaning of real happiness. Recently arrested in Pine Hills, N. J., where he has won the admiration and respect of the entire community, for helping an unemployed citizen to obtain firewood from a private estate, Signor was identified by his fingerprints as Howard Penny, escaped Ohio convict. He was held for extradition to that State, but his fellow citizens of Pine Hills got up a petition, stating their opinion of Signor and setting forth his excellent record during the sixteen years he had been a member of the community. This they sent to Gov. George E. White, of Ohio, who was so impressed by Signor's determined efforts and success in rehabilitating himself that he granted the man a full pardon. Signor is a former member of the Pine Hills School Board and takes an active part in civic affairs. His fellow citizens assert that the uncovering of his past only deepened the respect in which they hold him.

Thomas S. Royster, President Letter Carriers, Delivers Address To Guests.

(By E. R. GAMBLE)

Kings Mountain, Mar. 3.—Clarence P. Goforth, entertained a number of friends at a dinner party at the Mountain View Hotel here Tuesday evening, celebrating the 30th anniversary of his connection with the United States Postoffice department. Mr. Goforth, his brother, I. B. Goforth and Thomas S. Royster of Bessemer City, honor guests, each entered the service as rural mail carriers on the same day, March 1, 1902.

The principal address of the evening was given by Mr. Thomas S. Royster, of Bessemer city, who is president of the North Carolina Rural Mail Carriers Association. His talk began with reminiscences of 30 years ago and followed his services to the present date, showing a growth and development of the rural letter service from its infancy to its present day efficiency. Thirty years ago the surrounding country was receiving no delivery of mail except at postoffices. These men realizing the need of rural mail delivery were subsequently examined by the post office department and accepted. Since that time these men have continuously served their patrons on these same routes with competence and loyalty.

Rev. Richard C. Wilson, jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian church here made a short talk on the efficiency of the Postal Department and the loyalty of its employees. Other short talks were given by other rural mail carriers.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. Lee Thornburg and Mr. Nebel of Charlotte, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Royster of Bessemer City and Miss May Short of Shelby.

County Agent Taylor of Edgecombe county found 28 round worms in one eight weeks old pig that weighed ten pounds. The clinic was held by Dr. A. A. Husman of the state veterinarian's office.

Miss Ora Sain of Morganton spent some time recently with her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Sain, while at home Miss Sain gave party to a number of her Morganton friends.

What The New Ford Autos Will Feature

Four And Eight Cylinder Engines Will Be Interchangeable In Chassis.

From Ford News.

The whole automobile world has been asking that question since the spring of 1930, when the industrial paralysis of the world's greatest depression first began to be felt.

And here's the answer:

1. As his major offering for the season now opening he is building a new model, with a new eight-cylinder V-shaped motor

2. He will continue building four-cylinder cars—an approved model A.

3. Both the "V-8's" and the model A's will have roomier bodies of wholly new design, longer wheel-base, lower hung chassis and heavier frames than have yet appeared in any Ford models.

4. The price range of the 10 different models will continue in the low price field.

5. The chassis is so built that the "eight" and "four" engines may be interchanged at will.

6. Production will start some time this month with the first public showing early in March.
