CHRISTMAS CHEER

Check Out Santa's Bag Of Golf Gifts

your favorite golfer this year? Well you may relax and read on. Golfers come in all sizes and most have very personal tastes in homes, cars, clothes and entertainment. However, golfers are rarely hard to please when you give them a golf gift.

Your first thought about a golf gift may be that it will be expensive.

That certainly is a possibility if cost is no object. A set of clubs will range between $200 and $2,000. It all depends on your golfer and how much he normally spends on his clubs

Tailor Your Gift To The Golfer

it your golfer is a novice and still learning the game with an old or ised set of clubs, you can pick up a very nice matched set of new clubs from any number of businesses or people in our area who assemble clubs to match your needs. Just ask at any golf course who makes custom clubs and you will be able to negotiate a price for a good set of new irons from $200 to $300 dollars. The best bet would be to arrange for a gift certificate for your golfer, so he or she can select the style and specifications to suit their

How To Make A Golfer Really Happy

If you want to really get into big bucks, go for a whole set of clubs including the woods, specialty clubs and a nice bag. That outfit will range from $500 to $800. If you are thinking or something to really impress your golfer you can always give them the lown personal golf cart for $2,000

Prices for very mee gifts do not have to be outlandish. Golf shoes range from $75 to $200 in most pre-space. Rainsonts can be found in a price range of $65 to $3(0). Rainsuits are a pair of any nice gift in that they may also be worn on a cold windy night to a "ovibal" game or anytime you want total protection against rain. Most come with their own pouches and are easy to fold and carry along on any venture into the outdoors.

Rainsuits Are A Practical Gift

I once watched a round at the Greensboro Open wearing long johns, wool pants with a sweater and a runsent with a large brimmed hat. I was sitting on the top row of bleachers on a hill in bitter windy weather. At no time during the morning did anyone else venture into those bleachers for more than a few minutes. They would look around at me with my binoculars and thermos of coffee, shake their heads and scurry off of that hill, I was perfectly comfortable in three layers with the rainsuit.

If you are interested in a gift from $20 to $50 look for a nice sweater made of cotton, a good set of cold weather gloves or warm sleeveless sweater which is a practical layering garment for a golfer. You can also purchase your golfer a couple dozen balls in this price range. Balls are always a welcome gift as is a large golf umbrella. A golf umbrella also has a lot of other practical uses.

All Golf Items Are Not Expensive

Other ideas for the moderate gift are golf books, golf instructional videos, video golf games, golf caps, wooden shoe trees, and golf club

If you drew a golfer's name in the office pool and you want to spend somewhat less than $20, go for some tees, a pair of reinforced golf socks, a toboggan, a spike tool for golf shoes, or a golf towel. In short, any of these accessories will be appreciated and used by a golfer.

In the event none of the above inspire you, check with one of the local golf pro shops. They have lots of other ideas to meet your needs. If all else fails just get a nice bottle of antifreeze for his coffee thermos.

IN FIELD OF 8 TEAMS North Wrestlers Place Fifth finished fifth in a field of eight teams at the Apex Tournament Saturday after losing its home opener last Tuesday to Wilmington Laney. Brian Cook (119), Keith Bullock (130), Blake Hobbs (160) and Dwaun Gibbs (171) all placed second for the Scorpions in the team tournament. John Sweeney (103) finished fourth for North Brunswick.

"This tournament was a bit tougher than the one we had last week at Laney," Wrestling Coach Mike Dumas said. "There were some high powered people in there."

North Brunswick was the only 2-A team to enter. Other teams included 4-A schools Apex, Sanderson, Rocky Mount, Riverside, Chapel Hill, Lee County and defending state 3-A champion High Point-Andrews. Laney, a 4-A powerhouse in wrestling, defeated North Bruns-wick 55-15 in a dual meet last

North Brunswick (1-1) was scheduled to face New Hanover Tuesday night at home before traveling to Albemarle for a wrestling tournament Saturday.

Tuesday night in Wilmington.

Dumas said this weekend's tournament will give him a good idea

North Brunswick's wrestling team where his team stacks up against some of the top 1-A and 2-A teams in the state.

Albemarle won the state 1-A/2-A team tournament last year, and Mount Pleasant placed second. Both will be at Saturday's event.

"It won't be a pushover tournament," Dumas said. "This will pretty much let us know something.'

Dumas said the tough schedule should help North Brunswick later in the season. "This will be good preparation for us. We're hitting some powers now."
