

Situation As To Kings Mtn. Park

Hope That Work Will Begin This Spring. Question as to Condemnation Proceedings.

(Yorkville Enquirer.)

There have been no new developments about the construction of the Kings Mountain National Military park, near Yorkville, lately.

It is now up to Washington, where the several bureaus of the national park service of the interior department are completing their reports on each phase of the work here, ready for presentation in due form to the RFC which controls the money required.

The more the known facts are studied and analyzed the more hope is engendered that work on the new national park will begin this spring and be pushed to completion. It would have been started long ago, had it not been for the two landowners, at the park site asking around $100 an acre for their land causing rather slow determination of a way to overcome that obstacle.

Finally a legal short cut to condemnation proceedings was found by the solicitor of the department obviating the fatal delay sometimes met in condemnation of land. Then the question in the minds of those with the final decision about the whole project was how much money a federal court jury would give those landowners for their property—and especially they wanted a pretty definite sum fixed for that.

That crisis was met and overcome when J. A. Tate told the associate director of the national park service, at the Battleground, the other day, that he was certain condemnation would allow no higher price for those two tracts of land than he had estimated as their real value, in a report to the bureau, some time ago, and said he would guarantee that.

"In what form would you put that guarantee?" asked the park service chief with a smile.

"I'll put up $1,000 cash," quickly answered Mr. Tate. At once Major W. B. Moore said he would join in that deposit of cash, and the face of the park service chief took on a different look. He said that changed things a lot. A little later, men from Kings Mountain, N. C., said they would underwrite half of the $1,000 for Messrs. Tate and Moore and that part was firmly settled. Those who have been watching closely all the moves in the project, believe that the quick and loyal action of Mr. Tate and Major Moore moved the whole park project from the distant future into real consideration for the immediate present, by removing the objections to starting work before the land was all through.

N. Y. Cotton Prices Keep Even Level

New York, Jan. 25.—Cotton prices moved narrowly in quiet trading yesterday. An opening advance was followed by reactions which carried the price of May from 11.36 to 11.23 in the late trading under liquidation and scattered selling. That delivery closed at 11.25 with the general market ending barely steady at net losses of two to seven points. First prices were four to seven points higher on overnight buying orders through trade and commission house sources. Later the market was quiet. March eased off in the afternoon. March eased off

Kiwanis Installs District Governors

Greensboro, Jan. 25.—With impressive ceremonies here today Ralph C. Barker of Durham, was installed as district governor of Kiwanis International in the Carolina district in succession to William H. Montgomery, of Wilmington. This was one of the chief activities of the one day mid-winter meeting of the Carolinas' district. Lieutenant governors for the new year were presented as follows: from the early high of 11.21 to 11.10 while July declined from 11.51 to 11.40, and closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest.

Governor's Lady Strike Picket

The Governor's Lady and a humble laundry worker are linked in the great sisterhood of woman as Mrs. Gifford Pinchot (right), wife of Pennsylvania's chief executive, dons a sandwich board and becomes a strike picket to aid laundry workers in New York. Mrs. Pinchot played a similar role during strike of shirt makers in Philadelphia last year.

Scene of Kansas Jail Break

An exterior view of the high prison wall around Kansas State Penitentiary, at Lansing, Kan., over which 7 convicts made their escape after overpowering guard. Dotted line shows where they crossed the wall. The break was led by Jim Clark (left), lifer. At right, Benjamin Young, another of the fugitives. A Kansas male teacher, Louis Dresser, was temporarily kidnaped and his car commandeered by the convicts in their get-away.

Statesmanship and Champagne

Now that the law has okayed it, a wandering United States statesman can bend the elbow in good-fellowship without shocking the folks back home. Here's Secretary of State Cordell Hull (right) and President Hiram Bingham of Panama, discussing international relations and peace in goblets of sparkling champagne at Panama City. Secretary Hull recently returned to Washington after South American tour.

As Bam Signed at Cut Rate

Eight times these two men, Colonel Jake Ruppert (left), owner of the New York Yankees, and Babe Ruth, star slugger of the team, have been photographed in a setting such as this. But on this occasion there was a slight shadow over the proceedings, for Babe signed a contract for 1934 at a figure $17,000 lower than last year's. However, $35,000 is a pretty nice salary at that.
