State College Writer Deplores Highways Marred By Bill Boards

(By Anne Pauline Smith, District Agent, N. C. State College)

Is there no way to build up sentiment against the indiscriminate posting of bills and the lumping of tin cans, rubbish heaps, and old cars along our highways?

Bill boards are a common source of ugliness. They range in size from the small ones on boards and trees to the printed signs tacked on telephone posts and trees. Trees are stunted, buildings defaced, and the landscape obscured by them.

Supervised Boards

Where bill board advertisement is permitted, well designed boards placed with discrimination, and only with the advice and consent of the supervising landscape architect and district Highway Supervisor, should be permitted.

Campers Cause Thirty Per Cent Forest Fires

Raleigh, March 1.—Recreationists, campers, hunters and fishermen, were charged with 30 per cent of the damage done by forest fires in January in the 33 counties of the State cooperating in forest fire control, in the monthly report of the department of conservation. Recreation seekers have 159 of the 513 January fires chalked up against them. Smokers caused 113; unknown sources, 59; incendiaries, 58; brush burners, 56; miscellaneous, 55; railroads, 8 and lumbering, 1.

Bad Weather Causes Relief Roll Jump

Raleigh, Mar. 1.—Cold weather and seasonal unemployment were responsible for an increase of more than 10,000 North Carolina families on direct relief rolls during January. Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, state emergency relief administrator, reported.
