Fifteen years isn't such a long time. Not when estimated in the span of life, yet it is often disconcerting how much can be forgotten in that brief period of time. For instance, one little square spot in Shelby, which should be the poned indefinitely because he left symbol of something patriotic and historic.

ONE GOVERNOR TO ANOTHER-

We've never known definitely when and where, or how, that famous legendary expression originated about what the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina. In fact, we have suspected that there may never have been such an occasion as to require one of the Carolinas executives other. But, after Tuesday, we de know this: the Governor of South Carolina can truly say to the Governor of North Carolina-"It sure is a long time between drinks, big boy."
