Colored Boy Has Concussion. Speeding Car Swerves Into

A crash in which four spe tators were hurt as eight fast racing cars warmed up for the races at the Cleveland fair Saturday afternoon served to provide all the "thrills and chills" promised in the ballyhoo of auto racing.

None of the four was seriously nurt although one colored boy was painfully lacerated about the face and suffered a concussion of

The accident, in which the driver was not hurt, took place just as the cars were getting tuned up for the first event on the racing program. The thousands packed in the stands infield and around the track heard a roar and saw a cloud of dust as the red and white racer of Leith Bost, Matthews boy, spun into the rail at the north turn and crashed into the people packed there to see the car pass. One report was that Bost, one of the favorite drivers with the crowd, took a daring chance on spilling to avoid hitting a boy who was in a dangerous place. Fortunately the driver came out without bad injury and it is considered miraculous that the spectators were hurt not worse than they

Cleveland county's ninth annual fair, which closed Saturday night, broke all past attendance records and set up a new record for fair attendance at any county fair in the

Just how many people took in the big farm exposition and assembly of educational entertainment during the five days and nights could not be estimated definitely today, but Dr. J. S. Dorton, fair secretary and manager, estimates that between 160,000 and 175,000 attended during the entire week.

The opening day crowd, which was school day with children being admitted free, was estimated at 41,000. Around 20,000 were back Wednesday and approximately 25,-000 on Thursday. The next big attendance came Friday night when an estimated crowd of 40,000 swarmed every inch on the big tract and midway. It was the biggest night jam in the history of the fair and it became necessary for bundreds to be packed in the race track so that all might be able to see the free attractions and the night program. Even then hundreds of others unable to get near the big grandstand and infield, enjoyed themselves along the midway and at the exhibit halls. Despite the immense size of the crowd there were no ser-

Saturday night was estimated by Dr. Dorton between 45 and 50 thousand. The peak came early in the afternoon as thousands packed the grandstand, infield and racetrack rails to see the first auto races in the history of the fair. Such was the jam that the races were delayed for an hour or more as officials attempted to get spectators away from dangerous points around the track. Even then four people were hurt when a car slid into the rail at the north turn. This accident and the natural thrill of seeing the speedy cars roar around the fast
