

Pastor To Discuss Decline Of Values

The founder and president of a citizens group in Charlotte will discuss what people can do to stop the decline of traditional moral values in America at a public meeting Friday, May 11, at 7 p.m. at Brunswick Community College in Supply.

The Rev. Joseph R. Chambers, pastor of Paw Creek Church of God in Charlotte and leader of Concerned Charlotteans, will speak in the teaching auditorium located on the second floor of the ALS Building at BCC's main campus.

The pastor will discuss how individuals and local groups can work to reverse the decline of traditional values, according to spokesperson Nancy Conn.

Chambers has a weekly radio program and hosts a one-hour talk show on public television, both in Charlotte. He has also appeared on the nationally televised talk show Donahue and authored several books.

Elect A Leader With Vision

“ The tax rate must be held to the lowest level possible while providing funding for the operation of the county at a level set by the people. We must understand that the largest growth within our county is retired people with fixed income; however we must also understand that as the ‘graying of Brunswick’ continues, more services will be demanded from our county government. To operate our government we may need to look upon user fees and impact fees as an additional source of income. I will not state that I would never vote for an increase in our tax rate, I will state that I expect every agency and department to show where past money has been spent, results of that expense and prove that the voters received a $1.00 worth of value for $1.00 spent. ”

“ The environment is not a catch phrase of the 90s. It is the land, the people and the quality of life we all love. The Lockwood Folly river basin is nature's first objection and we must heed the call, find the problem(s) and correct it. We must not stop at that, we must go beyond and have a growth management plan that will direct the growth instead of growth directing our plans. The Lockwood Folly basin does not stand alone in our attention, we must look at all rivers and waterways to ensure we leave Brunswick County a better place for our children and the future. ”

“ The greatest skill I have for this job is the ability to view the world from someone else's viewpoint. My training and work experiences are from my administrative training at Guilford College to working within our state's prison system, to my current employment and co-ownership of a business. I have always been a ‘people person,’ willing to listen and to find mutual grounds for solving problems. I know government from within, the highs and lows from working for others and the pressure of meeting a payroll. ”

“ The water issue may never go away. We already have serious problems in various communities that are presently on county water. Other communities are in serious need of water with no plans or funding to get water to these communities. This county must find funding—the amount varies per study, some now, some later—but all within this decade. The water problem is the best example of why Brunswick County must look to the future with new leadership within our elected government. ”

“ I could talk about issues, but issues change. I could talk about growth, protecting our environment or county services, but ideas change. The one thing that does not change is leadership ability of the person. My education, training and past leadership positions have brought me to this time when I'm asking for another leadership position—County

Commissioner. I will not tell you that I will never trip or maybe fall. I do promise that I will involve the public, I will be open and always available and will strive to always do the best for Brunswick County to the best of my ability. ”
