Alton Kirkpatrick Marries Miss Mock

Waynesville was the scene of a wedding of impressive beauty and dignity last Friday, when Miss Mary Mock became the bride of Alton Kirkpatrick of Shelby.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mock and is a charming and popular member of Waynesville's young social set. She received her education at Duke university.

The groom is the son of Mr. W. L. Kirkpatrick and the late Mrs. Kirkpatrick of Graham. He too, was educated at Duke, and is a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity. He is now vice president of the K & S Trucking company. After a wedding reception Mr.

and Mrs. Kirkpatrick left by motor for a three weeks' trip to various northern points, Canada and Chicago. On their return they will be at home in Shelby.

At The Theatres

The Carolina's feature picture, today only, is "The Big Brain," starring George E. Stone. The story is the career of a small town crook who rises from the gutter to gether. . . and back. Phillips Holmes and Fay Wray are also stars in the cast. Bob Steele in "Ranger's Code" will be shown Saturday, with a complete new change of short subjects.

Will Rogers will be seen last times today at the Webb in "Down To Earth," with Irene Rich in the supporting feminine role. Saturday brings a complete change of program with Jack Holt's "The Wrecker" in the feature. The picture has a brilliant supporting cast replete with name talent. Genevieve Tobin is the leading lady. A list of interesting short subjects will be extra on the bill.

Man Makes Plea For Life; Is To Die For Slaying

Wilkes County Farmer Says He Shot Son-in-law To Protect His Home.

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—Asserting he killed his son-in-law to protect his home, Bryant Stone, 45-year-old Wilkes county farmer, in a letter addressed to Governor Ehringhaus Tuesday made a dramatic plea for clemency.

"My only request to you, sir, is that before your final decision, that you, as well as myself, will ask God to guide you in your final decision the letter said.

"I have only one life, and if you think I should give it, I can die knowing that it was God's right hand guiding you in your decision."

Stone is under sentence to be electrocuted Friday for killing Wayne Norman, who married Stone's 25-year-old daughter. In a farewell letter to his wife yesterday, Stone said "perhaps I did wrong to kill Norman but only God knows how much

I suffered from that man." The Wilkes county farmer denied he killed his son-in-law until a few days ago when he broke down and made a confession to Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill. "Before I die I want you to know in order that my past false statements won't hurt other innocent men, that I was not all black" Stone wrote the governor. "I killed Wayne Norman, sir, not because I was in a fit of passion and not that I would or could gain anything by doing it, but because that after 19 years of struggling and slaving to build up a home for a family, this man came into my life and home and started slowly to wreck it," the letter said.

"I stood by for a long time, and saw my life's work being shattered . . . and when he took my little girl against my plans . . . at last in one of my drunken sprees I killed him. "I should have told the truth, I wonder if God will hold it against me for this lie I told you when He knows that I have only one life to give to the state of North Carolina. "When they lead me to the electric chair I can look back over my shoulder towards the mountains I lived in and the home I am dying for and feel that I was driven to this by my love for my family, and it was urged on my family, and that was urged on my very thing that the world is clamoring for me —whiskey."
