PUPILS TREK TO SCHOOL SOON

Vital Changes Seen For Year

Age Limits Given; To Have Directed Athletics, Book Rentals.

A number of progressive features and some changes of importance to pupils and patrons of Shelby schools were announced today by Superintendent Walter E. Abernethy. Nearly 4,000 children of the city will trek to school on Monday at 8:40.

A general teachers meeting will be held Saturday at 10 o'clock at the high school building for further planning of the year's work. The new superintendent has already had private conferences with all the

2. There will be for the first time a directed program of physical education for high school girls. It will be in charge of Mrs. Ben Hendricks who in addition to her ciasses will give instructions to some 200 girls.

3. The book rental system will used again and books may be purchased for one third the actual price and will be returned at the end of the school year. All books are available with the exception of high school math and Latin. All books will be sold by Miss Hazel Putnam at the stock room at the high school building,

4. Part time classes in typing, shorthand, etc. will be given. These dasses are not limited to high school students but may be taken by non graduates who have dropped out or by those who have already graduated.

Zoar Road Getting Last Top Treatment

A final coat of all-weather surace is being applied to the Zoar-Boiling Springs highway this week and the new road will be open for traffic in a short time.

The road will cover about eight miles from Zoar church two miles south of Shelby to Boiling Springs. The east end of the road connects with highway 18 and the west end goes on to Cliffside. Reconditioning and surfacing have been in process for several months.

Bitter Disappointment Forced On Spectators Statements Made By Officials

In an impartial and unbiased effort to determine the causes of the confusion in the president's parade here yesterday. The Star this morning secured statements from several officials who were connected with No One Seems the unfortunate mix-up. Their statements are published below in an effort to present to the citizens of Shelby and Cleveland county all sides of the controversy.

Regarding Cause Of Confusion

Lieut. Fisher Says He Authorized The Short-Cut On His Own Responsibility

"I assume responsibility for routing the presidential party over Marion street through Shelby," said Lieut. Fisher of the State Highway Patrol. Lieut. Fisher had charge of the presidential party routings as it gathered yesterday in hopes Regrets Message traveled from the Tennessee line to Charlotte. He is stationed in Ashe- of getting a glimpse of the ville. Explaining his side of the matter, Lieut. Fisher said:

No suggestion or request came to me from Shelby or any other passed through the city on source as to which of the two alternate routes should be used through his way to the Green Pastures Shelby, Had I been asked to use Warren street, I would have gladly so

"Rutherfordton, Forest City, Kings Mountain and Bessemer City officials communicated with me with requests for routings through those failed to see him pass. The towns and I gladly accommodated them. Practically all of these towns crowd was on the wrong sent out escorts to meet and direct the party. Shelby did not."

Question: "Wasn't Bob Kendrick at the intersection of Warren and Marion to direct the motorcade over the official eastbound route?" A. on the three city blocks of Warren "I understand he was, but I was behind the 20 advance guard patrolmen street. By 3 o'clock, the block beon motorcycles and did not see him."

Question: "Why did your patrolmen not follow Kendrick's instructions?" A. "Chances are those men were patrolmen from eastern Caroline and did not know Kendrick was an officer of the law."

Question. "Did the advance guard have authority to change the rout- communities lined up along the ing from Marion to Warren when notified by a local officer that the curb. Thousands were standing spectators were on that street?" A. "Yes, they respect instructions of along West Warren street, uniformed officers, but Mr. Kendrick was not in uniform. He was in thousands more along East Warren civilian clothes and being thus clothed, the patrolmen followed my instructions to use Marion street.

Question. "Don't you know that Warren is the official route for eastbound traffic?" A. "It is so marked, but I have never been officially children were along the highway notified. Furthermore I have always used Marion street because it is a near the fairgrounds, and many shorter cut through the city and passes the city hall where the local other school busses brought the patrolmen maintain headquarters. Question. "When the advance motorcycle men came in on Marion and found the people on the other street, why did they not notify the passed through, the mob was one presidential car?" A. "They cleared the streets and went back, but the of the best natured ever assembled presidential car had already entered Marion street in Lover's Lane where here. Jokes as to the reason for it was stoppd for the car top to be lowered so everybody could see.'

Patrolman C. A. Speed, stationed in Rutherford county, was in the advance guard and did know Deputy Bob Kendrick. Mr. Kendrick notified Speed of the route to follow but he continued as directed by his lieutenant. When Lieut. Fisher was asked why Speed didn't obey Ken-In Gas Explosion drick's orders, he said he might have done so, had Kendrick been dress- ed the number of people lined up ed in the uniform of a peace officer.

Lieut. Fisher expressed regret over the keen disappointment of the crowd and the president. "It was the most unpleasant affair of the whole journey and we traveled 250 miles," said he.

"Twenty patrolmen on motorcycles were kept far in advance of the presidential party to clear the highways. We required all private vehicles to drive to the side and park and did not pass a single moving vehicle. A special escort of eight men were directly with the president. The advance men clearing the highways always kept out of sight in advance of the chief executive," he said.
