Program Offers Kids Fun Look At Science In Life

Where can kids go after school to make scented soap balls and glue, create their own miniature lab and learn how to mix and measure safely?

At Waccamaw Elementary School, students in grades kindergarten through six can stay after school one day a week for "hands-on science".

Hands On Science Outreach Inc. is a recreational science program that stimulates "science in life" awareness through the fun of active involvement in experiments, games, music and projects, said volunteer coordinator Yvonne Inman.

The winter program will wrap up March 19. The spring session begins around March 30, with the date and time to be announced. Sessions will run through late May, with no classes during spring break.

The eight-session program provides activities and materials students can take home. Topics are offered on a rotating basis so that children can continue to participate without repeating a class.

Space is limited, so early registration is encouraged, Mrs. Inman said. Cost is $40 for the entire session, due March 10, with some scholarships or sponsorships available from the PTO and community sponsors for families that would like to register more than one child. Program applications and scholarship information are available from the school.

Spring session offerings will focus on the "great outdoors".

Kindergartners and first-graders will study "Layers," making a model of the Earth's layers, including the clouds, and exploring life on a log.

Second- and third-grade students will explore the "Rocky Road," exploring rocks that sparkle and float, making and testing crystals, making "rock" jewelry and discovering rock formations.

Fourth- through sixth-graders will explore "Weathering Heights". Each child will work with a bi-dot, comparing it with thermometers and competing with weather predictions.

During the current quarter, kindergarten and first-grade students have played the role of "Chemistry Detectives," experimenting with mixtures, solutions, acids and bases. The science sleuths prepared scented soap balls, bath salts, ink and glue.

Second- and third-grade "Kitchen chemists" learned how to safely mix and measure in their kitchen "lab" while enjoying changing colors, liberating gases and analyzing various antacids.

Fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders developed their own mini-lab test tube rack and made cheese, glue, play putty and more. They learned to test for viscosity, solubility and acid/base reactions using "safe" materials.

Boosters Raising Band Trip Money

A series of fundraising events by the West Brunswick High School Band Boosters over the next few weeks will help the band and its flag corps defray the cost of a trip to Annapolis, Md., April 23-26.

As part of the trip, the band will compete in concert and marching competition at the Annapolis Music Festival, tour Annapolis and Washington, D.C., and visit the U.S. Naval Academy, the Smithsonian Institution, the Washington Zoo, Busch Gardens the White House, U.S. Capitol and other points of historical interest.

They will also attend a performance of the U.S. Naval Academy Glee Club. A West Brunswick High School graduate and senior midshipman, Pam Plyler, is a member of the glee club.

Fifty-three students plus chaperones will participate, said band booster Vernetta StumblingBear.

A fish fry will be held March 2 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the parking lot at Hill's Food Store, with deliveries available for orders of five or more. To order, contact Vernetta StumblingBear, 579-8587 or 754-6404.

On March 14, the band will perform two concerts at McDonald's during Band Day, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. A bake sale is also planned.

Deadline Is May 1 For Girls' Pageants

A May 1 deadline has been set for entering the 1992 N.C. Little Miss and Tiny Miss Fourth of July Pageant to be held June 13.

The Little Miss contest is open to girls ages 6 through 8, and the Tiny Miss contest to girls ages 4 and 5, as of the pageant date, said Linda Brinson, co-director.

Entry costs $40, with 10 contestants to be accepted in each division on a first-come, first-accepted basis. Contestants must be residents of Brunswick County.

The event is being held under the auspices of the N.C. Fourth of July Festival, by For more information or to request an application, interested persons may contact Ms. Brinson or Angie Taylor at 919-457-6771. Applications may also be picked up at the Southport main office of UCB.
