Commanding General To Visit West Brunswick

When the West Brunswick High School Junior ROTC Cadets conducted their dedication ceremony for their new building in September, their commanding general from Fort Bragg had to send his regrets due a commanders' conference at the Training and Doctrine Command.

GENERAL ARNOLD

Brigadier General Wallace C. Arnold, the Commanding General of the First ROTC Region, assured the West Brunswick cadets that he wanted to visit them and see their first-class facility at the earliest opportunity.

Next Wednesday, General Arnold will make good on that promise. He will arrive at 9 a.m. and remain on campus through lunch. After a brief office call on Ed Lemon, West Brunswick High principal,

Gen. Arnold will be briefed by the cadet battalion staff. During the balance of the morning he will see a drill demonstration, tour the new building and speak to the cadets in classroom #1. Prior to lunch, Gen. Arnold will hold a press conference to give his reaction to the new building.

Gen. Arnold is in his third year of commanding the First ROTC Region which encompasses all the Senior ROTC units in colleges and Junior ROTC units in high schools from Maine to Florida.

He graduated from Hampton Institute and earned a masters degree from George Washington University as well as attended the the Army's Command and General Staff College and the Naval War College. Gen. Arnold has served in Vietnam, Korea, Okinawa and Europe. He has been awarded the Defense Superior Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal and Meritorious Service Medal. He earned the Vietnam Service Medal with three Campaign Medals, the Army Service Medal and the Vietnam Campaign Medal.

Following his visit to West Brunswick he will travel to Wilmington to the Senior ROTC Battalion at UNC Wilmington.
