nappers when advised of the finding of his son's body. He landed at Cape May, N. J., a few hours later and hurried home to console his grieving wife.

Will Not See Body
Col. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh will remember their son as a happy, little boy with blond curls. They will not view what remains of his little frame before it is buried. A steel vault is already being prepared for the funeral, but the hour and other details have not been learned, except the announcement that the parents will not view the remains, preferring to remember the Lone Eagle as they last saw him in their home.

Two Blows On Head Killed Young Lindy

May Have Been Killed Just After Being Kidnapped, Autopsy Report Says.

Trenton, N. J., May 13.—Two heavy blows on the head ended the life of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., the official autopsy by Dr. Charles A. Mitchell, county physician disclosed last night.

The autopsy showed that the skull had been fractured on the left side, the fracture extending from the top to just behind the left ear. The second blow was dealt on the right side of the head just back of the right ear, and left a hole one-half inch in diameter.

It was as if some adult person had held the baby tightly in his arms and deliberately hammered the head with the purpose of causing instant death.

The diagnosis was: "The cause of death is a fractured skull due to external violence." Dr. Mitchell's report confirmed that decomposition of the body had progressed to the point where it could be surmised that the child had been killed almost immediately after the kidnapping, depending on climatic and other conditions that might have produced such results.

The autopsy also indicated that the body had not been disturbed, probably since it had been buried.

Finding Of Body Ends Tragic Search compound fracture was caused either by a blow on the head with a blunt instrument or from the effects of being hurled from a car.

The best medical estimate was that the body had been exposed to weather for "about two months." However, physicians explained the child might well have been abandoned on the same night he was stolen from his home.

Colonel Lindbergh, who had made an exhaustive private search for his stolen son, spending thousands of dollars and even paying a $50,000 ransom to the supposed kidnapers, was absent as the formal statement of the finding of the body came from police headquarters at his hilltop home.

Lindbergh In Virginia
State troopers said he was not on the estate. Latest reports were that he had been in Virginia for more than two weeks attempting to establish contact with men posing as the kidnapers.

Mrs. Anne Lindbergh, daughter of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, who expects the arrival of another child within several months, also was not seen. She and her mother, Mrs. Morrow were known to have been in the house however.

Lindbergh Infant Famous Child; Born On Mother's 24th Birthday

Birth On June 22, 1930, Was Flashing Over Entire World. Reassembled Father.

Hopewell, N. J., May 13.—Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., son of the famous flier and Anne Morrow Lindbergh was born at 3:15 p. m. June 22, 1930, at the Englewood home of his grandparents, the late Dwight W. Morrow and Mrs. Morrow.

The news of his birth was flashed around the world—to every nation where the aerial adventures of Colonel Lindbergh had made him famous.

The infant weighed 7 3-4 pounds. He was born on the 24th anniversary of his mother's birth.

Like Father.
It was not long before the world knew that the tiny boy resembled his father; had curly blond hair and a winning smile. But Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were determined that he should not be handicapped in life by too much publicity.

There were few pictures of him—at first only some snapshots taken by his father—in the files of newspaper offices. Mrs. Lindbergh, a practical, modern mother, was determined that the boy should be reared as normally as possible considering his father's fame.

So Charles Augustus, Jr., played within the seclusion of the Morrow and Lindbergh homes; took his first tottering steps far removed from the world which was always eager for word of him. Only on rare occasions was there news of the golden-haired child. One such occasion was when his father and mother left him in the care of his grandparents and nurse while they flew away across the Northern Pacific to China.

Second Time
Then, on March 1 the name of Charles Augustus, Jr., was flashed around the world for the second time. He had been kidnapped from his father's home in the Sourland hills.

Dr. Fenton Tells First Aid Methods

Class Of 28 With One Woman. Fourteen Different Industries Represented.

Twenty-eight people, representing 14 different industrial plants in Shelby are taking the special course in rendering first aid in accident cases, according to Dr. W. J. Fenton, a representative of the First Aid branch of the American Red Cross. Dr. Fenton says one woman, Mrs. Zeno Wall, is in his class to learn how to render first aid in the home, the second most dangerous place outside of the highways in America.

Dr. Fenton spoke last night before the Kiwanis club at its weekly luncheon, telling how to stop the flow of blood from a limb or the neck by simply pressing the artery with the fingers until a physician can be reached. He declared it dangerous to use a tourniquet unless the pressure is released every twenty minutes. Dr. Fenton's address was most interesting and those in his first aid class are going back to their homes and factories to teach the best methods of rendering first aid to their fellow employees.

Move Of Cline Muddles Fight In Board Race

down. This, naturally, lost him some friends as holding the purse-strings tight means turning some away. As a result some of the campaigning for board offices was being done with the present auditor as a target, the appeal being made to those who for one reason or another were dissatisfied with his operation of the office, which, incidentally, has had much to do with making Cleveland's tax rate the second lowest in North Carolina.

Now that Mr. Cline has said he does not desire the office any more and would not have it appointed, candidates who have been saying they intend to make changes are faced with the problem of finding a new issue to carry before the voters.

May Warm Up More.
The contest, with seven in it, however, should stimulate more heat before June 4. In the list of seven are men known throughout the entire county, among them good business men and farmers. The list to date is as follows: George R. Lattimore, R. L. Weathers, Joe E. Blanton, Shuford Beam, Lester Herndon, J. D. Morris and Sanky Mauney. At least four of the seven are giving considerable time to campaigning and are visiting practically all sections of the county. Just now it is difficult to say which three may appear ahead, but it seems certain at this date that the vote will be fairly close between the five leaders on the ticket.

The other county contests are adding interest as primary day nears, with the sheriff's race rivaling the board race in public interest.

Cline's Successor.
The Cline announcement that he is to retire has opened another line of controversy. Who will succeed him? The county management plan has been of great value to the county and other counties have modeled after it. Leading farmers, business men and others are expressing the hope that the office will go to a capable man. On all sides the expressed wish is made that the office will be held free of politics and that the new auditor will not get the job because of pull or in payment of a political debt. In fact, the appointment of the new auditor will be watched with as much interest over the county, after the primary and election are over, as is any race for the Democratic nomination.

Already there have been calls for 200 catalogues of Bolling Springs Junior college, according to Miss Rita Curtis, member of the faculty who was in Shelby yesterday delivering copies of the new catalogue which is just from the press. This is the heaviest demand the institution has ever experienced this early in the Spring and indicates that the enrollment will be larger than ever at the opening of the next term.
