Kerr-Blanton Wedding Announced

A marriage which will be of interest to friends in the two Carolinas, took place on Saturday afternoon, July 23, at York, S. C., when Miss Bleaka E. Blanton became the bride of B. Frank Kerr. The impressive ring ceremony was used. The young couple was accompanied to York by Miss Winnie Blanton sister of the bride and Mr. W. F. Harris, who acted as attendants. The bride was becomingly dressed in a tailored autumn model in blue and white with which she used blue accessories.

Mrs. Kerr, who is the eldest daughter of Mr. Marvin Blanton and the late Mrs. Gora E. Bost Blanton, is an attractive and capable young woman, popular with a wide circle of friends. She received her education at Appalachian State Teachers college and has taught with marked success in the county schools, having taught in the Lattimore and Casar schools.

The groom is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Teal Kerr. At present he holds a position at the Cleveland Cloth Mill. Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Kerr left for an extended wedding trip through the Shenandoah Valley to Northern points of interest. Upon their return they will make their home in Shelby.

Suggests Praying For Needed Rains

To the editor: Why not call a special prayer meeting for all the churches in the city and county and pray for rain in this area which is in dire need of rain to save the gardens and crops and preserve what food supply we hope to have for the winter. Who will take the lead?

At The Theatres

Mary Roberts Reinhardt is one of America's most popular writers and she is author of "Miss Pinkerton" which is showing today and tomorrow at the Webb Theatre. Joan Blondell and George Brent are the leading players in this fascinating mystery story. It is a story of a girl detective who outsmarted the smartest sleuths. The production is by Warner Brothers. Other shorts are shown.

Will Rogers in a Connecticut Yankee was so popular at the Carolina some months ago that Manager Reynolds has secured it again for today and tomorrow. Rogers is an American ace so far as wholesome humor goes and you've never seen him funnier than in this picture. Also showing is "Sky Bride," a bosom pal of "Touchdown," a thrilling aviation picture.

Think Mellon To Resign Job Soon As English Envoy

Daily Herald Says It Thinks U. S. Ambassador to London Wants Younger Man to Take Post.

London.—The Daily Herald says Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon "is expected to resign" when he arrives in Washington his present trip to the United States. "It is believed he will tell President Hoover the coming negotiations on war debts should be in the hands of a younger man than he," the Herald added.

The London newspapers have been making something of a mystery of the ambassador's trip home ever since he left a week ago today, declaring he was going to the United States for a holiday, taking advantage of a dull period in embassy work.

He himself said the trip had no political significance. However, his leaving was coupled with the departure of the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, from Washington and other newspaper besides the Herald printed dispatches from New York and Washington on the coincidence.

Before he left here the ambassador indicated to his associates he intended to remain in the United States two or three weeks and be back in London before the end of August. So far as was known in official circles here today his plans have not been changed.

There has been no official intimation whatever that he had any intention of relinquishing his post. The visit is purely personal it was said, and was planned some time ago.

Among the questions the election will settle is that of one of the bards: "What's in a name?" If only a soft answer would turn away a book peddler.

'Too Smart' Gangster's Nemesis Devotee of Mountie Tradition

Young Sleuth Who Out-Shot "Fats" McCarthy Has Been Shot on Three Occasions, But Always Got His Man. When "Target" Gets Sharpshooter—That's News.

EDWARD "FATS" MCCARTHY. MRS. JEAN MCCARTHY.

SCENE OF MCCARTHY GUN BATTLE

In sharp contrast to the career of "Fats" McCarthy, New York gang leader who met the inevitable end of a life of crime when he died with a police bullet in his heart at Albany, N. Y., is that of the young police hero who tackled him down and killed him in a pistol duel to the death. Detective Harry Moore, although only on the police force since 1924, has already been shot on three occasions while rounding up bad men. But each time he succeeded in capturing the man who shot him. When he stopped the first gang bullet, back in 1926, he was carried into the French Hospital, New York, more dead than alive. But Cupid pulled him back from the brink of the grave. He fell in love with his nurse, Helen Morgan, with the result that she is now Mrs. Moore. The young sleuth was assigned the task of bringing in McCarthy after the gangster had slain Detective Guido Passagno, last October. McCarthy was also under suspicion for the Harlem baby massacre last Summer. Moore stuck tenaciously to the trail of the gang leader, who boasted he was "too smart to be taken by a dumb cop," for ten months until he cornered him at Albany. In the ensuing gun battle Moore was wounded three times, but he succeeded in planting a bullet in McCarthy's heart. Mrs. Jean McCarthy, the badman's wife, was wounded in the fight and she and several of the trapped gang surrendered and were taken in custody.

Even Mild Cases of Scarlet Fever Are Very Contagious

Great Increase of Cases in Recent Months Makes It Highly Important That Every Patient Be Quarantined and Given Proper Treatment.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE has been an alarming increase in the number of cases of scarlet fever reported from all over the country within the past few months. Fortunately, most of the cases were of a mild form.

Scarlet fever is a highly contagious disease. It is often neglected and in this way is quickly spread from one child to another. Quarantine is necessary for all cases. Children who recover from scarlet fever should not be permitted to return to school without presentation of a physician's certificate.

The disease comes on suddenly and the first symptoms noted are vomiting, sore throat, headache and fever. The rash of scarlet fever appears within twenty-four hours and is first seen on the neck and upper part of the chest. It is bright red in color and gradually spreads over the entire body. The rash lasts from three to ten days and then fades. After this the skin peels in scales or large pieces, producing what is called desquamation.

Mild cases of scarlet fever require little treatment besides rest in bed and isolation; but please bear in mind that mild cases are quite as contagious as severe cases. Though

Use of the Dick Test. Large quantities of water should be taken. It may be given in the form of lemonade or orangeade. Liquid foods, such as milk, are best tolerated in the beginning of the disease. Later, cereals and broths may be added to the diet. Daily elimination is important and where necessary, enemas should be given. When the fever has subsided and desquamation has taken place, sponge baths containing bicarbonate of soda are beneficial and relieve the itching. The quarantine should not be lifted until desquamation is completed and there are no abnormal discharges from the mouth, nose or ears. Considerable research work is being done to find an injection which will give immunization, or protection, against scarlet fever. Similar to the "Schick test" in diphtheria, the "Dick test" determines whether or not an individual is susceptible to scarlet fever. If your child has not received this test, consult with your physician or the local board of health.

Answers to Health Queries

Q.—How may I remove callouses from the soles of my feet?
