

Some DWI Defendants Get Jail Time, House Arrest

Three judges presided over four days of Brunswick County District Criminal Court last week, together sentencing seven people for driving while impaired.

One DWI defendant received 24 hours of electronic house arrest in lieu of serving 72 hours of community service. Defendants must agree to participate in the house arrest program.

While under house arrest, the defendant wears an electronic ankle device that is monitored by a receiver connected to a home telephone outlet. His or her movement away from the home receiver is monitored.

Judge D. Jack Hooks Jr. agreed to place the defendant on house arrest after he was found guilty of level 3 DWI. Judge Hooks also heard two other DWI cases, issuing 60-day sentences, suspended for two years, in each.

Judge Napoleon "Poli" Barefoot Jr. heard three cases of LWI last week and ordered that one defendant spend 72 hours in jail. The level 3 defendant also received a six-month prison term, suspended to two years.

Barefoot gave two other DWI defendants 60-day terms, suspended for two years.

Judge Jerry A. Jolly heard one level 4 DWI case last week and in that case issued a 120-day sentence, suspended for two years.
