

Everyday Living

BY Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

"WRONG NUMBER"

In an English town, so a London paper reports, a ballot was taken by the telephone operators who were asked to choose the most perfect telephone subscriber...

The woman who won the election by her unflinching courtesy and unforgetting kindness, despite all irritating annoyances ought to be proud of her title...

We are always passing judgment, favorable or otherwise—chiefly on various classes of public servants or private employees. We too often forget that they are also passing judgment upon us.

"When a man is a Christian even his cat and dog know it," said wise old Dr. Johnson; and we may add, what the good doctor would not admit, that he himself did not fail in that most acid of all tests.

How many of us would pass that test—or that ought to be a far easier test, the verdict as to whether we are ladies and gentlemen, a verdict rendered by men and women who service us in the daily round?

To be a human cog in a great machine—a ticket-taker, a waiter, a telephone operator, to be tired or ill or troubled; to know that something has gone wrong, to wait with strained nerves for the inevitable sharp reproof, and to hear instead a word of kind and patient courtesy!

What a relief—it must make all life seem brighter and all people nicer for the rest of the day! Also, it must mean, in the long run, fewer "wrong numbers" for everyone, and a better spirit besides.

A great poet speaks of "that best portion of a good man's life, the little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love." Ah, but they are not remembered by those to whom they are given!

Life gets into all-softs of tangles—wrong numbers, wrong addresses, and the like. But if we have a right spirit it does not so much matter—we can untie the knots, iron out the kinks, and put it right.

How much happier the world would be, how much gentler and kinder, if all of us could pass the test the English woman passed!

Indian Summer An Ideal Time For Barbecues

Indian summer with all its color and beauty is the ideal time for a barbecue. The smoke from the roasting meat blends with the otherwise smoky atmosphere in a most enchanting way.

The larger the group for a barbecue, the better. In fact, in the old days, when a real old-fashioned barbecue was staged, as much as a hundred pounds of beef was prepared at one time.

When you plan your barbecue, you may not want to serve enough people to warrant digging a trench and roasting the meat out-of-doors.

The rib section is the choice beef cut to use for roasting and to facilitate carving, you may want to have this boned and rolled. The length of time of roasting depends on the size of the meat, the temperature and the degree of doneness desired.

Lawrence's Book Seen As Record Of Soul Struggle

By JOHN SELBY

The great mystery of T. E. Lawrence's "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" (Doubleday, Doran) is about to be solved in the mind of the general public. Or at least in the minds of the subscribers to the largest monthly book service and such others as buy the book.

This will find the book a record of the enigmatic Englishman's famed Arabian campaign, a record unique for its insights and completeness and life. But all this history and in the past and is not enough to give a book the vitality of "Seven Pillars."

This last comes from the fact that this long book is also the record of a curious, almost medieval soul struggle. Its author worked always between two impossibilities. On one side was his own clear personal ideal; on the other the bitter exigencies of fact, in this case the fact that Lawrence could not often approve of the principles which he prevailed on the Arabs to accept.

He came to consider that he had betrayed a people. He saw his superior officers and those under him with a clarity one does not expect from anybody, writer or soldier or whatnot. There are thousands of sentences which are priceless as prose, and hundreds of characterizations which cannot be forgotten.

"Seven Pillars" is of course the whole from which "Revolt in the Desert" was drawn some years hence. Its publication was made possible by the death of its author, who protected the book by many strange means when he was alive.

BUICK INTRODUCES BRILLIANT LINE OF ECONOMICAL CARS

A brilliant new line of motor cars for 1936 covering four wheel bases with a total of 14 models has been announced by the Buick Motor company at prices said to be the lowest in the company's history.

New models were on display at Shelby Saturday and will be shown hereafter by J. Lawrence Lackey, local Buick dealer.

The four groups include the Buick series 40 special on a 118-inch wheel base chassis, the series 60 Century on a 122-inch wheel base chassis, the series 80 Roadmaster on a 131-inch wheel base chassis and the series 90 Limited on a 138-inch wheel base chassis.

All are powered by Buick designed valve-in-head engines and are characterized by exceptional performance, high top speeds and distinctive new styling. Prices range from $765 for the series 40 special business coupe, the lowest priced model in the line, to $1,945 for the series 90 Limited limousine, which is Buick's highest priced car for 1936. The new prices represent reductions of from $40 to $385 under corresponding 1935 models.

Employment in the company's plants is at a peak for the year with more than 12,000 currently on the payrolls. Most of the manufacturing divisions, including the final assembly, are operating on two and three shifts.

Comparative prices of sedan models with built-in trunks for 1936 and 1935 follow:

Table with 3 columns: Model, 1936 Price, 1935 Price. Series 40 Special --- $ 885 $ 935 Series 60 Century --- 1,090 1,475 Series 80 Roadmaster 1,255 * Series 90 Limited --- 1,695 1,965 * No comparable model in 1935.
