Nobel Peace Prize for Hull?

Handsome Secretary of State Cordell Hull who preaches the "good neighbor" policy to Latin America and thinks international trade the greatest bar to war, is in line for the Nobel Peace prize. According to reports from Oslo, where the Norwegian parliament has selected the committee to make the choice, the soft-speaking Tennesseean has achieved world fame by his strenuous labors in behalf of lifting world stagnation through trade agreements. Throughout his years in congress and since he became secretary, Hull has been an active "low tariff" spokesman. He was one of the most persuasive delegates to the World Economic conference that met in London last year.
