Shop Owner Gets Suspended Sentence For Gambling Violation

The co-owner of a Long Beach bait and tackle shop was sentenced to a fine and suspended jail term last week in Brunswick County District Criminal Court after he was convicted of a gambling violation at his business.

Last Wednesday in Bolivia, Judge William C. Gore Jr. found Paul Walker, 52, of Long Beach, guilty of allowing gambling at Oak Island Bait and Tackle Shop, according to the Brunswick County Clerk of Court's Gambling at an establishment with an ABC license is a misdemeanor offense. The charge was filed against Walker on Dec. 21, 1988, by Alcohol Law Enforcement Agent Billy

Neither Nichols nor Walker could be reached for comment Monday; however, an employee at the shop told the Beacon Monday that the charge involved coin-operated poker machines.

Judge Gore last Wednesday sentenced Walker to a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term, suspended for two years. Also, Walker was ordered not to allow any type of gambling on the premises of any business for which he holds an ABC license.
