Program Heralds Big Free-Gate Fair Here

All Exhibit Space Already Taken

People Rally To Free-Admission Of Cleveland Fair With Record Number Exhibits.

The program and premium list for Cleveland county's eighth annual fair, which will be the first free-gate fair in the Carolinas, came off the press today and by its contents assures that the South's largest county fair has bright prospects of another successful exposition with all comers admitted free.

In issuing the premium list, Dr. J. S. Dorton, fair secretary, says: "When fair officials decided that, due to economic conditions, there would be no admission charge to the big Cleveland fair this year, there were those who predicted its failure. I believe a glance through the premium and exhibition list and the program will show otherwise."

The newspaper-size premium list does show a remarkable and comprehensive array of exhibits and entertainment.

All Space Taken
What's more Secretary Dorton has the proof that the people of Shelby and the county have rallied to the free gate fair in an excellent manner. Five community exhibits are already assured, and today it was stated that every bit of space in the commercial exhibit building has already been taken although the fair is three weeks off.

The fair date, as is generally known, is Tuesday, Sept. 27, through Saturday Oct. 1.

The daily program is much on the plan of previous years, there being a full run of attractions during the day and night in addition to the exhibits and various agricultural shows. The major entertainment along the midway will be furnished by the famous Johnny J. Jones shows. This show includes 18 rides, 24 separate shows, four bands, etc. There will, as usual, be two runs of thrilling free acts and stunts each day one in the afternoon and another in the evening.

A record list of 14 attractions has been booked for the free-act program. There will be horse racing each afternoon and a spectacular fireworks program each night. None of these events plus a tour through the exhibit halls will cost fair visitors a cent unless they choose to purchase grand stand seats.

A dog show, sponsored by the American Kennel club, and a rabbit show will be additional features.

The Exhibit List.
In the premium exhibit department there will be exhibits covering every phase of farm life. In the agricultural department there will be 16 different exhibit entries, and three others restricted to Cleveland county. There will be six exhibit classes in horticulture, four in the horse department, six in the cattle department, six in the swine show, seven in sheep, eleven in poultry, three in home economics, seven in pantry and dairy supplies, six in household arts, and other entries in the art department, crafts, flower show, curios, antiques home demonstration clubs, 4-H clubs, educational department and Boy Scouts.

A list of special awards may be secured from the county agent or fair secretary.

Newton Portrait Presented Sunday

Eight Hundred And Fifty Witness Presentation of Beloved Teacher's Portrait.

Eight hundred and fifty people witnessed the presentation Sunday morning at the First Baptist church of an enlarged portrait of the late J. Clint Newton by the Newton Bible class to the church.

The portrait will hang in the Newton Bible class as a constant reminder of the faithful work service Mr. Newton rendered the Sunday school and the love and friendship he had for his fellowman.

Appropriate music was rendered and Attorney D. Z. Newton, law partner of Clint Newton spoke briefly of his fine attributes of character which commender love and esteem. "There must be something in a man's character when he develops from a poor country boy to a beloved Christian gentleman who died penniless but with a wealth of friends who want his picture hung on the walls of the church which he loved so dearly," said Mr. Newton.

The portrait was presented by Dr. Zeno Wall, pastor, to the class president, E. B. Jarrett, and the class, numbering 70 young men filed out to hang the likeness on the walls of their class room.

Montjoy Shot By Officer Is Improved Today

Kings Mountain Man Shot As He And Officer Fall In Ditch, Chief Allen Says.

C. J. Montjoy, 26-year-old Kings Mountain man, who was shot Saturday night when Police Chief George Allen of Kings Mountain, attempted to arrest him, was reported as being considerably improved at the Shelby hospital today.

A hospital surgeon said Montjoy was "doing well" and will live if some complication, such as pneumonia, does not set in.

Started To Run.
Early reports had it that Montjoy was shot by Chief Allen as he was running away from the officer after the latter had forced him to start the car. Chief Allen says, however, that he did not shoot Montjoy while the latter was running and that the firing of the gun was accidental and took place as the two, locked together, stumbled into a ditch.

The officer, according to reports, saw Montjoy in an automobile travelling, it is alleged, at fast speed. He followed him with the intention, it is said, of arresting him on the alleged charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of whiskey. The chase was out Highway 20 west toward Shelby where the officer forced the Montjoy car to the side of the road. Montjoy it is said, got out of the car and started to run. The officer, presumably with his gun in his hand, gave chase. Montjoy, Chief Allen states, ran only two or three steps and whirled to face the officer. As they came together they both stumbled or fell into the side ditch, and it was at this moment, the officer says, that the gun was discharged.

Punctured Lung.
The bullet entered the left side of the back and came out under the left arm in front. Hospital surgeons say that the bullet struck the left lung in "coursing through Montjoy's body."

The wounded man was first taken to a physician's office in Kings Mountain and later, about 10:30, brought to the Shelby hospital. He suffered quite a bit, it was said, from loss of blood and first reports had it that he was in critical condition.

Montjoy who has been living at Kings Mountain for some time is said to have come to the Cleveland town from South Carolina.

Says Hot Sun Has Cut Crop Two-Thirds

Numerous farmers say that the recent hot weather will cut the county cotton crop by more than half. J. Q. Anthony says that in the Elizabeth section he believes not more than a third of a normal crop will be made.

The smaller bolls, he says, are so sunburned that they mash between the fingers. There are less bolls to the stalk, he adds. Where ordinarily the average is 15 to 25 bolls per stalk this year the bolls seldom number over five.

City Asks That Cotton Pickers Be Selected From Unemployed Here

Should Be Taken, When Needed, From Those Now Receiving Government Aid.

Farmers who may need cotton pickers are asked to seek what help they want from among unemployed people not receiving public aid. Quite a number of people are now on the list receiving free Red Cross flour and other public aid at the city hall, and it is hoped that some of these may be given employment during the cotton-picking season. A record of this group is kept at the city hall and farmers may examine the list on application to Mayor S. A. McMurtry. To Refuse Aid Likewise farmers who offer cotton-picking jobs to unemployed and find any who refuse work are asked to communicate their names to the city hall. When this is done no more aid will be given those who refuse an opportunity to work and help support themselves.

Gin Price Set At 50 Cents; No Cotton Bagging

Abandon Cotton Bagging

Farmers Will Not Use Cotton Bagging, So Ginners Refuse To Lay In Stock.

At a meeting of the cotton ginners, thirty-one gins being represented in the court house Saturday, it was decided to make a uniform charge of fifty cents per hundred pounds of lint cotton for ginning with a minimum bale charge of $2.

Some ginners wanted to raise their price to 60c but a majority voted in favor of the 50c per hundred charge. While some ginners expressed a feeling that 50c is not enough, they felt that it would be hard to raise the price since a number of gins have started the season on the 50c basis.

Cotton Bagging Slow
In speaking with one of the prominent ginners Saturday The Star learns that the cotton bagging did not go so well last year and none of the ginners has bought a supply this year. Farmers were appealed to for patriotic reasons to use cotton bagging in order to help consumption of the staple, but cotton bagging is higher than jute and weighs less than a third of jute bagging. Farmers prefer jute because jute bagging and ties weigh about 12 pounds and when a bale of cotton is sold, the buyer accepts the bagging and ties at the cotton staple price. In other words, 12 pounds jute bagging and ties sold at the eight cents a pound, help absorb the cost of ginning. It is therefore to his advantage financially to have the heavier jute bagging.

The gin price agreed on Saturday is for second hand bagging. Farmers who prefer new bagging will be charged extra.

The next meeting of the ginners will be held in the court house in Shelby on the first Saturday in August next year.

Week-End Rains Help Some In The County; Still Hot

Scattered showers Saturday night and Sunday brought slight relief from the heat wave to some sections of Cleveland county, but with the exception of one or two sections the rain was not heavy enough to do much good for parching gardens and crops.

One or two communities had heavy showers which put new life into a burning cotton crop and gardens that were almost ruined, but other sections were hit by light showers which did not soak the ground to any extent.

Despite the showers the temperature today was almost as hot as that of last week.
