Work On Rourk Branch Library Set For Mid-November Finish

BY ERIC CARLSON

The renovation and addition to the Rourk Branch (formerly the West Brunswick Branch) of the Brunswick County Library system in Shallotte should be completed by mid-November, but the Southport library is likely to remain closed until early next year.

Ann Hines, chairman of the Brunswick County Library Board of Trustees, said at the group's monthly meeting Monday that final "punch list" work at the Shallotte library should begin by Oct. 24. However, renovations at the Southport library have uncovered construction deficiencies that will have to be repaired, delaying project completion there.

In his Sept. 9 progress report to the board, project architect John Sawyer said the general contractor at the Shallotte branch was working to finish the insulation and dry wall work, while the electrical contractor completed the installation of main wiring.

Windows have been installed and the brick veneer has been completed on the exterior of the Ruork Branch library, Sawyer reported

Both library branches vere originally scheduled to re-open in mid-August, but minor problems have delayed completion of the Shallotte library. A temporary branch library has been set up at Resort Plaza on North Main Street.

The Southport library is even farther behind schedule. After removing old shingles on the building's roof, the contractor discovered plywood used in its construction is a type that has a history of deteriorating underheat and is beginning to fall apart. The library board agreed to tear out and replace the old plywood at an estimated additional cost of $10,000 to $15,000.

A revised project schedule called for final work at the Southport library to begin Nov. 14, but it seems unlikely that contractors will be able to meet that timetable.

"It looks to me like they're never going to make that," said library board member Margaret Harper of Southport.

Hines named members Marie Harrison and Pearl Stanley to coordinate landscaping at the Rourk Branch. Walt Frazier and Edith Tillman will oversee landscaping for the Leland library, and Harper will supervise work at Southport.

In other business at the brief library board meeting, Library Director Maurice Tate gave a report on the system's summer reading club. She said child services coordinator Ellen King reported 7,727 books read to the young "listener" participants in the program, while 84,390 pages were read by readers age 7 to 14.

Of the 147 who registered for summer reading at Shallotte, 73 completed the program, King reported. At the Leland branch, 100 out of 174 registered participants completed the program while the G.V. Barbee Branch on Oak Island saw 58 out of 137 finish the summer reading program.

The board agreed to cancel its Dec. 26 meeting. The trustees will meet next on Oct. 24.
