Old Baldy Featured On Wildlife Stamp

The Bald Head Island lighthouse and four blue-winged teal are featured on North Carolina's 1991 duck stamp and art print.

Old Baldy, considered the oldest lighthouse on the North Carolina coast, is the third lighthouse to be featured in the annual waterfowl stamp print program, according to the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission.

Wildlife artist Phillip Crowe of Franklin, Tenn., painted this year's print after a trip to Smith Island on the mouth of the Cape Fear River.

The waterfowl stamp soon will be available from commission hunting and fishing license agents. Fred Taylor of Ash and Wayne Miracle of Southport are the local agents.

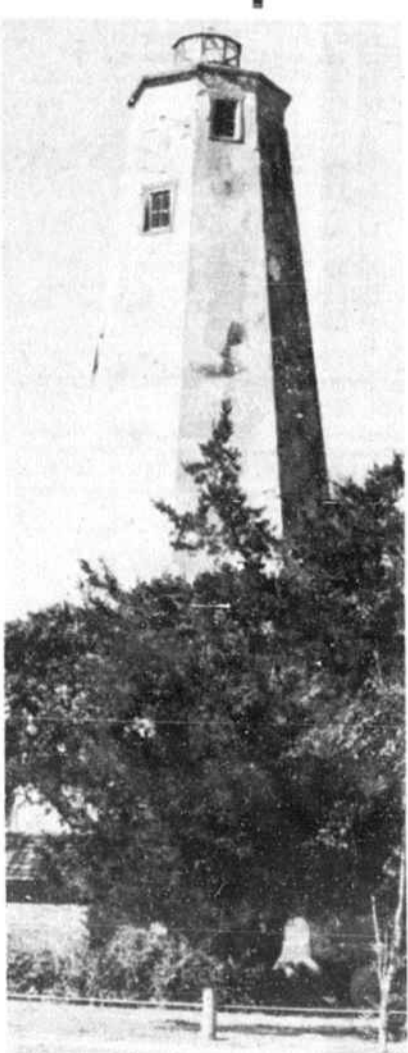

Art dealers also will begin taking orders for the 1991 duck stamp print, which will be on sale through Dec. 31, 1992.

After that time, remaining duck stamp prints will be destroyed to increase the value of prints that collectors have purchased.

North Carolina's duck stamp program is eight years old. Waterfowl hunters in the state have been required to buy a state waterfowl license in addition to the federal waterfowl stamp since 1987.

Money generated from the sale of waterfowl licenses and print royalties goes into the commission's special waterfowl fund, which has helped purchase thousands of acres of wetlands in the state.

The money helps meet the state's financial obligations in implementing the North American Waterfowl Management Plan, a news release from the commission indicated. The money also has funded a goose-restoration project and the purchase

Excellent Offshore Fishing Predicted For Easter Week

BY JAMIE MILLIKEN

If you have not started your maintenance program on your boat and fishing gear, then you are certainly running behind. The season is here! This winter has been one of the mildest ever. A quick check with the local weather station confirmed that the temperature dropped below 32 degrees a total of 18 times during the past winter; far off the average of 44 times per winter.

Charter boats have already begun daily charters. Last week one captain reported excellent catches of king mackerel, pink snapper and black sea bass in the 30- to 40-mile range off Ocean Isle Beach.

CAPTAIN JAMIE'S OFFSHORE FISHING REPORT

The first weekend in February I took my first trip of the year aboard my boat, "Caribbean Soul." Long-time fishing friend David Rourk accompanied me on our planned overnight trip. We left Shallotte Inlet around two in the afternoon, and set our Loran coordinates for a good rocky bottom area 52 miles off Shallotte Inlet. The forecast was for light winds and slight seas during the next 24 hours.

One hour into the trip we were working a three- to four-foot northeast swell. David and I both had thoughts of turning back but we also knew that the forecast was for improving conditions, so we kept our course.

As we set our anchor on our targeted spot, the sun dipped beneath the horizon. The three- to four-foot swell had become a steady five-foot swell. I remember saying something about the weatherman, but I had better not repeat that in this article.

That night we caught snapper, amberjack, sea bass and dolphin. Yes, dolphin in February! The water temperature was 73 degrees.

The sea conditions started improving the following morning and by 10 a.m. we started seeing other fishing boats moving into the area.

The return trip proved to be the highlight of the whole adventure. David and I noticed a great number of birds working an area 21 miles from Shallotte Inlet. As I turned the boat to get a closer look at this activity I was stunned at what I saw. Three-foot tall dorsal fins working in and out around the birds!

As the "Caribbean Soul" inched closer we determined that there were six sharks—the smallest being around 20 feet long and the largest in the 30-foot range. These creatures were very curious and swam right next to the boat. Luckily we had brought along a camera and David managed a few photographs.

The following day I spoke with a marine biologist from Fort Fisher and he explained what we had encountered. They were Baskin sharks. Their average length is 30-35 feet, and they feed only on plankton.

The week of Easter should provide excellent offshore fishing. The gulf stream has moved to within 15 miles of Frying Pan Tower. This should make catches of kings, wahoo, tuna and dolphin plentiful.

That's about all for now. Keep watching for the offshore fishing report in your weekly Beacon.

Chili Cook-Off Set Saturday

Chili lovers can sample a variety of recipes and take in several hours of entertainment this Saturday at the second annual Robert Ruark Foundation Chili Cook-Off in Southport.

The event starts at noon in Franklin Square Park. For a $3 donation, people will be permitted to taste dishes cooked up by groups competing for the honor of having the top chili.

For those who don't care for chili, hot dogs, ice cream and beverages will be available. Eleven church groups are expected to participate in a bake sale.

The foundation's chief cook, Bob Furr, will be serving a five-way chili dinner all afternoon. Hushpuppies will be served from noon until 4 p.m. for a fee of $3.50.

Spokesperson Bette Leggett said proceeds from the chili cook-off will help finance the second annual Robert Ruark Festival planned for November.

Entertainers will include the Cedar Grove Gospel Choir, Brunwick County Cloggers, Miss Brunswick County Lisa Young and Miss Fourth of July Robin Walcott. The Brunswick Community College Alumni Chorus also will perform.

Lee Michaels, radio personality with WCCA 106.3 FM of Shallotte, will emcee the afternoon's entertainment.

Ms. Leggett said awards in the chili cook-off will be presented at 4 p.m.

Egg Hunt Scheduled

An Easter egg hunt for children will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Pro Tee golf practice range near Brick Landing.

Children may bring their own eggs, but the range will also provide eggs, said Kelly Beeler, manager and promotional director.

Prizes will be awarded and free refreshments.

The range is located on N.C. 179 between Brick Landing Plantation and Bent Tree Plantation.
