LARRY ANDREWS

The death of a loved one immediately alters our lives. We feel a void that nothing can fill. We are struck with the realization that death is final. The person who was a dynamic part of our lives is no longer going to be a tangible part of our daily living. But, we do have the wonderful ability to recall times of happiness and joy. Our memories sustain us through our darkest moments. It is said, God gave us memories so we could have roses in winter.
