

S.C. Man Sentenced On Stolen Property Charge

A South Carolina man was given a suspended prison sentence last week in Brunswick County District Criminal Court after he was found guilty on a misdemeanor stolen property charge.

James E. Powell, 31, of McClellanville, S.C., pleaded not guilty Feb. 16 to possession of stolen property, according to the Brunswick County Clerk of Court's office.

After the defendant was found guilty on the misdemeanor count, Judge David G. Wall sentenced him to a six-month prison term, suspended for two years. He was placed on unsupervised probation.

In addition, Wall ordered Powell to pay a $25 fine, court costs and $30 restitution to the victim. He also was ordered to perform 24 hours of community service work within 60 days.

According to court records, Powell was arrested Nov. 3, 1987, at Ocean Isle Beach by Police Officer J.W. Todd. The defendant was placed in the Brunswick County Jail under a $1,500 bond.

An arrest warrant stated that Powell had stolen a motor vehicle license tag belonging to a Myrtle Beach, S.C., man. The theft occurred on the same day of Powell's arrest.
