

It's For The Birds—Really

The popcorn was too good to resist for John Pope (with his mother, Martha, at left), who had a change of heart after stringing popcorn with his cranberries. John and another 30-plus youngsters, including Megan Williams, Steve Mann and James Ferguson (right), were making Christmas treats for the birds last Tuesday at the West

Brunswick Branch Library. The children hung the edible garlands, along with suet balls and pine cones stuffed with peanut butter and suet, said Jean Russ, who chaired the annual project of the Long Bay Garden Club.

Adopt A Dog From Shelter

A male labrador and a male golden retriever are available for adoption from the Brunswick County Animal Shelter, just in time to settle into the household before the Christmas holidays.

Both are more than a year old, said Animal Control Supervisor Zelma Babson.

Also available is a six-month-old female mixed terrier, with long, soft black, gray and beige wirehair.

These pets and others can be seen from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the shelter, which is located off N.C. 211 south of Supply.

FBLA Members Boost Christmas Spirits

In the spirit of Christmas, members of the West Brunswick High School Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) Club are giving teachers and administrators a break today (Thursday).

The club is serving a coffee break in the teachers' lounge, with coffee, Christmas cookies, nuts, cake and a vegetable and meat tray. Invitations were Christmas cards designed and made by a club member.

Also during the week, members to go caroling at Brunswick Village residential care facility, taking Christmas cards with a small gift of cash tucked inside.

During the last week of November, FBLA sponsored its annual Christmas door decorating contest at the high school.

Community residents with no children in school judged the doors on Dec. 8, with first place going to Susan Tubb, second to Faye Fullwood and third to Mike Alderson. Teachers were urged to have students decorate the doors, using a theme related to the subject or subjects taught inside the room.

Second-Graders Writing To Pen Pals Across USA

Second-grade students at Union Primary School have made friends with second-graders across the country under a special pen pal program designed to encourage youngsters to write.

The Writing Pals program, sponsored by "Weekly Reader" magazine, allows local students to write to children all over the United States, according to teacher Pat Fenton.

Under the program, students learn about different areas of the country and different schools, while also learning various writing skills.

In February, some of the classes involved in the project will receive a complimentary kit from the Polaroid Education Program which this year is cooperating with "Weekly Reader" to expand the program.

The kit will contain a camera and pack of film which the class will use in conjunction with a classroom poster designed to look like a page in a photo album. Photos will be attached to the poster, and posters will then be exchanged between classes.

Over the 10-year history of the Writing Pals program, more than five million children have exchanged letters with students of similar ages but different backgrounds.

Lynell Johnson, executive editor of "Weekly Reader," said, "The program builds friendships across the parts. It teaches kids about other parts of their country, and it gets them writing."
