N. C. State Has 45th Anniversary

Observe Birthday Of Technical School; Four Original Members Present.

RALEIGH, Oct. 4.—The forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of N. C. State college was observed at a celebration on the campus Wednesday with Jonathan Daniels, editor of The Raleigh News and Observer, making the principal address.

Mr. Daniels asserted that State college is the "inevitable" place for the consolidated school of engineering, which is now partly at the Chapel Hill campus of the University of North Carolina.

"Technical education by the state must be for the benefit of the state and technical advance should always be in terms of better living for the many, not the enrichment of the few," Mr. Daniels declared.

He said that men have fought and died in America within the last year over issues in industry which had already been fought and settled in England and other countries long ago.

"We have belatedly come to the realization that man's knowledge must be put to the service of all men. We are realizing that no man has the right to seize upon technological advance as a tool of exploitation to create wealth for himself and suffering for others," he declared.

Four members of State's first graduating class were present and were introduced. They were: W. J. Matthews of Goldsboro, and C. B. Williams, L. Y. Yarborough, and S. M. Young, all of Raleigh.

GARDENS AND FLOWERS

Sponsored By Shelby Garden Club.

By R. W. SHOFFNER

Under the name of Garden and Flowers, there will appear in the Star for several weeks, suggestions on the care of each of these.

These will come from the very best home authorities in Shelby and Cleveland county.

Since the time is right for grass sowing the first articles will deal with winter grass sowing.

In preparing for a lawn in the fall there are several things to consider before sowing grass seed. First is the condition of the soil—that is, whether it is ready to be sown or not.

In this article I am dealing primarily with grass that is suitable for winter lawns. If the lawn has grass on it now and you want to re-seed it for winter purposes, rye grass is the best kind of grass to sow. The lawn should be mowed first fairly close and then raked with a steel rake enough to scratch the surface of the soil. The seed should be mixed with some kind of fertilizer of rich dirt so as to make it easier to sow. After the seed has been sown, you should again rake the seed in; and if you have some rich dirt, broadcast the lawn thoroughly with this, enough to partly cover the seed. Then it is advisable to wet the lawn thoroughly to settle the seed and the new dirt that has been broadcast.

If this is a newly prepared lawn, the soil should be worked thoroughly and should have a good rain to settle the soil; and then scratch the top of the soil lightly with a steel rake, making sure that all rough places and low places are smoother so as to make a perfect seed bed. When you finish sowing one way, turn around and sow the other half of the seed across the last way you sowed. This should be raked in very lightly, raking only one way; do not push your rake back and forward as this will bury the seed. The best time for seeding the seed is right now. Fertilizer with a high content of nitrogen is the best fertilizer for this type of grass. It might be advisable to use some lime in preparing the soil if there is not sufficient lime already present in the soil. Seed should be sown at the rate of approximately one and one-half pounds to every 200 square feet.

Loray Evictions Are Sustained In Bitter Fight

Magistrate Boyce Wilson Issues Orders Of Eviction For Two Families.

(Special to The Star.)

GASTONIA, Oct. 4.—Orders evicting two families from Loray mill company houses were upheld by Magistrate Boyce Wilson Wednesday afternoon following hearings in which attorneys for the defendants bitterly fought the move.

The Loray Mill company today issued orders of eviction on 19 families who are occupying company houses, and members of which have previously been employed in the mill.

Each case is being heard separately, and it is expected that the remainder of the hearings will consume another day or possibly two.

Mag. Stephen B. Dolley is representing the mill company in the proceedings.

It was intimated that other families would be served with eviction orders when the present 19 cases have been heard.

Attorneys for the families faced with eviction have made it known that they plan to appeal unfavorable decision to the superior court. No notice of appeal was filed in the two cases decided in favor of the mill company today, but it was understood that all 19 cases or as many of them as culminate unfavorably for the defendants, will be appealed in one action.

Attorneys for the defendants in the eviction orders announced here today that a telegram had been received from the National Labor Relations board to the effect that two of its representatives would come here at once to investigate charges that the families were being evicted because of discrimination against them as union members in the recent textile strike.

Federal investigators have arrived in Gastonia to look into conditions at the Loray and attempt to adjust the differences.

RALEIGH, Oct. 4.—Wake Forest college, which now has no auditorium or adequate gymnasium facilities, today had let a contract for a building that will combine the feature of both.

Plans call for completion of the structure in about six months. The building will be of brick and will be fireproof throughout. The cost will be around $150,000.

Low bidder on the contract was the George W. Kane Construction company of Durham, while the plumbing and heating contract was let to the Blumann and Rowell company of Raleigh.

Basketball games and other indoor sports will be played on the auditorium floor. Collapsible seats will be used and a seating capacity of about 2,500 will be afforded. The college lost its auditorium when Wingate Hall was destroyed by fire nearly a year ago.

AAA Issues Warning To Cotton Farmers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—While AAA officials warned cotton farmers today they would be able to market scarcely more than one-fourth of their excess production certificates, Senator Russell (D. Ga.) was asking President Roosevelt to order immediate allotment of cotton acreage for 1935.

Cully Cobb, chief of the AAA cotton section, advised cotton growers not to expect a price for certificates corresponding "anywhere near" $20 a bale.

Russell told reporters after a talk with the President he believed an early announcement would be made of the 1935 allotments. He also urged the President to pay particular attention to small farmers in the distribution of the remaining 10 per cent. cotton surplus.

Require Cotton Adjustment For 1935, Schaub Declares

COLLEGE STATION, Raleigh, Oct. 4.—Without an adjustment program for cotton in 1935, there would be a danger of a rise in production and a return to the five-cent prices of 1932 and early 1933.

In issuing this warning, Dean I. O. Schaub, of State College, said he did not mean that the growers would intentionally bring about such a condition if the adjustment program were discontinued, but the natural developments would lead to it.

How It Might Be. For instance, he pointed out, one grower would think he could safely increase his crop by 10 acres and use more and better fertilizer. The present price would cause him to think such action is justified. If the 2,000,000 other cotton growers did the same, there would be an increase of 20,000,000 acres right away.

In addition to the increased acreage, the greater use of fertilizer would add greatly to the increase in production. If the growing season is good, the dean said.

How Much To Plant? "For that reason, each grower may well ask himself the timely question 'How much cotton should I plant in 1935?' The question needs to be debated at meetings of growers and by the county control associations. We should also keep in mind that every grower in the south should have the same privilege as any other group or individual," Schaub said.

"The south has seen the benefits which come from a cooperative program with themselves and their government and I do not believe they will wish to return again to the low prices and low standards of living which prevailed before the adjustment program."
