Sewing Workshop Set For January

A basic and advanced clothing maintenance and construction workshop for adults will be offered Jan. 8-11 at the Brunswick County Agricultural Extension Office in Bolivia.

Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Registration is limited said Pearl W. Stanley, home economics extension agent. Participants should pre-register by calling the extension office at 253-4425.

Participants will learn the principle parts of the sewing machine, how to thread the upper part of the machine, stitching, fabric selection, lay-out, marking and cutting.

Each will construct a garment with two or more of the following features: set-in sleeves, collar, pleats, tucks, pockets and buttonholes.

Bolivia Students Study Recycling

Terry Munn, head of the Brunswick Clean County Department, recently talked with fifth graders at Bolivia Elementary School about the importance of recycling to preserve energy and save natural resources.

The highlight of the program for students was the hands-on experience of recycling paper, according to a school news release.

"I enjoyed making paper," said student Jennifer Fowler. "I really think that people should recycle every day because if we did, all of the landfills wouldn't be full. We would have a cleaner place to live."

Classmate Marilyn Baysa said, "Mr. Munn really got my attention about recycling. I discussed it with my parents and we are going to start doing more recycling."

Still alive and on my way to 38!

Make Gardening Resolutions For '91

BY C. BRUCE WILLIAMS Area Extension Turfgrass Agent

I am a chronic list maker and the beginning of a new year always brings with it items to add to my list of "must do" activities.

Landscape and gardening projects that are most successful require substantial thought and planning. I have found that the most successful gardeners or landscapers are able to mentally visualize in great detail the finished product.

Knowing exactly what is desired is perhaps the most important aspect of getting the job done in a planned, timely way. Beautiful landscapes, lawns and gardens do not just "happen," they are planned.

The holiday season usually offers some time to reflect on past gardening experiences and to plan for future endeavors, in the form of New Year's resolutions.

Here are some gardening resolutions for 1991:

1. Compost garden waste.
According to a recent publication, more than 20 percent of municipal landfill space is being taken up with garden waste. Grass clippings, leaves and other plant materials make excellent compost fodder.

THE PLANT DOCTOR

I know of no soil that wouldn't benefit from the addition of good compost. In addition to improving your garden soil, you will not be contributing to the ever-worsening environmental problems associated with landfills.

2. Beautify the landscape.
The best way to beautify your home landscape is to start with a plan. The more detailed the plan the better the resulting landscape. Schedule time to attend classes or seminars on landscape planning and design. Take time to look at and visit the landscapes in your neighborhood to determine what you like or dislike.

Sketch out the changes you would like to make and think about the overall image your landscape will present. Consider the maintenance that will be needed to keep your landscape in tip-top shape.

3. Correctly maintain the landscape.

I have always said that landscape installation and maintenance is similar to having a family. Landscape installation is fun and fleeting, but maintenance must occur on a daily basis for many years. A small but correctly maintained landscape is much more attractive than a large, complex landscape that is inadequately maintained. Learn about proper pruning techniques, soil fertility, watering and chemical use.

4. Use pest-resistant vegetable, fruit and ornamental varieties.

One of the best approaches to take in reducing maintenance and chemical usage in the home garden is to take full advantage of the many genetically resistant plant varieties available. Many vegetable, fruit and ornamental plants have been developed that are tolerant or resistant to plant pests.

When you have a choice, choose plants that have genetic resistance to insect, disease or nematode pests.

Send your gardening questions to the Plant Doctor, P.O. Box 109, Bolivia, N.C. 28422.

CLUB BRIEFS

AARP To Install Officers

A new slate of officers will be installed at the Jan. 3 meeting of Calabash Chapter 3640 of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). The meeting starts at 7 p.m. in the Calabash fire station.

To be installed are Tony Santino, president; Blair Friedlander, vice president; Jean Elarde, secretary; Janet Fawley, assistant secretary; Joe Massey, treasurer; and Harriet Olson, assistant treasurer.

Calabash E.M.S. representatives will give a talk and demonstration at the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Carroll To Speak

Brunswick County Volunteer and Information Center Director Shirley Carroll will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Town Creek Senior Citizens.

The meeting is scheduled Thursday, Jan. 3, at 1 p.m. in the Town Creek Community Building. Refreshments will be served.

Spokesman Bill Dunn said the meeting is open to the public. All senior citizens of Bolivia, Boiling Spring Lakes, Funston, Old Towne, Town Creek and Winnabow are encouraged to attend.

NARFE To Meet

The Brunswick County Chapter of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, Jan. 8, at noon at the Sandfiddler Restaurant in Southport.

This will be an organizational meeting to make plans for 1991. Spokesman James H. Bryant said all members and prospective members are urged to attend.

NARFE meetings are open to the public. Membership is available to all federal retirees and federal employees with at least five years of service.

Enjoy The Timeless Beauty Of The Season

May the coming year bloom with promise for all our dear friends.

BCC Offers EMT/AA Classes

The Brunswick Community College Continuing Education Department will offer three courses for police, fire and rescue personnel starting in January.

The college will offer emergency medical technician (EMT) classes at the Leland and Long Beach rescue squad buildings and a recertification course for EMTs and Ambulance Attendants at Leland.

The EMT classes will cover a variety of subjects, including how to deal with airway obstruction and respiratory arrest, bleeding, shock and fractures. As part of the course, each participant will be required to have 10 hours of clinical time in the emergency room of an area hospital.

The Leland EMT course will begin Jan. 3, 1991, and continue through April 20, 1991. Nancy Long will be the instructor. The class will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Danny Laughren will teach the EMT class at Long Beach Rescue Squad. The first class will be Friday, Jan. 11, starting at 6 p.m. Students can register at that time.

Nancy Long will teach the EMT/AA recertification course at Leland Rescue Squad Building Jan. 9-26. Class will be held each Wednesday and Friday from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m.

All three courses are free for police, fire and rescue personnel and North Carolina residents who are at least 65 years old.

For more information on the classes, call the BCC Continuing Education Department at 754-6922.
