

Carolina Shores Man Attacked In Break-In Saturday Morning

BY TERRY POPE

A man who fell asleep in a recliner at his Carolina Shores home early Saturday awoke when two men started beating him.

The two suspects had entered the Calabash home through an unlocked front door, reported Brunswick County Sheriff's Deputy Marshall Evans. The victim was beat about the head, causing lacerations and contusions.

He was transported to The Brunswick Hospital in Supply where he was treated and released, said Detective Gary Shay.

According to Shay, the victim said he was semi-asleep in his recliner around 1:20 a.m. when he opened his eyes and saw the two males standing over him.

He gave Shay the names of the two suspects. The charges would be misdemeanors, said Shay, and the victim would have to press charges before a magistrate.

UNC-W Sets Seminar On Coastal Erosion

Causes of coastal shore erosion and current attempts to counter erosion will be the topic of a seminar series to be held in September and October at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

UNC-W's Division for Public Service is sponsoring "Coastal Shore Erosion," each Thursday Sept. 5 through Oct. 24 from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Jim Bunch, who owns a company that specializes in beach erosion control and serves on the Oregon Inlet Commission in Dare County, is the instructor.

Bunch also is a diving instructor and an oceanographer with the Army Corps of Engineers.

Discussion will include breakwaters, groins, jetties, sandbagging, beach renourishment and beach planting. Bunch will explain why he believes these methods often create more problems than they solve.

The registration fee is $25 and the deadline is Aug. 29. For more information, call 395-3195.
