Support For Duke Industries Urged By Alumni Speaker

University Endowment Depends Upon Public Good Will, Says Prof. Myers.

Support for Duke industries was urged by Prof. H. E. Myers, of the Duke University school of religion, and the Cleveland and Rutherford county banquet here Monday night. Professor Myers said the Duke interests deserved the support not only of the alumni but of the entire state because the vast foundations, educational and religious, endowed by the late James B. Duke depend upon these industries for their very existence.

J. R. Davis, attorney, president of the association, presided at the dinner.

New officers elected Monday night were Capt. B. L. Smith, president; Claude Griggs of Kings Mountain, vice-president; Mrs. Troy McKinney, secretary-treasurer. 2,114 Unemployed In County Listed At Frazier's Office

Preference Given To Veterans

Applications Dropping Off Now; Department To Handle CWA Jobs From Now On.

Indications last week that most of Cleveland county's unemployed had been registered were confirmed yesterday at re-employment Director D. R. S. Frazier's office when only 45 persons applied for work.

This brings the total registration in that office to 2,114, of which 450 were listed last week. Tenant farmers, feeling the first sharp nip of winter, crowded into Shelby to look for jobs. One hundred and fifty seven men, with preference given to veterans, have been employed to date.

To Place More Men

But more jobs will come from the re-employment office from now on. Cleveland's Relief Administrator, Harry S. Woodson, will this week complete his complement of 440 men on CWA jobs, and the remaining 440 jobs assigned to this county will be filled through Frazier's department. So far, that office has been finding jobs almost exclusively for skilled men, but with CWA jobs to assign, it will soon begin to give the laborer his chance. Nine men were placed Tuesday with private concerns.

If You Need A Cook

Incidentally, here's a note of interest to housewives: there are scores of good houseworkers, cleaning women, washerwomen and cooks listed at Mr. Frazier's office. Just telephone number 3.

Bridge Trouble Delays New Road In Cleveland Co.

Question As To New Bridge Or Moving One From No. 20, Says Mr. Jeffress.

By M. R. DUNNAGAN
Raleigh, Dec. 13.—Trouble has arisen over a bridge on the Shelby-Bolling Springs road which apparently is preventing its being included in letting of contract so far, and has caused it to be shunted aside in Washington for the time being, Chairman E. B. Jeffress, of the State commission, said today.

Efforts are being made to work out the trouble, Mr. Jeffress said. There has been suggestion that a bridge be taken from Route 20 and placed on this road, or that a new one be built to take the place of the one causing the trouble, apparently because it is not considered satisfactory.

Chairman Jeffress said that the Shelby-Polkville and Polkville-Fallston roads, contracts for which have already been let, probably will not be built until spring, expressing the belief that it will probably be better if the work is not done until spring. Meanwhile, he said, the contractors are required to keep these stretches of road in good condition until the work is done.

General Johnson Must Decide Cost Of Pressing U. S. Pants

And Shelby Dry Cleaners Keep Eye Peeled For News As Comrades Debate.

Proprietors of Shelby's six dry cleaning establishments—not to mention all those affluent wretches who get their clothes pressed regularly—looked to Washington this week for news on revised schedules of minimum prices under NRA as hearings on charges of anti-code price cutting proceeded.

Four of the local pressers charge 85c, the state code minimum, for cleaning and pressing a suit. The two others are 25c under.

NRA is making its first attempt at mass examination of persons charged with violating a code, and Washington is chock full of pants pressers today. Alternately, they hooded and cheered General Hugh S. Johnson.

Some of the complaints were against establishments who operated on a cash-and-carry and in-the-barrel-while-we-press your

In Royal "Dirty Linen" Case

London court and society circles are considerably stirred by the case of Clarence Guy Gordon-Haddon, 43-year-old engineer, who was recently arrested and held without bail charged with "demanding money from King George with menaces and without probable cause." Gordon-Haddon claims he is a nephew of the king, asserting he is the illegitimate son of the Duke of Clarence, elder brother of King George, who died in 1892. Had the Duke lived he would have occupied the throne. In his letters to the king, Gordon-Haddon, who served with distinction in the World War, is said to have threatened that he would wash the dirty linen of the royal family in public if he were not given enough money to open a board-

An outstanding sports event for Shelby fans was announced this morning by Jim Harris and Paul Weathers, who have promoted a game here between the University of North Carolina's basketball team and the Stone Cutter Mill team, said to be one of the fastest semi-pro teams in the south.

The game, which will be played in the tin can on the evening of December 23, was arranged through Cricket Weathers of Shelby, member of the Chapel Hill team. The Carolina boys will play the Charlotte Y.M.C.A. team in Charlotte Friday night, and will come over to Shelby for the game on Saturday.

Woodson And Staff Called To Raleigh

Harry ("General Johnson") Woodson, with Mrs. T. W. Hamrick, Miss Alice Goode King and Robert Hord, members of his relief administration staff, went to Raleigh yesterday to confer with Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, state civil works administrator. They are expected to return this afternoon.

They made the trip on the telegraphic request of Mrs. O'Berry. Court house officials said today they didn't know why they were called, but thought it might have something to do with plans to establish Cleveland county's relief offices in the building in the rear of the post office. The court house quarters are overcrowded daily.

Greenville, S. C., Dec. 12.—Miss Doris Duke, in a happy spirit, yesterday shouldered her share of the responsibility of administering the huge endowment established by her father.

It was a serious-minded, but frequently smiling, America's richest heiress who came from New York to participate in a celebration here of the ninth anniversary of the founding of the $40,000,000 endowment and attend a meeting of the trustees.

"I am having a wonderful visit—enjoying every minute of it" she told newsmen in a brief interview. "I hope that I may come back again."

Shows the same spirit of philanthropy that characterized her multi-millionaire forebear, the late James B. Duke, power and tobacco magnate, she spent nearly an hour visiting youngsters at the Shriner's hospital for crippled children, one of the participants in her father's beneficence.

Many of the children had written her in anticipation of her visit. She thanked them for their thoughtfulness.

As the tall, blonde and strikingly beautiful visitor prepared to leave, a score of the youngsters stood up and gave her and the other Duke trustees a cheer in collegiate fashion.

"Such lovely children," she told her mother Mrs. Nanaline H. Duke, as she left the hospital. "I enjoyed my visit with them ever so much."

After a brief rest at her hotel, the young heiress with her mother attended the meeting of the trustees. She became a member of the board a fortnight ago, at the same time she came into possession of $10,000,000 of a $30,000,000 trust fund left her from her father's millions.

Wearing a brown fur coat and a hat of the same color, Miss Duke stepped from her special car at the railway station shortly after noon. A motorcycle police escort roared ahead of her automobile to the hotel and accompanied her on the visit to the hospital.

She remarked casually to a member of her party that it was the first time outside of New York she had had a police escort.

Shortly after her arrival, she attended a luncheon in honor of the endowment trustees. She planned to visit other hospitals and institutions sharing in the endowment tomorrow and leave during the afternoon on the return trip to New York.

Commerce Body To Be Operating By January First

Organization Rapidly Moving Forward

E. A. Houser Is Employed By Board As Secretary; Membership Drive This Week.

Organization plans for the Shelby chamber of commerce and merchants association are fast materializing. J. D. Lineberger, chairman, said today, and every indication is that it will be functioning by January 1, if not sooner. E. A. Houser, Jr., has been employed as secretary by the board of directors and temporary offices have been opened in room 24, Lineberger building.

Canvass of the city for members will probably be made this week, directors planning to meet probably this afternoon to work out details of classifications and other matters of similar nature.

While the terms "chamber of commerce" is being used, directors point out that one of the most important matters to which attention will be given is merchants' problems, the office to be really a combined merchants bureau and chamber of commerce. While, naturally, efforts will be made to interest possible new lines of industry that might be logically located in Shelby the prime effort of the body is to develop the town by the efforts of its own citizens rather than to spend time and money in an effort to attract outside interest.

Every effort will be made to make of the chamber of commerce a clearing house of information of value to every business and professional man of the city, practically every line of endeavor being represented on the board of directors. It is believed that it will be possible to get active participation in community affairs by business men generally through the organization.

Board Of Directors
Directors, in addition to Mr. Lineberger, include R. E. Campbell, O. M. Mull, Lee B. Weathers, J. S. Dorton, J. F. Schenck, Jr., J. R. Dover, Max Washburn, John P. McKnight, G. W. Neely, Harvey White, Dr. S. S. Royster and Thad C. Ford.

Junior College Champs Honored

B. S. Football Squad Banqueted Because of Their Victorious Season on Gridiron.

Bolling Springs, Dec. 12.—A banquet sponsored by a number of football fans of Bolling Springs and Shelby was given in the college dining hall Thursday evening honoring the college football squad who have recently won the Jr. College championship of North Carolina.

Elaborate banquet plates were served to sixty-three which included the members of the football team their girl friends, the sponsors of the banquet and their wives. The president of the college, Rev. J. L. Jenkins was toast master. Mr. Zeno Wall, toasted Mr. Paul Hutchins, the coach. Mrs. J. L. Jenkins gave a toast to the team to which Mr. George Mauney responded.

After the banquet supper the members of the squad were introduced to the guests. The college community, county and state are justly proud of these boys who have worked so faithfully this season with their coach Mr. Hutchins. They have made an enviable record not only in winning the championship but also in good sportsmanship.

Officials of the hospital are very grateful for this assistance and similar gifts from other organizations of the city and county will be received with appreciation.

Headed for Separate Goals

DOUG and MARY

"After divorce—what?" Hollywood gossips are asking, referring to the suit filed against Douglas Fairbanks in Los Angeles by Mary Pickford. Pickfair will probably be sold and it is believed Mary may seek forgetfulness in a return to the screen in an attempt to win back the place she once held as "America's Sweetheart." Doug, it is said, may become a permanent resident of England, it being rumored that he may even become Sir Douglas Fairbanks. The American D'Artagnan has been organizing a $5,000,000 film company in the English capital since last August. In London, Doug is something of a social lion, his friendship with the Prince of Wales being his passport to the most exclusive drawing-rooms in the land.

North Carolina Home Owner's Loan Amounts To Almost Four Millions

Man Loses $500 Unknown Friend Brings It Back

Suppose you found $500. Would you look for the owner? Or would you keep the money and say nothing? Somebody in Shelby had that temptation this week and overcame it—more than that, wouldn't even reveal his name. It happened like this:

S. F. Lee, Lawndale merchant, dropped a leather wallet containing $500 in the Webb theatre on Monday night. He didn't discover the loss until his return home. At 1 a. m. he telephoned Floyd Willis, projection room operator, got him out of bed, and the two searched the theatre thoroughly. No pocket-book.

But when Bill Webb, theatre owner, came down yesterday morning, the wallet had been thrust through the window in the ticket office. It was intact.

Farmers filled the seats, the balcony, the aisles, as Johnson, himself a southern cotton grower, spoke for two hours.

County farm agents lined the platform as Johnson discussed the 10,300,000 acre plow-up campaign this year and the 15,000,000-acre cotton reduction plan of next year. He urged farmers to sign the new contracts within the next 30 days.
