Buying seed is not the place to economize in growing a garden. Buy

That's the suggestion of North Carolina State University extension specialists, who point out that seeds are among the least expensive items required for gardening so why not buy the best available?

Quality of seeds vary, even if they were pro-duced last year and pack-aged for 1976 planting. Seeds held over from a year or two years ago will have even greater variation in quality, because they've been around longer and subjected to moisture and other elements that can affect germination.

Your best bet is to buy from a reputable seed dealer; one who sells a lot of seed and knows the

The Caswell News

Last Tuesday was celebrated as Doctors' Day throughout the South. It was set aside to honor our doctors and to express our appreciation to them for their works of healing and com-

Mental retardation is a condition, not a disease but the doctor is a valuable member of the multidisciplinary team that plans a program to meet the needs of each retarded person. The doctors play a part in diagnosis. A child brought to him may be suffering from a specific disease which causes mental retardation. Another child thought to be mentally retarded may be suffering from a sensory defect such as poor sight or poor

Babies are taken to doctors. It is very important that any defects be detected early so that the child can be helped as much possible during the developmental period. Often the doctor sees the child before any other professional workers.

Here at Caswell a multidisciplinary team works out a habilitation program for every resident. Doctors give information about the physical condition of the resident. They prescribe drugs if necessary. They teach other staff members about diseases that can cause mental retardation.

In an institution which serves as a temporary home for twelve hundred residents, people get sick. We have a hospital in which residents are treated by doctors and nurses.

Our doctors at Caswell are Frank Badrock, Matt Harper, Nora Hsu, Joseph Katz, Carlos Rios, Mariano Roca and Kamal Salameh.

Can you really afford to cut back on N-P-K?

Last year many farmers felt they had to cut back on fertilizer to save. But instead of saving they lost dearly. In fact, in some areas where growing conditions were good, yields dropped 25-30%.

Don't repeat the same mistake this season. To produce yields at the optimum economic level, get a complete fertilizer program that supplies all essential elements in the right quantities. Get Arcadian® liquid . . . made the SLF® way.

With Arcadian® liquid we can supply the right amounts of N-P-K and other plant nutrients for each individual field and crop. No more, no less. What's more, it's made with POLY-N®, the phosphate source that increases the availability of nutrients to your crop.

This season don't cut back on N-P-K. Let us prescription mix a complete fertilizer based on complete soil analysis for maximum yields the SLF way.
