

Hoover, Roosevelt May Dine Together

Argument On Over How Celebrated
Persons Will Sit At Dinner
Thursday

Washington.—The prospect is strong that Republican President Hoover and Democratic Governor Roosevelt of New York may sit at most side by side at a dinner to be given at the White House next Thursday night.

It developed at the executive mansion that in a tentative seating schedule drawn up by the official arbiters, Governor Roosevelt leading aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, is ranked third upon the list.

This might well place him within easy chatting distance of the president.

White House social authorities who have wrestled in the past with delicate seating problems have been engaged for some days upon how they would seat the members of the governors' conference, meeting in Richmond, Va., when they come to dine this week with the chief executive.

The way the dinner list now stands, John Garland Pollard, Democratic governor of Virginia, who is host at the conference, is at the top and probably will be given the seat of honor. He is followed by Norman S. Case, Republican governor of Rhode Island, with Governor Roosevelt third in line.

Mr. Hoover and Roosevelt may well meet before the dinner, since the president will address the conference in Richmond on Wednesday only a few hours before the New York governor speaks to the same group.

Whether the presidential seating order for Thursday night will be maintained in the final list or just exactly what seat—near the President or Mrs. Hoover—Roosevelt will be given under the niceties of White House functions could not be learned.

Largest Sale Silk In History To U. S.

Tokyo.—Newspapers this week reported the largest sale of raw silk in Japan's history in the selling by the government of 163,000 bales to American interests represented by Paulino Gerli, of E. Gerli and Co., New York. The price was understood to be about 450 yen (about $150) a bale which would make the money involved about $16,200,000.

Sound Mind Aids Bodily Health

Science Holds That Thoughts
Exert a Force Which Is Essential to Well-Being.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

THERE are scientists who claim that thoughts are things. They contend that thoughts can actually be weighed and measured; that thoughts have color. They claim that these facts have been actually proved by tests in some of the universities.

It is certain that by dwelling upon thoughts of poverty, personal limitation, unhappiness or disease, we erect barriers of negative thinking, as the scientists say. We can never attain plenty, happiness or health if our thinking is wrong. We do not and cannot progress. The truth is, we can go no further than we consent to go. I wish you would write that down, and remember it: We can go no further than we will to go.

Is it not a fact that we imagine first and then produce? The artist does this, the musician, the writer, the architect, and so on. How is it with you?

Through the mind we take command of ourselves. By correct thinking we tap the universal supply, the great substance, call it God, Spirit, or whatever you may. We should train ourselves to think beyond food, shelter and clothing. We should claim "Build thou more stately mansions, Oh, my soul!"

Electricity, life and love are in the realm of which I am speaking. You cannot see these. You see their manifestations. But is there anything more real than electricity, life and love?

Since we exist in a world of sense, we are accustomed to saying that success depends largely upon the control we exercise over our physical senses, such as seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and touching. But there are finer senses which we must consider, such as scientific thought, intuition, telepathy, perhaps, and spiritual discernment.

I do not for a moment discount the importance of a sound body for the functioning of a sound mind; but I also know that it works the other way around: A sound mind is important for the functioning of a sound body.

In a way, blood is liquid life. Mind is the instrument which uses this liquid life, as the dynamo is the instrument which uses electricity.

I am sure you believe that the power of mind can be used constructively in building, or destructively in tearing down, just as electricity can be used for lighting and cooking—or for executions.

So we must order our living, not only with regard to the needs of the body, but also to make our minds operate sanely and wisely.

Answers to Health Queries

B. O. Q.—I am 14 years of age, 5 ft. 3 in. tall—what should I weigh? How can I reduce?

A.—You should weigh about 115 pounds—this would be about average for your age and height, as determined by examination of a large number of persons. Cutting down on sweets and starches and taking lots of exercise should keep your weight down and benefit your system at the same time. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Shelby Women Prepare For Sale Of Poppies To Aid The Needy

"The women of Shelby are as ready to serve in patriotic work today as they were during the World War days," declared Mrs. C. B. Alexander, general chairman of the American Legion auxiliary's poppy sale, today as enrollment of volunteer workers for the auxiliary's memorial poppy sale neared completion. Not only members of the auxiliary but women and girls of other organizations of the city are volunteering to aid in the poppy effort.

"None of the women engaged in the auxiliary's poppy sales work will receive a penny for their services," Mrs. Alexander explained. "The only persons who make any money from the poppy sales are the disabled veterans who make the poppies. They receive one cent each for the flowers they produce. The rest of the money all goes to support the work the auxiliary is doing for the welfare of the disabled men, their families and the families of the dead. The bulk of the funds raised on "Poppy Day" will stay right here in Shelby to finance the relief work for needy families of veterans during the coming year.

"A vast amount of hard work is necessary to make the poppy sale a success. The auxiliary is very grateful to the women of the other organizations who give their time and energy to help in this patriotic work of remembrance and mercy."

Length Of Life Grows Longer Now

Average Lifetime Nearly Doubled
In Last Century And A Third.

What the medical profession is doing to increase the span of human life was discussed at Columbia by Dr. E. Starr Judd, president of the American Medical association. Speaking at the annual convention of the South Carolina Medical association, Dr. Judd pointed out that the average expectation of life had risen from 33 years in 1800 to 58 1-10 years in 1924.

"It is said that in the last 24 years we have accomplished more in the field of medicine than had been done in the 24 centuries since Hippocrates," he added. "The modern developments have given birth to preventative medicine. Perhaps the work in this field has just begun, but its influence on the physical and economic welfare of the nations of the world is already incalculable."

Outlining progress in the last century and a quarter in prolonging the average length of life, Dr. Judd said:

"The records show the following: In 1800 the average length of life was 33 years. In 1850 the life span had increased to 39 7-10 years. In 1901 the average expectation of life had risen to 45 2-10 years. In 1919 this expectancy had gone up to 51 4-10 years. In 1920 it was 56 3-10 years. In 1924 it was 58 and 1-10 years."
